Utility 'Death Sentence' Voted in Altered Form; Senate Passes Coal Bill

'Must' Schedule Nearly Complete

White House Note Spurs Action; Huddleston Fights Vainly.

By Robert C. Albright.

The "death sentence" for "unnecessary" utility holding companies, in slightly altered form, last night was rammed through a House that had twice previously refused to accept it—a parting adjournment concession to President Roosevelt.

The vote was 219 to 142.

Passage came after the Senate, by a 45-to-37 vote, had approved the Guffey coal bill, sanctioning Government control of the soft-coal industry, with only minor modifying amendments.

Approval of these two cardinal measures in the President's program, long threatened with abandonment because of far-reaching constitutional implications, left leaders virtually free to fix the adjournment hour today or tomorrow.

Although FACA and gold clause bills still remained in conference deadlock, it was said that Congress will not wait on these once the tax bill, the Guffey and utility measures are out of the way.

Ship Subsidy Sidetracked.

Further obstacles to adjournment were swept aside as the Senate Commerce Committee, heedless of the President's request for ship-subsidy legislation, sidetracked action this session. A routine $92,000,000 third deficiency bill, meeting appropriation authorizations in last-minute bills, trailed its way from the House to the Senate, writing a probable week-end "finis" to the session.

A letter from the President, and impassioned floor speeches by Speaker Joseph W. Byrns and Interstate Commerce Chairman Sam Rayburn, foreshadowed House retraction of its previous stand against sweeping holding company abolitions.

Huddleston Fails.

The persuasive voice of Representative George Huddleston, of Alabama, failed to turn the tide that already had been set in motion by Administration forces, increasingly potent as adjournment neared.

"Don't delude yourselves," Huddleston futilely warned. "You are voting for the 'death sentence.' There has been a sleight of hand—a juggling of sentences—but it means the same thing. The purpose of it all is to afford House members an opportunity to repent."

As explained off the floor by Benjamin Cohen, its chief draftsman, the so-called "compromise" contains most of the rigor of the original death sentence. The only essential difference is that the Securities and Exchange Commission would be directed to do the job.

Under its terms, no utility holding company more than twice removed from the operating concern would be allowed to survive after 1938, and only those holding concerns within the second degree could continue whose subsidiary systems are economically and geographically integrated.

Byrns Takes Floor.

Stepping down from the rostrum, Speaker Byrns, in one of those rare occasions when a Speaker of the House takes the floor, spoke just before the vote.

"Are we going to adjourn this Congress and go back home and admit to the country our inability to enact this legislation?" he asked.

There were mingled shouts of "No" from the Democrats and "Yes" from Republicans.

"What are you and I going to do—go back and tell our people we can't pass a bill to regulate holding companies?" Byrns continued. "I am appealing to you gentlemen—you are responsible—to adopt this motion of the gentleman from Texas."

Earlier, Representative Rayburn,

THE ADJOURNMENT RUSH

MEMBERS of Congress were buying their railroad tickets home yesterday, after the House cleared the way for adjournment by accepting the Administration holding company "death sentence" compromise, 219 to 142.

The Senate kept pace with the "sine die" stride, by approving the Guffey coal bill. The vote was 45 to 37. Conference agreements on both measures still must be reported.

Only serious conference deadlocks on the FACA and gold-clause bills stood in the way of adjournment. The $250,000,000 tax bill was ready to report, and Congress was in a mood to speedily approve it.

Minor measures were hurried along, the House passing both the $92,961,000 third deficiency appropriation bill and a companion measure to the railroad pension bill, providing 3½ per cent taxes on employes' pay rolls and workers' wages.

Leaders admitted that a few bills favored by the President may be abandoned in the last-minute rush to get away. Among these probably will be the ship-subsidy bill, already passed by the House. The Senate Commerce Committee yesterday ignored a letter from the President asking Senate passage this session.

Veteran members of Congress were cagey about fixing a definite time for a get-away. The consensus is that adjournment will come late tomorrow, although a final gavel today is not impossible.

Utility Man Feted Officials Here In 'Social Lobby' to Defeat Bill

By the Associated Press.

Bernard B. Robinson, hospitable Chicago broker, yesterday unfolded an intriguing tale of efforts to defeat the utilities bill by "indirect salesmanship," which Senate lobby investigators promptly denounced as an "insidious social lobby."

Between his denials, Senate committee members contended his sole purpose in coming to Washington was to influence the legislation through social contacts, and termed such activity the "meanest form of all lobbying."

Robinson told of entertaining Marvin McIntyre, a Roosevelt secretary, at his apartment in the Shoreham Hotel and at a party in the "F Street Club."

Lawrence W. (Chip) Robert, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, and Emil Hurja, Democratic National Committee official, were among his guests at various times. There were numerous other Government officials, he said.

"Oh, my, yes," he said. "You couldn't give a party here without——" the next question cut him short.

Hopson Challenges Figures.

Hopson vigorously challenged committee figures crediting to himself and J. I. Mange, other organizer of the Associated system, profits of $29,390,000.

"No such profit ever was realized," Hopson reiterated when Senator Schwellenbach (Democrat), Washington, said they were "if the records of your companies are correct."

Chairman Black, (Democrat), Alabama, said Hopson and Mange made $17,000,000 on a stock deal in 1930, turning the securities back to Associated to curtail income taxes. This was denied to be the reason for the transfer by H. A. Stix, Hopson's aid, although he finally said:

"There are many other reasons, but that's the only one I can think of now."

The committee learned from two witnesses that Bruce Kremer, former Democratic national committeeman from Montana, was retained for legal work and sought commit-

More Federal Leave Beaten By McKellar

Lone Senate Objector to Liberalizing Law Kills Bill for Session.

A one-man fight led by Senator McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee, yesterday brought what amounted to defeat of the two leave bills for Government employes.

All prospect for revival of the issue this session was dissipated.

Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, blocked the Tennesseean's apparent intention to avoid debate by insisting on an explanation of his objection.

McKellar read a letter of protest from a Nevy Department official, which pointed out 48,751 departmental employes, chiefly per diem workers and mechanics, already were on a five-day 40-hour week for which they were paid as though they worked six days.

The workers in question, McKellar protested, already are paid for 74 days a year when they fail to work, including seven holidays, and would receive a four-day week unless excluded from the leave bill.

"This bill is indefensible," McKellar stormed.

Bill Called Indefensible.

"It ought not to pass until we treat all employes of the Government alike. We ought not to give this leave only to certain classes of employes whose lobbies flock around this Capitol."

Copeland openly assailed McKellar on his attitude.

"The Senator from Tennessee," Copeland twitted, "says he wants to treat them all alike and he's doing just that. He's seeing that all of these employes fail to get a reasonable amount of leave."

Red of face, McKellar indignantly responded:

"You don't know what you're talking about."

Copeland went on to defend the bill.

"Thirty days leave," he added, "doesn't mean a month's vacation because every time one of these employes is a half an hour late or has to get off and visit a sick aunt it is charged against his annual leave."

"This is a fair bill. The Senator from Tennessee can fight it all he cares to, but I intend to support it every chance I get."

McKellar Defends Self.

There was no renewal of the debate when McKellar a moment later objected to consideration of the sick leave proposal.

Later McKellar told reporters he regretted he had been unable to take the time earlier in the session to confer with those concerned and work out a solution.

He said he would have offered an amendment from the floor excluding Navy Department employes, but was informed approaching adjournment prevented consideration

Cotton at 12 Cents Insured by AAA

Direct Subsidy for 1935 Is Announced for Growers, to Last Four Months Without Regard to Selling Price; Loan Limit Is Cut to 9 Cents; News Causes Japanese Market to Shut Down.

By Felix Bruner.

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration announced last night a new cotton program under which growers will be guaranteed an average of 12 cents a pound for their crop, while at the same time market prices will be permitted to drop to a point where it is hoped American cotton may again move freely in the world markets.

This will be accomplished through a direct subsidy to cotton growers which will make up the difference between the average market price during the next four months and 12 cents. At the same time growers will be permitted to borrow only 9 cents instead of 12 cents per pound from the Government. Reduction of the loan amount is expected to bring an immediate drop in the open-market price.

(At Osaka, Japan, the cotton exchange suspended its afternoon session yesterday after a slump at the morning session caused by announcement in Washington of the Government loan action.—Editor's note.)

The price guarantee and the loan arrangement are two separate plans.

Under the price guarantee plan, the grower may sell his cotton at whatever the market price may be at the time he sells it. On January 1 the Government will send him a check for the difference between the average market price between September 1 and January 1 and 12 cents.

The loan plan is exactly the same as at present except the amount of the loan has been reduced.

The reduction of 3 cents in the cotton loan is expected to result in an immediate drop in the market. AAA officials said, however they did not expect it to drop to 9 cents because of the prospective increased demand in proportion to the supply. The Government has taken off the market 4,600,000 bales held as security for the 12-cent loans. This cotton is not expected to move until the market reaches 13 cents, a price which would cover the loan and carrying charges.

Officials would not even attempt to estimate the cost of the new plan of direct grants. Only producers who come within the Bankhead limitations would be eligible. This limitation totals 10,500,000 bales. Should the average price of cotton during the four months drop to 10 cents and should the entire crop move within that period, the cost to the Government would be approximately $105,000,000. This would be in addition to the money loaned.

Money for the farm subsidy will be obtainable under one of the recent AAA amendments which permits the use of one-third of the country's customs receipts for farm adjustments. The amount thus made available is estimated at $90,000,000. Ordinarily this money would go into the Treasury, so that under the plan money actually will be paid from the Treasury to guarantee

100,000 Join In Last Tribute To Will Rogers

Notables in Film World at Rites; Oklahoma Bids Post Farewell.

The Rogers-Post Rites.

In Glendale more than 100,000 persons filed past the coffin of Will Rogers to pay final tribute to the beloved humorist. Memorial services also were held in several studios in and near Los Angeles. Flags were at half-staff in Oklahoma City as sorrowing thousands attended services for Wiley Post, famous flier killed with Rogers in the plane crash.

By the Associated Press.

Glendale, Calif., Aug. 22.—The Nation took sad leave today of Will Rogers, who "never saw a man I didn't like."

While the world-famed humorist, actor and philosopher was eulogized in scores of solemn memorials, 100,000 persons massed at Forest Lawn Memorial Park.

Starting at sunrise—and before—the crowds came for the bare privilege of filing past his body, as it lay in state in a tiny copse of pine and olive trees. An estimated 50,000 passed the bier before noon.

Then, after brief, simple services for the family and closest friends, the body was laid to rest in a vault at Forest Lawn. There it will await ultimate removal to Rogers' native Oklahoma.

At almost the same time, in Oklahoma City, other sorrowing throngs bade farewell to Wiley Post, ace aviator, who died with Rogers in an Alaskan plane crash one week ago tonight.

Japanese Held Ready to Yield On Navy Parity

Are Expected to Demand Upper Limit on Tonnage for All Powers.

By the Associated Press.

Tokyo, Aug. 22.—A vigorous restatement of Japan's naval limitation policy, soon to be handed to the British government, may indicate, newspapers said today, the possibility Japan will recede from her demand for absolute naval parity with Great Britain and the United States.

The papers indicated, however, that Japan will insist on a common upper limit on tonnage for all naval powers, as a matter of principle.

Koki Hirota, foreign minister, has directed the Japanese charge d'affaires in London, Keinosuke Fujii, to deliver Japan's new "observations."

These were reported to have received the approval of the full cabinet on August 21 and to have been given the emperor's sanction.

Official confirmation was lacking. A foreign office spokesman refused either to confirm or deny the newspaper accounts.

It was learned officially, however, that Britain's recent communication to other Washington Treaty signatories (the United States, France and Italy) was not actually an invitation to a conference, but was in effect an invitation to each government to state its views on naval disarmament problems.

The Japanese government therefore decided the time was ripe to restate its basic principles. Officially it was said these are unchanged since preliminary naval talks in London last December, namely, a common upper tonnage limit, abolition of ratios and drastic tonnage reduction.

The newspaper Ashani said Ja-

Blanket Arms Embargo To Last Only 6 Months Approved by Roosevelt

THE WAR CRISIS ABROAD

IN half a dozen major capitals of the world yesterday the threatened Italo-Ethiopian war was the all-absorbing issue.

From London, after a cabinet meeting, came word the British would seek to rally the world powers to join with them in using force, if necessary, to prevent the African conflict.

Congress won the President's consent to a six-month mandatory arms embargo against all belligerents, thus virtually eliminating the United States as a partisan in any conflict.

In Italy a journalistic mouthpiece for the government sharply assailed proposals to check Benito Mussolini's warlike actions and cried out that any forceful resistance to Italian plans, economic or military, would mean "war."

The French continued to caution that pacific means be pursued to avert the conflict, urging the British to make further diplomatic approaches to Mussolini. It was for this reason, it was believed, the British failed to lift the embargo on arms shipments to Ethiopia.

In Addis Ababa, Emperor Haile Selassie, finding it difficult to restrain his warriors, decreed death for any Ethiopian who lays hands or weapons on an Italian until he gives the word.

Earlier in the day the world held its breath as word was flashed that an Italian consul had been shot to death in Ethiopia.

England Ready to Join Powers In Forcing Italy to Keep Peace

Cabinet Willing to Invoke League's Military Sanctions to Avert Africa Conflict if Other Nations Agree; Closing of Suez Canal Considered.

By the Associated Press.

London, Aug. 22.—Great Britain, an advised informant said tonight, will go to any length under the League covenant to try to prevent war in Africa. If other powers join her, he said, she will subscribe not only to financial and economic pressure upon the aggressor, but also to the use of military, naval and air sanctions. (In other words, display of force.)

She even will consider joint closure of the Suez Canal, he said.

The informant said the cabinet, in emergency session at 10 Downing street, decided to seek a peaceful settlement by every possible device; but, if that fails, to advocate the use of the strongest League instrumentalities, provided—and this was definite—she does not stand alone.

Britain does not intend to police the world single-handed, he said.

The cabinet agreed that a formal approach to the United States looking toward co-operation outside the League is unnecessary at present. If events justify it, such an approach can be made.

It emphasized, the informant said, its determination to support the covenant of the League and all treaties.

Ban on Arms Maintained.

He added the League of Nations must decide the type of sanctions to be employed in event of hostilities and how forcefully they are likely to be employed.

The cabinet surprised most quarters by temporarily maintaining the ban on arms exports to both Ethiopia and Italy. This matter was left in the hands of key ministers, who may lift it before the meeting of the League council September 4 if they think the move is necessary. Maintenance of the ban was regarded as a gesture to Italy.

New peace moves toward Italy were initiated at the urgent request of Premier Pierre Laval of France. Laval, it was learned, urged Sir Samuel Hoare and Anthony Eden, foreign ministers, to approach Mussolini further in diplomatic channels.

Britain will make overtures directly and in conjunction with Laval. The two governments will continue to explore the possibilities of a peaceful solution right up to and including the Geneva meeting.

If their peace efforts break down, then proposals for sanctions will follow, it was declared.

All ministers will keep in touch

Proposals in English Press Seen as Tending to Embroil Nations.

By the Associated Press.

Rome, Aug. 22.—The authoritative newspaper Giornale d'Italia met suggestions abroad that strong measures be employed to curb Italy's East African policy with the assertion today that "sanctions mean war."

Proposals in the British press that the Suez Canal be closed against Italy and that a free export of arms to Ethiopia be authorized the newspaper cited as "hostile acts" which might embroil the two nations.

Such an action, Giornale said, would not only transfer the East African controversy to Europe, but possibly would inflame the entire world.

While official sources maintained silence tonight concerning reports that the British cabinet had decided to support League sanctions if other nations co-operated, other quarters professed to see little threat to Italy's expansion program.

British Loophole Seen.

They said the British "loophole," the stipulation that there be joint action by League members if Britain adopts a stern role, meant that the council meeting September 4 would resolve itself "into just what Italy wants—an inconclusive discussion."

Well-informed sources said the Italian government feels sure collective action will not be forthcoming at the conference, pointing out that no matter how grave the British cabinet's decisions may sound concerning sanctions, they leave the field open for Britain to retire gracefully with her honor as protector of the League of Nations authority intact.

These sources said the question of sanctions would surely be pigeonholed because of Franco-Italian amity, and the unsavory light which Italy expects to throw on Ethiopia at the council session.

Current rumors that Italy and Ethiopia had already broken off diplomatic relations were branded false tonight by Negradas Yesus Afevork, Ethiopian charge d'affaires.

The few remaining attaches at the legation described the envoy, however, as waiting day by day for sailing orders.

The Giornale d'Italia, in its editorial, said:

Obstruction Assailed.

"Accusing Italy of violating treaties, incendiary British newspapers desire their government to be the first to violate treaties which it has signed," the editorial continued. "What it is today necessary to state precisely is the most decisive and concrete point. Sanctions mean war."

"No one in Italy is thinking of touching the British Empire, but everyone in Italy expects that the British Empire will not obstruct her path when she is following Britain's example and methods in attempts to assure herself territory useful in her work for security."

Declarations of the paper, which

Senate and House Due to Concur Quickly on Revised Resolution.

President to Seek Free Hand Later

Leaves Issue Up to Next Congress; Isolationists Score a Victory.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Unwilling to resist strong demands, both within and without Congress, for immediate action on legislation to keep the Nation out of war, President Roosevelt yesterday agreed to passage of the Senate's mandatory arms embargo resolution with an amendment that it be effective only until February 29.

The President's concession, immediately reported to the Houe by its Foreign Affairs Committee for action today, was only a partial victory for the anti-war profits and neutrality bloc in the Senate, which wished to make a mandatory arms embargo in case war breaks out abroad a permanent policy of this Government.

As the resolution has been amended by the House committee—the form in which it probably will be enacted—it leaves the question of an American neutrality policy open for settlement when Congress convenes in January. At that time the Administration is expected to make strenuous efforts to prevent extension of the rigid, inflexible arms embargo in the Senate resolution.

Situation "Frozen."

But between now and March 1 the Administration's freedom in making advances to prevent the outbreak of warfare will be sharply limited, it is contended, because the Senate resolution would freeze the situation and diminish the force of any moral persuasion which this Government might undertake.

On the whole, the President's acceptance of the Senate resolution, even though it expires in six months, is a setback for those who advocate international co-operation by this Government for preventing the outbreak of war. Conversely, it is another victory for the Capitol Hill isolationists who distrust the executive branch of the Government in foreign affairs.

Davis Influence Seen.

The isolationist bloc contended that the President's opposition to mandatory neutrality legislation is a reversal of his position last spring when he inspired the Nye Munitions Committee to undertake the drafting of such proposals. Norman H. Davis, American Ambassador at Large, is held responsible in Senate quarters for persuading the President to turn from an isolationist position toward a desire to prevent war by international co-operation.

Davis, it was revealed by one those in the forefront of the Senate why certain Senators are so adamant that any neutrality legislation must be mandatory and rigid. These Senators got the impression from Davis' testimony before the secret sessions of the committee, it was explained, that he had given informal assurances to Great Britain that they could feel sure that if trouble developed this Government would not interfere with any collective action to enforce peace.

Sufficient developed at London yesterday to indicate that the attitude of this country would be a major factor in shaping British policy, even though the Senate isolationists have drawn incorrect conclusions from Davis' testimony.

Entanglement Feared.

At all events, this Senate bloc fears the Administration, through Davis, has laid the foundation to commit the United States to a course of action from which it could not draw back should hostilities develop and that fear partly inspired the eleventh-hour drive to tie the President's hands with neutrality legislation, it was asserted by one of those leading the fight.

The Senate bloc, however, will have to be satisfied with tying the President's hands for only six months. They would like to strike the time limitation from the resolution and would do so if they could be sure such action would

Suits Request Hopson Return Costs of Lobby

Company Stockholders Ask Accounting of Fees, Halt of Further Expense.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 22.—In two suits, filed in New York and Jersey courts, two stockholders of the Associated Gas & Electric Co. today moved to compel Howard C. Hopson and John I. Mange to stop further utilities lobbying expenditures, render an accounting of an estimated $10,000,000 fees and return to the company $1,000,000 spent in a lobbying campaign.

The actions, identical in nature, were filed in the New York Supreme Court here and in New Jersey Chancery Court at Trenton. The plaintiffs are Murray Kanner and Simpson Levor, both of New York, owner of a small block of A. G. E. stock and bonds.

In Washington, Hopson replied to the suits with the statement that "the directors were well advised in spending what they felt they could to prevent the legislation."

The Wheeler-Rayburn bill, Hopson said, would destroy holding company securities and said the stock market showed an adverse effect on price quotations when the utilities bill appeared headed for passage.

Hill "Not Surprised."

William A. Hill, Hopson's attorney, said he was "not surprised" by the suits, but added, "I don't think they will be very successful."

Named as defendants are Hopson, vice president and treasurer; John I. Mange, president, and seven other defendants listed as officers and directors of the company.

The seven are John M. Daly, J. Lee Rice, jr., Daniel Starch, "Samuel" J. McGee, "Frank" S. Burroughs, "Charles" A. Dougherty and "Otto" E. Wasser. The quoted first names are described as fictitious in the complaint, being unknown to the plaintiffs.

Hopson, who played hide-and-seek with Senate and House committees investigating lobbying against the Wheeler-Rayburn bill, and Mange, are accused of attempting to retain "the sinecures they have developed" by "illegally and illicitly" spending money for lobby purposes, and are requested through the court to make an accounting of $9,970,944 taken from A. G. E. operating companies in fees for six years ending with 1929.

"Diversion" Charged.

"On information and belief," the complaint recited, "Hopson and Mange, in addition to diverting money for themselves, and in order to assure for themselves the retention of the sinecures which they have developed for a long period of years, unlawfully and improperly resisted legislation now pending in the Congress of the United States and took it upon themselves to enter upon a lobbying and advertising program to defeat such legislation."

It asks the defendants be compelled to account for their "official misconduct in the management and disposition of the funds and property of the Associated."

The company, the complaint said, "was never authorized to engage in lobbying activities either directly or indirectly, that lobbying is illegal and that all money spent to prevent passage of the bill was improperly, fraudulently and illegally spent."

Postal Rally Sends Appeal for Change Here.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Jacksonville, Fla., Aug. 22.—The National Alliance of Postal Employes here in convention session at the Stanton High School today sent a telegram to Postmaster General James A. Farley and to Postmaster W. M. Mooney, of Washington, requesting immediate action in establishing a colored superintendent in charge of a branch postoffice in the Nation's Capital as an example to other localities of merit award for proficiency and seniority.

This action, it was stated on the floor of the convention, had been promised the alliance for more than two years by Postmaster Mooney, but had not yet been put into effect, although there were more than a dozen names of men in the Washington postoffice submitted to him qualified for the position.

Trapped on Trestle, Mother, Daughter Die

Cleveland, Aug. 22 (AP).—A mother and her 8-year-old daughter were killed late today when trapped in the path of a train on a Baltimore & Ohio trestle here.

Mrs. Margaret Traxler, the mother, was struck and killed by the train after she pushed her daughter, June, off the trestle in a vain attempt to save her. The girl was killed by the 45-foot fall into a ravine. Four other children escaped death by flinging themselves flat on the trestle at the side of the tracks. Charles Traxler, a son of the woman killed, was struck on the head by a projecting part of the train and seriously injured.

Alcohol Control Measure to Die

Doughton Despairs as Jam Holds Up 'Must' Bill.

By the Associated Press.

A death sentence was pronounced last night over one of the President's "must" bills—the Federal alcohol control plan.

Chairman Doughton (Democrat), North Carolina, of the House Ways and Means Committee, said he had despaired of getting the bill out of its jam in a House-Senate conference.

The bill had been in conference more than week, but the conferees failed to meet yesterday. Asked what he thought of the possibilities of rescuing the bill, Doughton replied:

"I think the bill is dead for the session."

The real snag was the barrel sales idea. Some advocates of the control plan recalled that if the bill was left in conference it would leave the liquor industry without supervision for the first time since inception of NRA.

Thaelmann Trial Set For October at Berlin

Berlin, Aug. 22 (AP).—Visitors to the International Penal Congress were told tonight by counsel for Ernst Thaelmann, former Communist candidate for President of Germany, that Thaelmann will be tried in October on charges which still are kept a close secret.

[Thaelmann has been in jail since July 1, 1933, when the Reichstag Building was seriously damaged by incendiarism. One man was beheaded for the crime. Another suspect, Georgi Dimitroff, a Bulgarian Communist, was acquitted and permitted to leave Germany. Dimitroff recently was elected secretary to the Third Communist Internationale.]

July Industry Drop Was Less Than Expected

Commodity Prices Rose .05% in Week Ended Aug. 17, Is Report.

A heartening picture of American industry in the month of July, from the standpoint of employment and pay rolls, was drawn yesterday by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

At the same time Dr. Isador Lubin, commissioner of labor statistics, announced that wholesale commodity prices rose five-tenths of one per cent for the week ended August 17 to the highest point reached since November, 1930.

Save for sharp declines in the hard and soft coal mining industries, business recessions were seasonal and slight, Miss Perkins reported. She held the mining slump responsible for 60 per cent of the $7,200,000 decline in pay roll aggregates for July, compared to June.

Factory employment and pay rolls decreased one-tenth of one per cent and 1.7 per cent, appreciably less than had been expected, the Labor Secretary stated. In the nondurable goods industries employment and pay rolls increased one-tenth of one per cent during the month. Decreases of three-tenths of one per cent in employment and 3.6 per cent in pay rolls were noted in the durable goods group.

Gains Classified.

Employment gains were reported in the following manufacturing industries: Canning and preserving, radios and phonographs, sawmills, plumbers' supplies, agricultural implements, silk and rayon mills, boots and shoes, beverages and ship building.

In the "decline" column were autos, blast furnaces, steel works and rolling mills, women's clothing, knit goods, cotton goods, woolen and worsted goods and dyeing and finishing textiles.

In 10 of the 17 nonmanufacturing industries covered in the monthly survey employment gains were noted, chiefly among laundries, private building construction and power and light.

Drop in District.

Seasonal activity was reflected in the canning and preserving industry, which led in employment increases with 63.2 per cent. The sharpest decline was in the electric and steam car building industry, 33.9 per cent, lack of orders and completion of contracts being held responsible.

Secretary Perkins' report by States showed a 5.2 per cent decrease in employment in the District of Columbia. A total of 936 manufacturing and nonmanufacturing industries, exclusive of building construction, was included in the survey. The number on pay rolls was 33,307. One weekly pay roll during July amounted to $788,154, a decrease of 3.7 per cent compared to June.

Commissioner Lubin said the rise in wholesale commodity prices was due mainly to the continued increases in market prices of farm products and foods.

20 Swept to Sea By Gigantic Wave

2 on Fishing Party Drown, One Lost, Others Saved.

By the United Press.

Lookout Point, Long Island, Aug. 22.—A gay fishing outing suddenly turned to tragedy today when a huge wave swept the afterdeck of the fishing boat Atlantic, knocking overboard a score of the 37 men and women aboard.

A woman and a man were drowned and another man was reported missing. Nearby fishing boats rescued the others as they struggled in rough seas.

The dead were Mrs. Grace Geggenheimer, Baldwin, Long Island, and August Herlett, Glendale, Queens. The missing man was believed to be Charles Abramo, Brooklyn.

Capt. Thomas Carmen, of the Atlantic, a 65-foot boat which daily carries fishing parties to the banks, said the wave struck without warning.

"It was the biggest wave I ever saw in my life," he said.

District Funds Included In Third Deficiency Bill

Several small items for the District were included yesterday in the $92,000,000,000 third deficiency bill passed by the House.

Included were District Supreme Court mileage and fees of witnesses and jurors, $3,292.92; settlement of suits against the local government, $1,001.94, and payment of a claim against the District held by Vesta L. Watson, $23.

The measure probably will be pushed through the Senate before adjournment.

Reserve Banks Report Further Balance Boost

$37,000,000 in Last Week Brings Total to New High Mark.

By the Associated Press.

A further $37,000,000 advance in member bank reserve balances in the week ended August 21—bringing the total to a new high of $5,291,000,000—was reported yesterday by the Federal Reserve Board.

In its weekly statement of condition of Reserve banks, the board reported this total was approximately $2,680,000,000 in excess of legal requirements.

Monetary gold stocks touched another new high of $9,189,000,000 through the addition of $5,000,000 during the week. This total is $1,206,000,000 in excess of last year.

The condition statement said:

"The daily average volume of Federal Reserve Bank credit outstanding during the week ended August 21, as reported by the Federal Reserve banks, was $2,477,000,000, an increase of $1,000,000, compared with the preceding week and of $13,000,000, compared with the corresponding week in 1934.

On August 21 total Reserve Bank credit amounted to $2,468,000,000, a decrease of $9,000,000 for the week. This decrease corresponds with decreases of $53,000,000 in Treasury cash and deposits with Federal Reserve banks and $20,000,000 in non-member deposits and other Federal Reserve accounts and an increase of $5,000,000 in monetary gold stock, offset in part by increases of $37,000,000 in member bank reserve balances and $16,000,000 in money in circulation and a decrease of $16,000,000 in Treasury and national bank currency. Member bank reserve balances on August 21 were estimated to be approximately $2,680,000,000 in excess of legal requirements.

Relatively small changes were reported in holdings of discounted and purchased bills and in industrial advances. An increase of $4,000,000 in holdings of United States Treasury notes was offset by a decrease of $4,000,000 in holdings of Treasury bills.

Couzens Improves After 3d Operation

By the Associated Press.

Rochester, Minn., Aug. 22.—The condition of Senator James Couzens, of Michigan, was pronounced "very satisfactory" tonight after he had submitted to the last of a series of operations for several ailments.

His physicians said "there is no immediate danger" and predicted he would be able to leave the hospital within two weeks, if no complications develop.

His wife and son, Mayor Frank Couzens, of Detroit, were close by today as an abscessed left kidney was removed.

The Senator has been a patient here for six weeks undergoing surgical treatment for bladder and prostate trouble. He had undergone two previous operations.

His physicians said the patient was in "good spirits" and had enjoyed a hearty dinner last night, followed by a good rest.

The announcement followed a long series of conferences in which President Roosevelt, Secretary Morgenthau, Jesse Jones, head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation; Chester C. Davis, AAA administrator, and others participated. Two such conferences were held at the White House yesterday.

The new plan cuts through the Gordian knot into which the conflicting interests of cotton growers and cotton textile manufacturers have been tied. Manufacturers have been demanding cheaper cotton so that they can compete with Japan and other textile producing nations.

At the same time the South has been demanding maintenance of the price of cotton. The new plan is designed to accomplish both purposes.

At the same time there has been a growing complaint against the dwindling exportation of cotton. The new plan, by reducing the price, is expected to go at least to some extent toward relieving that situation. American exports during the year ended August 1 were about 5,000,000 bales, or 3,000,000 bales below normal.

Announcement of the new plan came only a day after a committee of the Cabinet advised against subsidizing export shipments of cotton. The new plan will in effect subsidize not only export sales but domestic sales.

"The Secretary of Agriculture and the Commodity Credit Corporation announced today with the approval of the President that a cotton loan plan would be put into immediate operation on the 1935 crop, which would assure cotton producers an average return of not less than 12 cents per pound on cotton grown in 1935.

"The Agricultural Adjustment Administration will make payments to cotton farmers to equal such difference, if any, as may exist between 12 cents and the average price of ⅞-inch middling cotton as reflected in the ten spot markets during the period from September 1 to January 1. This period is chosen as covering the harvest months. Such payments as may be made will be limited to the individual producer's actual production up to the amount of his Bankhead allotment.

"The Commodity Credit Corporation will offer a loan of 9 cents per pound at the farm, without recourse to the borrower, on 13/16-inch low middling cotton or better. This loan will enable any grower co-operating in the adjustment program to obtain a loan at once, and will permit him to market his cotton in an orderly fashion throughout the year. The rate of loan is obviously substantially below the present or prospective price levels.

"These offers will apply only to producers who are co-operating in the 1935 program and who agree to co-operate in the 1936 program."

Adjustments Being Made.

It was stated at the AAA that plans for a 1936 production program are being developed to adjust production to effective demand.

It was anticipated that under the new plan there would be a rush of farmers to market their crops beginning September 1. This, it is expected, will result in a substantial break in the market, in spite of the prediction that "obviously" it would not drop to 9 cents.

Another peculiar twist would, under extraordinary circumstances, permit a farmer to sell his cotton at 12 cents or more and still collect from the Government. If there should be a sudden demand, caused by war or some other eventuality, and the market should soar, the farmer might get more than 12 cents and still collect, if the average price over the four-month period remained less than 12 cents.

In other words, the amount of money the farmer actually gets for his cotton will have no bearing on the amount he collects from the Government, because the latter is fixed on the basis of an average price.

There is another possibility that a farmer might sell his cotton for 11 cents and if the average should be 10 cents, he would be able to collect 2 cents from the Government, thus making his price actually 13 cents. The system, of course, would work the other way. If a farmer should sell at a price below the average his actual return would be less than 12 cents.

The price of cotton yesterday was approximately 11¼ cents.

Heavy Demand Expected.

With the 1935 crop currently estimated at 11,798,000 bales, it was emphasized at the AAA that, at present levels of world consumption, domestic and foreign mills should require at least 11,500,000 bales of the 1935 crop and that with less than 1,000,000 bales of free cotton in the hands of the trade "a strong buying movement should result which would permit the new crop to move readily into consumptive channels." It is this "strong buying movement" on which the Administration is depending to keep the average price level from going too low.

Prospects for cotton consumption are much improved as compared with last season, it was stated by the AAA. Last month's domestic utilization was 9 per cent above July of last year.

The plan as developed, it was predicted, will assure cotton growers an income of about $700,000,000 for their lint cotton for 1935, exclusive of rental and benefit payments under existing contracts.

This compares with an income of $613,000,000 for lint cotton in 1934, $634,000,000 in 1933 and $424,000,000 in 1932.

Benefit payments for reduction in the cotton crop will not be affected by the new plan. Reduction last year was about 40 per cent under normal and this year about 33 per cent.

Disappointment with the new plan was expressed by Senator George (Democrat), Georgia, who declared it "will be disastrous to the entire cotton-growing South."

Utilities Man Tells of Feting Officials Here

tee appointments for the firm's representatives.

A telegram from Hopson to Robinson said: "B. K. is friendly to all politicians and C. U. is one of them. C. U. is a friend of ours except when his own interests are concerned, which is a good deal of the time."

"B. K." readily was identified as Kremer, but it was not until after a luncheon recess that Hopson was able to identify "C. U." as Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust Co., treasurer of the Democratic national committee and former Treasury aid to Secretary William H. Woodin.

Hopson said the telegram dealt with a business transaction in which the bank and a subsidiary of Associated Gas and Electric were interested.

"Do you know Amon Carter?" Senator Black suddenly asked.

"Oh, you're coming to that now," Robinson smiled.

The allusion was to an incident of last week. Chesley W. Jurney, Senate sergeant at arms, seeking Hopson with a Senate contempt citation, tried Robinson's hotel room. There he found, McIntyre, Robert, and Carter, Texas publisher.

Robinson said an arrangement had been made for a number of old friends to dine together and because some were uncertain of their plans, it was agreed that all should meet at his hotel room and then go to dinner.

"I've never talked with Mr. McIntyre alone in my life," he said. "I've never talked with him except when there were ladies present."

Besides having dinner with Hurja and Mrs. Hurja, Robinson said he was a guest several times at their home.

Time after time, Robinson nervously expostulated that the committee was asking "unfair questions," but Black pressed on. Twice Senaotr Schwellenbach (Democrat), Washington, warned the witness that the questions required answers, "not impertinent remarks."

In Washington he said he merely led his normal life, with much social activity, many parties, meeting many people. Friends frequently dropped by his apartment, he said, but no Senator had ever visited him and just one Representative. The latter, he said, "invited himself up."

"You entertained extensively?" asked Senator Gibson (Republican), Vermont.

"Yes sir."

"And the entertainment was paid for by Mr. Hopson?"

Robinson protested that only a part of his expenses came from Associated Gas—"All but $1,600," he said, out of $7,200 spent in five months.

"What was the purpose of your coming to Washington?"

"I tried to use what in my business we call indirect salesmanship."

"Explain that, please, as applied to the Wheeler-Rayburn bill."

"Well * * * You can't antagonize people by asking how they will vote or tell them what will happen to them if they don't vote your way. But they don't get annoyed if you tell them your experiences in connection with the utilities companies."

"Who did you tell them to?"

"Well, I told it to Senator Murray, of Montana, where I come from."

"He voted for the bill, didn't he?"

"Yes, he did."

Robinson said at that point he had talked also with Senator Russell (Democrat), Georgia, and Senator McCarran (Democrat), Nevada, protesting an inability to remember with accuracy.

"I didn't call around at offices," he asserted with spirit.

"Where did you talk to them?"

"Oh, around the lobbies," explaining later that this meant hotel lobbies.

An arrangement made by Robinson for two newspapermen to call him and tell whether a scheduled speech by President Roosevelt attacked the Associated Gas and Electric system by name was disclosed.

Chairman Black asked if Robinson had received information ahead of time on the President's speech.

"Yes, sir," Robinson replied.

"Where did you get that information?" Black asked.

"From several sources," Robinson replied. He then mentioned John Snure, jr., a Washington newspaperman, and a man named "Gridley," who, he said, was a representative of the Denver Post.

"Did somebody at the White House refuse to tell you?" Black asked. Robinson said he did not recall.

"Mr. Stephenson refused to tell you, didn't he?" Black persisted.

Robinson said he had not talked to F. M. Stephenson, the Associated Press reporter assigned to the White House.

Black handed him a telegram he had sent saying:

"Stevens, White House A. P. man, now says release 8 o'clock stop Have two angels who will contact me stop Will phone as soon as I hear, if out will wire you stop. All say no change of personal attack on any individual."

Robinson said he called Snure on Saturday before the Sunday of the speech, April 28, and said he had information that the Associated was to be attacked.

"He said, 'I don't think so,'" Robinson testified.

The witness corrected his testimony to say that at the time in question he did not know Gridley, so he could not have been involved.

"Who were your two angels?" Schwellenbach asked.

"Smith said two newspapermen had promised to call me if we were mentioned in the speech," Robinson replied.

He added that about 7:45 on the night of the speech someone called him and said the speech did not mention Hopson or associates.

"Who called you?" Schwellenbach asked.

"I have already told you I don't know."

F. M. Stephenson said, when told of the Robinson telegram:

"I do not know Robinson or anyone connected with his company. I never told him anything."

Selassie Moves To Bar Attacks Against Italians

Death Threat to Warriors Follows Accidental Shooting of Consul.

By the Associated Press.

Addis Ababa, Aug. 22.—Emperor Haile Selassie, faced with severe difficulty in holding his warriors in check, has threatened with death any Ethiopian who menaces or assaults an Italian, it was learned tonight.

This followed upon the shooting of Baron Muzzi Falconi, an Italian consul, while he was on a fishing trip. Ethiopian officials described the affair as accidental.

Baron Falconi tonight also described the shooting as purely an accident. He was seriously injured, but attaches of the Italian Hospital here, where he was brought today, said they were hopeful of his recovery.

A general mobilization has not been proclaimed in Ethiopia, but concentration of troops has been proceeding quietly for weeks.

Studies British Moves.

With his American adviser, Edward Everett Colson, at his side, Emperor Haile Selassie tonight tensely awaited and then studied news of the action by the British cabinet, but there was no immediate comment.

Foreign merchants here, fearing Italian aviators may drop bombs if war starts, are panicky and are moving goods outside the capital. Insurance against war jumped in rates again today.

Ethiopian officials said Baron Falconi (whose wife London said is the daughter of the British minister to Ethiopia) was on his way by caravan to his post at Debre Marcos when he was accidentally shot.

U. S. Embargo a Blow.

The emperor was greatly disturbed by news the American Senate had adopted a resolution forbidding munitions shipments abroad in case of war. He had placed his main hope upon American munitions companies to supply arms which are needed imperatively.

The Ethiopian army began construction today of a strategic road from Hawash through Tchertcher Province to British Somaliland. Another military road has been completed from Addis Ababa to Sudan, which, in the event of an air raid upon the capital, may enable Americans and others to flee the country.

Through an arrangement with the emperor American physicians, under Dr. Robert Hackman, chief of the American hospital, will inoculate the Ethiopian army against smallpox, typhoid and cholera. This was said to be the largest single job of inoculation ever attempted in Africa.

The Falconi shooting, which at first threatened to assume grave ramifications, simmered down.

Sixteenth St. Change To Madison Ave. Asked

Sixteenth street, once known as the "Avenue of the Presidents," would be given a new name if Representative McSwain (Democrat), South Carolina, had his way.

He introduced a bill yesterday to change the name of the thoroughfare to Madison avenue in honor of President James Madison.

McSwain referred to Madison as "the father of the Constitution" and said the street should be renamed before 1937, which will be the 150th anniversary of the Philadelphia constitutional convention.

Japanese Held Ready to Yield On Navy Parity

Are Expected to Demand Upper Limit on Tonnage for All Powers.

pan's observations are substantially as follows:

1. Japan insists inflexibly upon the common upper limit principle. If the other powers do not accept this, further discussion of naval limitation is useless and Japan will not attend a conference.

2. However, if the other powers agree to include a statement of that principle in their declarations, Japan would not object to consideration of an agreement whereby each power would unilaterally declare a six-year building program, beginning in 1937, within the scope of such a common upper limit as may be agreed upon.

Newspapers said there were strong indications, of which the Associated Press found support recently in high official quarters, that Japan was willing to depart somewhat from strict parity.

The Rengo (Japanese) News Agency said officials were anxiously awaiting indications of the United States Government's attitude.

Austrian Science Group Produces 'Liquid Meat' is frequently employed to interpret the government's attitude, provides further evidence of Italy's intention to pursue an aggressive policy at the meeting of the council of the League of Nations September 4.

Informed sources disclosed Italy intends to demand Ethiopia's ejection from the League on the ground she failed to fulfill the conditions under which she was admitted.

An excellent source said Italy would allege slavery still exists in Ethiopia, that its borders have not been clearly defined and that the central government has not been able to extend its authority over all outlying parts of the empire. The League imposed these three conditions upon Ethiopia in 1923.

Italy Begins Maneuvers

By the United Press.

Bolzano, Italy, Aug. 22.—With Germany a "theoretical enemy," half a million Italian troops massed on the northern frontier tonight prepared for a week of maneuvers to demonstrate that the East African campaign will not dilute Italy's power in central Europe.

Commanders had taken their positions and were scanning maps awaiting the zero hour Sunday when Italian soldiers simulating the enemy from the north will pour down through Alpine passes.

Roads leading toward the frontier were filled tonight with all manner of military transport. Fast armored tanks sped past lumbering trucks and mule teams carrying mountain artillery. Every type of armament is to be tested upon Premier Benito Mussolini's order to "find out what would happen in case of attack from the north."

Berlin Decries News Reports Of Huge Blaze

Radio Fair Continues as Papers Launch New Attack on Jews.

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, Aug. 22.—Citizens on their way to work today read huge placards announcing continuation of the radio exposition and attacking foreign correspondents and foreign broadcasting stations.

"In their fertile imagination they have seen the entire radio fair aflame," the posters said, referring to reports of Monday night's fire, which destroyed Hall No. 4 and historic exhibits.

In their papers the citizens read new attacks on the Jews. The anti-Semitic weekly, Der Stuermer, reproduced the school composition of a fourth-grader who wrote: "The cuckoo is the Jew among birds." It also carried a photograph of 14 Danzig boys reading the paper and quoted one of them as saying: "If the entire German youth learns to hate the Jews as it does lice, fear and the pest, we will at last get rid of this parasite. And we will succeed!"

Merchants Segregated.

The Nazi Party management at Goerlitz announced today that it has at last cleansed its annual fair of Jewish dealers by relegating them to two corners. Its announcement said: "Henceforth German purchasers are no longer in danger of buying from Jews. In the newly created Jewish corner, the offspring of Moses and Abraham can gesticulate unhampered, but Germans have no business there."

The Catholic bishops meeting at Fulda ended their discussion of church and state problems as secretly as they started them Tuesday. If any decision was reached concerning how Catholics will protect themselves in Nazi Germany, several weeks will elapse before it is announced officially.

The belief prevailed, however, that the bishops had decided to attempt to reach a new agreement with the government and ask a redefining of the church's status.

Plan Sent to Rome.

The bishop's will return tomorrow to their various dioceses and Sunday's sermons may give an inkling of what transpired. Whatever plan for meeting the government's charges that some members of the clergy have been playing politics was drafted in the closing session and will be sent to Rome for approval and changes before being adopted or announced.

About 50 Nazi Storm Troopers drove through the streets of Berlin in trucks bearng signs, "Don't buy from the Jews" and "Those who attack us will be beaten up."

A speaker standing in the truck briefly exhorted his listeners to observe racial consciousness. At short intervals a chorus of his colleagues shouted in unison "Judah perish!" The demonstration passed without disorder.

The nonparty newspapers in the Rhineland were banned for three days by the district governor at Duesseldorf for "violation of the decree for protection of people of the state."

The propaganda ministry said the papers had printed distorted reports about a court session.

Flag Torn Down.

The careful effort to avoid fresh clashes with the Nazis, which strongly marked the bishops' meeting at Fulda, was intensified because of an incident, it was revealed today, which happened Tuesday night.

The papal yellow and white flag was torn down by unknown persons from its mast in front of the cathedral.

The papal flag was flown during the conference from Fulda business houses as well as from Catholic churches.

Authorities announced today the holding of the first "Jewless" cattle market at Fulda, while a list of all Jewish concerns to be boycotted was posted alongside the advertising box of the anti-Semitic Der Stuermer outside of town.

Wise to Address Zionist Congress

Rabbi Demands a Full Discussion on Reich.

By the Associated Press.

Lucerne, Switzerland, Aug. 22.—Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, of New York, was invited today to address the World Zionist Congress on Jewry's position throughout the world after he had demanded a full discussion of the situation in Germany.

Rabbi Wise spoke to a special group of the congress today.

"The German situation must and will be discussed," he said. "Neither the terrorism of Paul Joseph Goebbels, Nazi minister of propaganda, nor the timidity of his victims can silence the congress regarding this crime of the ages, the Nazi assault on freedom and civilization."

Kondouriotis, Greek Admiral, Is Dead at 80

First President Was Long Ill; Gunboat Carrying Body to Hydra Isle.

By the Associated Press.

Athens, Aug. 22.—Admiral Paul Kondouriotis, 80-year-old first President of the Greek Republic and one of the nation's most respected figures, died today.

He will be buried on his native island of Hydra, to which his body is being transported by the gunboat Hydra for a public funeral.

The former President, who held that office from 1924 until 1926, lately had been embittered by the implication of his son in the revolt of last March. He had long been ill.

Admiral Kondouriotis was a naval hero of the Greco-Turkish War of 1897 and of the first Balkan War of 1912-13.

His son, Theodore, will not be able to attend the funeral, as he is a fugitive abroad under sentence of death for participation in the revolt.

Admiral Kondouriotis was the first to carry the Greek naval flag to the United States when as commander of the warship Admiral Miaoulis he visited America in 1900 and was received by President McKinley.

Such was the confidence placed in him by his compatriots in the United States that they requested him 20 years later to undertake the distribution of their large subscriptions for the relief of the Greek refugees from Asia Minor.

After the tragic death of King Alexander from the results of a monkey bite, he was appointed regent, but after the defeat of Venezelos at the November elections, he summoned Rhalles to the premiership and then resigned, retiring for a time abroad.

In March, 1924, on the proclamation of the republic, Kondouriotis became its first President.

He had no personal interest to serve, and although his term of office at times was distasteful to him, he consistently sacrificed his own convenience to patriotic considerations. He resigned the presidency in 1926.

Italy's African Army Estimated at 178,000

London, Aug. 22 (U.P.).—Total Italian strength in East Africa does not exceed 178,000 men, official returns of the Suez Canal Co. for the six months ended June 30 indicated tonight.

To June 30, 84,185 Italian "military passengers" passed through the canal toward the south and 6,402 returned, leaving approximately 78,000 in Africa. Since that date, 51 Italian ships passed through for Massawa or Mogadisso. These probably carried 30,000 to 40,000 men. Garrison troops before January 1 were believed to total 50,000.

Britain Ready To Show Force In Curbing Italy

with Downing street, as further special meetings may be called if necessary, it was said. The main decisions have been made, however, Ramsay MacDonald pointed out.

George Lansbury, Labor leader in the House of Commons, commenting upon the cabinet decision said, "So far, the cabinet is unanimous. The tussle will come when they get to Geneva and it becomes necessary for Britain to say where she stands in regard to the covenant irrespective of what France may say."

In an address to 2,000 poor children from the East End, Lansbury today declared:

"I beg of you not to think war is inevitable. It is not. We must not give in to Mussolini, Hitler and such people, but must do everything to preserve peace and save our children from such terrors as poison gas."

Geneva Is Astounded

Geneva, Aug. 22 (AP).—Reports the British cabinet had decided upon a policy of proposing military and naval sanctions against the aggressor in the event of an Italo-Ethiopian war created a sensation tonight in League of Nations circles.

Even economic and financial sanctions never have been imposed by the League.

Provision for use of military, naval and air forces is contained in a punitive article of the covenant, but this provision has been generally regarded as a "dream."

Japan was condemned by the League after her conquest of Manchuria, but no one proposed penalties against her.

The first reaction here to the British attitude was that the British deemed the situation a menace to England's imperial interests and a potential danger to the peace of Europe.

Should peace efforts fail and the British induce League members to join in an effective blockade against Italy, it was said, the League might become a mighty organism for the repression of wars, since a precedent will have been created.

League circles foresaw huge peace pressure upon Mussolini and attached significance to Britain's announced determination to continute peace efforts.

Any attempt to impose sanctions, it was pointed out, must be by unanimous vote of the Council, not counting the vote of Italy.

If this unanimity is not achieved any dissenting Council member can therefore block the sanctions.

So tremendous is the issue involved that leaders here anticipate a tumultuous session both of the Council and the League assembly in September.

Neutrality Plan Is Due to Pass After Limiting not kill all legislation on the subject now.

They fear, however, that unless they accept the House amendments limiting the effectiveness of the mandatory embargo provision there will be no legislation at all at this time. For that reason the Senate bloc will not go beyond the motions of denouncing the time limitation when the resolution comes back to them.

Chairman Sam D. McReynolds of the House Foreign Affairs Committee last night filed with the House the revised Senate resolution. He will go before the House Rules Committee this morning to request a rigid rule, preventing amendments from the floor, and later in the day the measure will come up for a vote. The Senate is expected to accept the House amendments without sending the resolution to conference.

Fears Trade Pressure.

Senator Gerald P. Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, leader of the neutrality bloc, said he opposed the time limitation because he feared that if a war broke out abroad this fall there would be heavy pressure against extending the resolution next winter from American cotton and wheat farmers, oil and copper interests and others wishing to profit from the conflict.

But he indicated that he had hope the revised measure could be stopped, without preventing all legislation on the subject, and that consequently it was the "best possible compromise." But Congress must make its first task next year the passage of "a comprehensive neutrality program, comprising not alone the provisions of the Senate resolution, but also dealing with loans, credits, discounts, contraband and war profits," he said.

Telegrams Flow In.

The President accepted the compromise despite violent opposition on the part of the State Department. There it was believed the President should have fought down the mandatory provision at any cost, because, as it was explained, the measure, even though temporary, may create a situation which would draw the Nation into war instead of keeping it out.

But the political pressure behind the movement to pass some kind of neutrality legislation was too great to resist. From the moment that the Nye-Bone-Clark bloc in the Senate suddenly unloosed its fight last Tuesday to force action on neutrality legislation, Capitol Hill has been bombarded by telegrams and letters from peace organizations as well as individuals applauding the movement.

In the House a real sentiment existed in favor of such legislation, indicated by the fact that Representative Maury Maverick (Democrat), of Texas, one of the leaders in the movement in that body, had no trouble whatever Wednesday afternoon and yesterday morning in obtaining more than 100 members to sign a petition demanding passage of the mandatory Senate bill.

Fear House Revolt.

House leaders were convinced that if given an opportunity a majority of that body would vote to substitute the Senate mandatory measure in place of the McReynolds discretionary bill, illustrated by the decision not even to let the House have an opportunity today to vote to strike out the time limit.

Moreover, the President was fully aware that if he blocked all neutrality legislation at this session of Congress and war developed abroad his action would generally be misunderstood and would provide excellent political ammunition for his opponents.

This situation which developed virtually overnight was too precarious politically to resist and consequently the President found himself forced to part with his State Department advisers. Thus he accepted the Senate resolution, limited, however, until February 29.

Four Amendments Offered.

The resolution reported to the House last night by McReynolds was identical with the Senate measure, except for four amendments. Most important was an amendment at the end of section 1 which provides for the mandatory arms embargo.

"Except with respect to prosecutions committed or forfeitures incurred prior to March 1, 1936, this section and all proclamations issued thereunder shall not be effective after February 29, 1936," this amendment provided.

Another amendment struck from the membership of the proposed National Munitions Control Board the chairmen of the House Affairs and the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, respectively. A third amendment required all munitions makers registered by this board to keep permanent records of production for export and of importations and exportations of arms. The fourth raised from $20,000 to $25,000 the sum appropriated for the board's expenses.

Must Recognize War.

Under the time limitation clause the provision that the President whenever war breaks out abroad shall proclaim that fact and that thereafter it shall be unlawful to export arms, ammunitions or implements of war, as enumerated by the President, to any of the belligerents, expires February 29.

The third section of the resolution, which makes it unlawful for American ships to carry any arms or implements of war to any port of the belligerent countries or to a neutral port for transshipment to a belligerent, also expires February 29. The Senate resolution was published in full in The Post Wednesday.

The remainder of the resolution, however, is unaffected by the time limitation and consequently constitutes permanent legislation until repealed by Congress. These provisions which will remain in force after March 1 are:

Discretionary authority to the President to require bond of any vessel suspected to carrying men or supplies to a belligerent ship at sea.

Discretionary authority to the President to restrict or close the territorial waters or ports of the United States to belligerent submarines.

Discretionary authority to the President to prohibit American citizens from traveling on ships of belligerent nations, except at their own risk, unless in flight from a country at war.

The House committee unanimously approved the amended resolution, but only after the Republicans present moved to strike out the time limitation. When this failed they voted to report the measure but reserved the right to vote to strike out the time limitation if given an opportunity on the House floor.

Earlier in the day the committee rejected the Senate resolution by a vote of 15 to 6, after McReynolds read a memorandum from the President opposing a mandatory arms embargo as permanent legislation. A sub-committee was then appointed to formulate the compromise, subsequently approved by the committee.

Meanwhile the President conferred with Chairman Key Pittman, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, at luncheon. On returning to the Capitol, Pittman attended the executive session of the House sub-committee. McReynolds discussed the situation by telephone with the President and received his approval for the compromise, it was understood.

Oklahoma City Rites Are Held For Wiley Post

Guardsmen Keep Order as Throngs Fight to Attend Services.

By the Associated Press.

Oklahoma City, Aug. 22.—Goodby to Wiley Post was said today in simple services as the airman's body rested beneath a flowered reproduction of his glove-circling plane, the Winnie Mae.

The First Baptist Church was filled to overflowing. More hundreds gathered outside. These included a host unable to get into the Oklahoma capitol earlier for the State's tribute.

Post's widow and mother made their way with difficulty to the family's shielded section of the church. A purple screen separated the relatives from the more than 2,000 within the building.

There was a prayer, a quartet sang "Lead, Kindly Light," and the Rev. W. R. White spoke a brief sermon.

The name of Will Rogers was linked with that of Post throughout the eulogy. Post and Rogers died in an Alaskan plane crash.

Guardsmen Keep Order.

"May we join in the hope that he and his pal soared beyond the stratosphere, and that some day sorrowing ones left behind will be called up to meet them in the air, to be forever with the Lord."

He read from Isaiah: "Who are these that fly as a cloud, and as the doves to their windows?"

Close friends of Post, including large numbers of the flying fraternity, and officials were the first to enter the church before the service.

The mass of humanity which had been evident all through the morning at the capitol shoved against the entrances, and National Guardsmen were called upon to restore order.

The Winnie Mae in blossoms sat high above the pulpit, a fragrant mass of white and purple blooms upon a base of purple velvet. All about the bronze casket flowers were banked high; on one side was the American flag, on the other was a reproduction of the flag in flowers.

Eulogy By Governor.

The earlier ceremony at the capitol was climaxed with a brief eulogy by Gov. E. W. Marland, who spoke as a crowd of more than 15,000 persons clamored about all floors of the large limestone building. A section of the heavy marble railing about the rotunda collapsed but no one was injured.

From the sunny sky above came the drone of circling airplanes piloted by Post's buddies. Long banners of somber crepe sailed behind them. When the body was removed they roared low and showered blossoms.

"Wiley Post has come home to rest," the Governor said. "His spirit in company with the spirit of Oklahoma's Will Rogers, his pal, takes its flight to that bourne from which no traveler ever returns * * *

"At this hour, at this moment, the people of this State, the people of the United States everywhere, pause in their earthly tasks or pleasures to do them honor.

"We who are assembled here, their Oklahoma kinsmen and friends, can but say to our dear departed—

"Fare thee well, Will Rogers; fare thee well, Wiley Post.

"Happy landing!"

Frederick's Aid Asked For Library Project

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., Aug. 22.—Former State Senator Jacob Rohrback, on behalf of the trustees of the C. Burr Artz Library Fund, asked the mayor and aldermen at a meeting last night to appropriate $2,000 to aid in the maintenance of a proposed library during the coming year.

Rohrback said the trustees are about to take over the old Frederick Academy Building and remodel it into a library site at a cost of about $40,000 from a fund left under the will of Mrs. Margaret E. S. Hood for library purposes. In addition the trustees have about $30,000 from the Artz Fund to be used as a source of income.

Gaming Ship Burns After an Explosion

Long Beach, Calif., Aug. 22 (U.P.).—The gambling barge Casino, once fastest lumber ship on the Pacific Coast, burned to the water's edge late today following explosion of a gasoline engine.

Three men, all caretakers and the only ones aboard the luxurious gaming craft, were burned seriously and forced to jump overboard.

The men, Walter Camlett, 35; Tom Vermilyea, 46, and George Richardson, 24, were picked up by boats lowered from the nearby gambling boat Monte Carlo.

Mrs. Pritchard Died In Her Own House

It was stated in yesterday's Post that Mrs. Lillian Pritchard, wife of a former United States Senator, died penniless in an M-street rooming house.

This was an error, which The Post regrets.

The house in which Mrs. Pritchard died was built by her father more than 50 years ago and has been the Pritchard residence since. Mrs. Pritchard lived there alone and never took roomers. Her poverty was caused by loss of funds through bank failures.

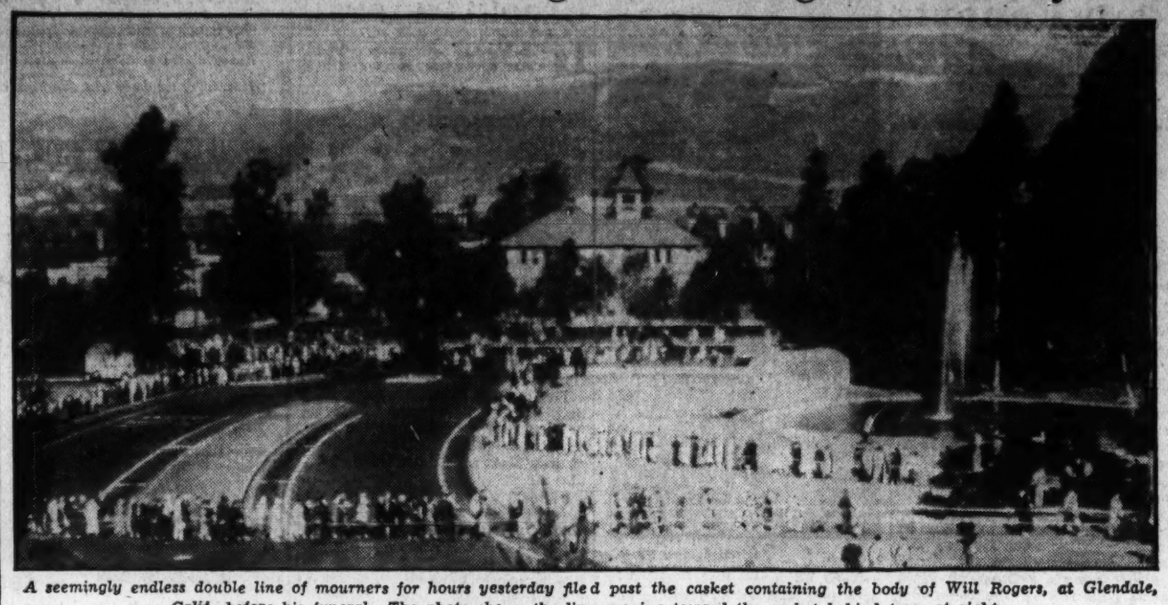
Services will be held at the George S. Wise funeral parlors, 2900 M street northwest, at 11 a. m.

Mrs. Smith is survived by a son, George M. Smith, also a member of the Naval Lodge. Her husband died in 1923.

Thousands Render Last Homage to Will Rogers and Wiley Post



A seemingly endless double line of mourners for hours yesterday filed past the casket containing the body of Will Rogers, at Glendale, Calif., before his funeral. The photo shows the line moving toward the casket behind trees at right.

Associated Press WIREPHOTOS.

The funeral of Wiley Post yesterday drew a larger crowd than any other in the history of Oklahoma. This picture shows the thousands waiting at the entrance to the Statehouse as the flier's body was removed to the First Baptist Church after lying in state.

Only a mere handful of Rogers' thousands of friends were able to say farewell in the little cemetery chapel, Wee Kirk o' the Heather. There were services in Los Angeles, Hollywood, Beverly Hills and a dozen other places.

Every Hollywood studio stopped work and turned for the time being a world of make-believe into a real chapel of sorrow.

The first of those who flocked to the quiet funeral scene were there at 3:15 a. m. At dawn, before the gates were opened, nearly 30,000 had come.

Some expressed disappointment because the plain bronze casket was not opened so they could get a glimpse of the body.

A family spokesman explained this course was followed because of wishes expressed many times by the beloved comedian, himself.

When the crowds began filing through the gates, they saw ahead, in the shape of a 980-foot horseshoe, a roped-off route across the lawn. Near the apex of the arc, they saw a coffin.

It lay under a blanket of roses and cornflowers, in the colors of the national emblem—the flag of the United States—done in 30,000 flowers.

Eight noncommissioned Army officers, four on either side, stood rigidly at attention, as a guard of honor. Every half-hour, a new guard was posted.

It was of these men, and their like, that Rogers once said, when asked if flying didn't frighten him, "Why, say, y' know, there's always an aviator in the ship. And, believe me, his life is a lot more important than mine."

It was a hot day. The wind was in from the desert, and a coppery sun was crushing, even in the cool of the park.

Coats came off, ties were unloosed, women fanned themselves. A child, half asleep in her mother's arms, fretted. Except for this, there was hardly a motion or a sound among the crowd at the gates.

When the gates were closed, shutting out still others who would have joined, eight soldiers lifted the casket and bore it into the chapel. There were spoken the last words Rogers' adopted State could say to its best-loved citizen.

As the 125 closest friends filled the little church, a pipe organ softly sounded the first strains of the "Old Rugged Cross," moving from this to other familiar airs Rogers had heard as a boy in a country church—"In the Cross of Christ I Glory," "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," "Saved by Grace" and "I Love to Tell the Story."

The Rev. J. Whitcomb Brougher, former pastor of Tremont Temple, Boston, and the Temple Baptist Church, Los Angeles, said a brief prayer and read from the Scriptures.

Mr. Brougher spoke briefly as a long-time friend of Will Rogers, the man. A prayer followed the address and John Boles, actor, sang, "Old Faithful," one of Rogers' favorite songs, the tribute of a cowboy to his horse.

Mr. Brougher pronounced the benediction and as the service ended the organ's notes sounded again, playing "Nearer, My God, to Thee," "Abide With Me."

As the services were being held at Forest Lawn 20,000 persons assembled in Hollywood Bowl—huge amphitheater in the heart of Hollywood—to hear Rupert Hughes tell of his friend. Lawrence Tibbett gave a musical tribute.

In Beverly Hills the Presbyterian Community Church was filled with friends and former neighbors. Clergymen of four faiths spoke. Ruth Etting sang.

Many well-known men of the clergy and the stage joined in services held at motion-picture studios. At Twentieth Century-Fox, Rogers' "home lot," the Rev. Josiah Hopkins and George Jessel, comedian, joined in the eulogies.

At Warner Brothers, the Rev. Herbert Booth Smith spoke for the world outside while Al Jolson paid the tribute of the players and studio staff.

Bishop W. Bertrand Stevens and Louis B. Mayer spoke at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Nelson Eddy sang "Old Faithful."

Other studios paid their tributes in song. At Universal Irene Dunn sang. Solos were given at United Artists by Nino Martini.

Snell Blocks Rogers Burial in Arlington

Representative Bertrand H. Snell, New York Republican, yesterday blocked authorization of an Arlington Cemetery burial for Will Rogers, although he explained he was "hurt and embarrassed" to do so, the United Press reported

"I was a friend of Will Rogers," he said, "but so far as I can find, such a thing has never been done before. If we make an exception now there will be other requests later as other great men die. The soil of Arlington is hallowed ground reserved exclusively for those who have served in the Nation's armed forces."

Both Democrats and Republicans applauded of amendments likely to inspire debate.

"I have nothing against the Government eemployes," McKellar said. "My only thought is that legislation of this type should apply to all employes alike. At the coming session I'll be perfectly willing to go into the matter again."

The annual leave bill would have increased such time off to 30 days instead of 15, as provided by the economy act. The other measure would have fixed sick leave at 15 instead of 30 days a year, with a compensating clause permitting the time to accumulate up to 120 days if unused.

The District Commissioners asked for funds to last until January 1, when another appropriation will be asked.

Vigilantes Tar, Feather 2 Reds In California

3 Other Alleged Strike Agitators Beaten by 400 'Night Riders.'

By the Associated Press.

Santa Rosa, Calif., Aug. 22.—Grim vigilantes vanished into anonymity tonight after tarring and feathering two men and thrashing three others in violent raids on asserted "communistic agitators."

The night riders, numbering nearly 400, attacked their victims early today amid the crackle of gunfire and the bursting of gas bombs. They accused the frightened prisoners of "agitating" among fruit pickers in the rich field and orchard area.

The tar-and-feather victims, Jack Green and Solomon Nitzburg, were reported "absent from the county" tonight, nor could whereabouts of the other victims be ascertained. Vigilante spokesmen believed they had fled—"for good, after the lesson they got."

Sheriff Harry Patteson said, "I don't plan any action unless there is a complaint made—and I don't anticipate any complaints."

In San Francisco, the Northern California committee of the American Civil Liberties Union protested to State Attorney General U. S. Webb, demanding an "immediate investigation." The attorney general said he proposed to take no action unless officially informed of the incident.

The raids were precipitated, spokesmen for the vigilantes said, by recalcitrance of the alleged agitators. A mass meeting of "unemployed workers" had been scheduled last night, in defiance of an ultimatum issued by the vigilantes two weeks ago directing "all Reds to clear out and stay out of Sonoma County."

The night riders said "communistic agitators" had persuaded fruit pickers to strike for wage increases. The pay generally is 25 cents an hour and 40 cents was asked.

Santa Rosa is the center of a rich fruit-growing area. The harvesting of Gravenstein apples, an early variety favored in foreign markets, is under way.

Chicago Scientists Discover New Comet in Constellation

D. C. Women Outlive Men, Statistics Show

Maybe the modern can opener has something to do with it, or maybe they know a couple of secrets—anyway, Washington women outlive the local male population by 3 years and 23 days.

According to recent statistics of the District Health Department, the average Washington woman lives to be 57 years 2 months and 2 days old. The men take a back seat with an average life span of 54 years and 2 months.

Taken as a whole, local residents (at birth) may expect to live 50 years 1 month and 5 days. That, the Health Department says, is the average length of life in Washington and its immediate suburbs.

First Seen on Photographic Plate; Astromoners Study Course.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 22.—Sagittarius, the heavenly archer, shot a brand new comet from his bow in the southern sky tonight.

Like a little wisp of smoke, it drifted slowly among the stars just off the Milky Way.

Wither it sped—for it was speeding, although from this distance it seemed a snail's pace—scientists couldn't yet be sure, for they hadn't seen it long enough.

George Van Biesbroech, astronomy professor at the Yerkes Observatory of the University of Chicago at Williams Bay, Wis., saw it first Tuesday night as a tiny speck of light on a photographic plate.

He was studying an asteroid through a 24-inch reflector telescope, when he saw the spot of light and suspected it might be a comet. He took more pictures last night through the observatory's 40-inch refractor telescope, and today Dr. Otto Struve, director, announced the discovery.

The comet is of the fourteenth magnitude, and can't be seen except with powerful lenses. It has no tail, because it hasn't come close enough to the sun to grow one. It is traveling toward the northwest, near star 55 of the Sagittarius constellation. It is 20 seconds in size, which means it takes up that much space on the heavenly map. Each degree has 60 minutes, and each minute 60 seconds.

The comet is farther from the sun than is the earth, Dr. Struve said, but whether it's coming this way hasn't been determined.

Heir to Estate Of Rockefeller Nephew Dies

Survived Her Husband Only 11 Months; Was Left $9,000,000.

By the Associated Press.

Greenwich, Conn., Aug. 22.—Mrs. Isabel Stillman Rockefeller, 59-year-old widow of Percy A. Rockefeller, died late today at her palatial Lake avenue estate after a long illness.

Mrs. Rockefeller, who was the daughter of James Stillman, the New York banker, outlived her husband by a little less than 11 months. She had been seriously ill for three months.

She was the sole heir to her husband's estate, which recently was appraised in Probate Court here at more than $9,000,000.

Percy Rockefeller, nephew of John D. Rockefeller, died September 25, 1934.

Mrs. Rockefeller, who was born in New York City April 29, 1876, leaves a son, Avery, in Greenwich, and four daughters—Mrs. Frederick W. Lincoln, jr., of New York and Greenwich; Mrs. Brooks Emeny, of Greenwich; Miss Faith Rockefeller and Miss Gladys G. Rockefeller, both of Greenwich.

The Rockefellers were married in the spring of 1901 and moved to Greenwich about 1904. Mrs. Rockefeller was a sister of Mrs. William G. Rockefeller, who died last May. William and Percy Rockefeller were brothers.

Her activities in public life were limited, a member of the family said tonight, her preference being to remain with her children. She was, however, chairman of the board of the Miriam Osborn Memorial Home in Rye, N. Y.

Her late husband was the largest individual property owner in Greenwich and the estate where she died was assessed at $200,000.

The Percy Rockefeller real estate holdings in Greenwich were given an estimated value of $1,400,000.

Funeral services for Mrs. Rockefeller will be held in Ferncliff Mausoleum, at White Plain, N. Y., Saturday, with burial in Sleepy Hollow Cemetery, in Tarrytown, N. Y.

Wage Compromise Ends Missouri Mine Strike

Potosi, Mo., Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Massed along a country roadside near old mines, Washington County's tiff miners late today abandoned their "strike for a decent living" and accepted a wage compromise they had scorned earlier in the week.

About 1,200 of the 2,600 striking miners, assembled along the roadside for their first meeting with mine and mill operators since the strike began 18 days ago, voted unanimously to accept a wage increase of $1.50 a ton in the price paid them for tiff, a mineral used in paint manufacture. The existing rate was $3.50 a ton. Strikers will return to their jobs tomorrow morning.

Murder Victim Found in Mine Of the Sierras

Youth Confesses He Slew Retired Chicagoan in Row Over Rations.

By the Associated Press.

Auburn, Calif., Aug. 22. — The body of James G. Kennett, 55-year-old retired Chicago business man, was discovered in an abandoned Sierra Nevada mine shaft today after officers said a 21-year-old prospector had confessed killing him and an unidentified red-haired boy.

Kennett's body was found after water was cleared from a timber-choked shaft at Fulda Flat, not far from the shaft in which the red-haired boy's body was discovered several days ago.

The accused man, Earl (Bud) Kimball, alias Earl Cramer, appeared nonchalant in his cell while the officers were recovering the body from the shaft. He read newspaper accounts of his purported confession.

Sheriff's deputies considered the possibility that there might be another victim in the forbidding, pine-jungled forests of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, scene of the double slaying.

No trace has been found of Fred Realing, or Fred Griling, believed to be the same man who dropped from sight last October. In Sacramento, Ben Chaplan, a junk dealer, said Cramer knew Griling, or Realing and had shared his food with him.

Kimball denied any third killing, however, the officers said.

Kimball's purported confession came after circumstantial evidence in the form of forged checks, stolen clothes and letters pointed suspiciously at him.

Sheriff Elmer H. Gum said Kimball reported he met Kennett, who was in the mountains for his health, at Roseville, some 15 miles east of here and they decided to camp together.

Kimball said he and Kennett quarreled over supplies.

"He had a butcher knife," read the purported confession. "One word led to another. He struck at me. I had my .22 rifle and shot him in the head twice. I hit him in the head with an ax. * * * I dragged him down to the lower shaft and threw him in."

Cummings to Study Scotland Yard Work

Attorney General Cummings will leave for Europe next Wednesday to study "Scotland Yard."

Like the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the British "yard" and its famed criminal investigation division, are under the direction of a cabinet officer. Justice Department spokesmen said "Scotland Yard" has been following the United States example lately in seeking college-trained recruits.

McNutt Flouts Stand of G.O.P. OnConstitution

Indiana Governor Cites Record to Back Charge of Insincerity.

By the Associated Press.

Milwaukee, Aug. 22.—Gov. Paul V. McNutt, of Indiana, replying to Republican appeals to "Save the Constitution," said tonight the score was 17 to 6 against the G. O. P. in Supreme Court decisions.

Addressing a banquet on the eve of the Young Democrats national convention, the Indiana Governor asserted Republican "defenders of the Constitution" were being "strangled by their own insincerity."

Offers Record.

Gov. McNutt asked if the Republican speakers had consulted the record of Republican administrations before making their "demagogic attacks upon the President and Congress" and added that the record disclosed these facts:

"During the Harding, Coolidge and Hoover administrations the Republican Congress passed and a Republican Executive signed 17 important Administration measures which were declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court of the United States.

"Only six measures passed during the Roosevelt Administration have been declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court. The score shows 17 errors by the Republicans to 6 by the Democrats."

The Indiana banquet, given annually by the State's delegation, was the principal preconvention activity tonight as hundreds of delegates poured into the city by special train, boat and auto.

The convention starts tomorrow morning, with F. Ryan Duffy, United States Senator from Wisconsin, and Charles E. Broughton, Democratic national committeeman from Wisconsin, as principal speakers. The President will address the convention from Washington by radio Saturday night.

Charges Insincerity.

"Our political enemies," said Gov. McNutt, "are resorting to fake alarms in order to confuse the people. With no sincerity or concern they are attempting to further personal and partisan interests by branding the simplest and most obviously sensible suggestions of change as part of some sinister plot to communize the Nation and to destroy the Constitution. * * *

"Witness the efforts of the opposition to fertilize the 'grass roots' at Springfield a few weeks ago. The so-called platform of that convention was a typical Republican effort, an assortment of 'weasel words.'"

Gov. McNutt said he preferred to call the activities of the present Administration "a subsidy to humanity" rather than "the New Deal."

Man Is Drowned, Girl Burned In Outboard Blast on Potomac

An unidentified man was drowned and a girl seriously burned when an outboard motor boat exploded yesterday on the Potomac River, off Broad Creek, near the Maryland shore.

The girl was believed to be Miss Clara Tabler, pretty District tennis star, who lives in the Marcheta Apartments, on New Hampshire avenue.

She was saved from death in the muddy water by two youths who put out from shore in a rowboat.

Charles Hayden, 19, one of the youths, dived into the water and pulled the girl to safety from a depth of 10 feet. He and his companion then rowed to the Virginia side. There she was treated for burns to her arms and legs by Mrs. Eva Anderson.

"My friend jumped overboard after I did," she told Mrs. Anderson. "He was drowned."

To Mrs. Anderson and bystanders Miss Tabler murmured that her companion was named Starr or Stark, and that he lived in Washington.

The river was being dragged for the body of the victim late yesterday.

After she had been treated for her burns, the young woman was wrapped in a blanket and rushed to Washington.

Efforts to locate Miss Tabler in Washington hospitals proved futile.

Clarence Tabler, father of Miss Tabler, who lives in the Marcheta Apartments on New Hampshire avenue, where his daughter also resides, did not know with whom she had gone boating. He himself had not located his daughter.

When Hayden reached the girl, according to reports, she was on the verge of drowning.

"The engine exploded," she gasped, as she was pulled aboard the dory.

On the girl's pocketbook was discovered the initial "C." It also was reported a charred suitcase was discovered aboard the hulk of the boat.

It bore the inscription:

"D. C. Women's Singles Championship runner-up, 1931, Clara Tabler."

In 1934 Clara Tabler was ranked No. 3 in District women's tennis circles.

Tennis titles she has held include the Maryland State singles, 1930 and 1932, the Wardman Park singles, 1932, the Washington Grove singles, 1933, and the District of Columbia doubles in 1933 with Frances Krucoff, the Maryland State indoor mixed doubles with Frank Shore in 1932 and the District mixed doubles with Tony Latona in 1933.

In 1931 she came to Washington from California, where she had been a substitute teacher in high schools. After teaching here, she obtained a position in the soil conservation division of the Department of Agriculture.

Communism Held World Peace Hope

Dimitroff Says Capitalism Can't End Wars.

By the Associated Press.

Moscow, Aug. 22.—Georgi Dimitroff, newly elected secretary general of the Communist Internationale, said today an end can be put to wars only "through the overthrow of capitalism."

Dimitroff, whose meteoric rise in Communist officialdom followed upon his acquittal in the Reichstag fire trial in Germany, delivered the concluding address to the commintern congress.

"The real master of the world is the proletariat," he declared. "The present capitalistic rulers are only temporary."

Dimitroff, a native of Bulgaria, but now a Soviet citizen, said the present congress had "laid a foundation for such a broad mobilization of workers against capitalism as never before known in the history of the class struggle."

Cheap Product Found to Take Radium's Place

Radio-Active Substances to Be Produced on Large Scale Soon.

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, Aug. 22.—Production on a commercial basis of radio-active substances—some of which for many practical purposes are equivalent to radium itself—is near, the American Chemical Society was advised today.

Prof. E. O. Lawrence, of the University of California, said it appeared to be only a matter of a few months before laboratories will be turning out in short periods a greater output of radio-activity than now exists in all the radium yet produced.

The radiation life of most of these substances is short, ranging from an hour up to a couple of weeks, but for many medicinal purposes such as the treatment of cancer and for a number of industrial uses this, it is believed, will be adequate.

Just what "artificial radium" will cost as a marketed product has not been determined but it unquestionably will be inconsiderable in comparison to that of radium.

Dr. Lawrence and his associates now are able to produce in a ten-hour working day the radio-active equivalent, in potency, of 50 milligrams of radium, which would cost several thousand dollars. It is done by the atomic bombardment of table salt by the use of high voltage electricity. Other elements can and have been made radio-active ranging up to copper.

A possible step toward immunizing against tuberculosis and asthma was reported by Dr. Francis M. Pottenger, jr., of Monrovia, Calif.

Applied to humans, it has been found, he said, that an adrenal gland extract gives a stimulus when administered orally or by injection to arres tcases of tuberculosis wherein the patients were unable to return to normal pursuits because of lagging energy.

New Cold Vaccine

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 22.—A fresh inroad on the common cold, by a new "heterophile" vaccine made to drink, which reduced colds by 43.7 per cent last winter, was announced here today.

The actual reduction was 70 per cent among 399 persons. But from this was subtracted 26.3 per cent, credited as a fraction probably due to a mild common cold season.

In addition to the 399 with a 70 per cent cold reduction, the vaccine was used by 46 persons who had previously been troubled with virtually continuous colds.

Of these, 43 suffered less than one cold for the winter, and three reported absolutely no benefit.

The report is made in Science, the official organ of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, by George E. Rockwell and Hermann C. Van Kirk, of the University of Cincinnati department of bacteriology, and H. M. Powell, of the Lilly Research Laboratories, Indianapolis.

The vaccine is made from bacteria frequently found in the human throat, especially those likely to be there during colds. The bacteria are pneumonia, influenza, streptococci and catarrh.

Compensation Denied Levee Land Owners

By the Associated Press.

Efforts of property owners in the lower Mississippi Valley to obtain flowage rights compensation for lands affected by setting back levees were killed yesterday when President Roosevelt vetoed the setback levee bill introduced by Representative Wilson (Democrat), Louisiana, chairman of the House Flood-Control Committee.

The executive veto brought to a definite end legislation which had been worked upon for six years. The President's veto message to the House was brief. He said that because of objectoins to the bill by the War Department and Army engineers, "I do not feel that $ would be justified in giving my approval to this legislation."

Walker to Learn Status on Taxes

Cummings to Get Report on Ex-Mayor in Month.

By the Associated Press.

"Jimmy" Walker, a self-exiled former mayor of New York, will know "within a month" his income tax standing with the Government.

Attorney General Cummings yesterday set this time for a report from tax experts of the Justice Department. He said that whether the Government will ask that Walker be indicted will depend on the recommendations.

Tax specialists have been studying a report made to Washington by the Federal district attorney in New York, but Cummings refused to reveal opinions of the New York lawyers.

Walker lately was reported "broke" in London. Should the Government bring tax evasion charges against him, they will be laid before a Federal grand jury in New York for action. The Attorney General denied New York emmissaries had called on him in an attempt to settle Walker's case.

Fund Is Voted For Social Bill Amid Protests

House Republicans Shout as Third Deficiency for $92,000,000 Passes.

By the Associated Press.

Amidst Republican shouts of "Ten-billion-dollar Congress," the Administration's third and last major deficiency bill for this session—a $92,000,000 measure—yesterday was passed by the House and sent to the Senate.

The measure, making available $76,000,000 for starting the new social security plan, was presented suddenly by Chairman Buchanan (Democrat), of the House Appropriations Committee.

Rising just after the House had voted to consider the omnibus flood control measure, he asked for unanimous consent for suspension of the rules in order to bring the bill on the floor. To the amazement of Democratic leaders, he procured the permission.

Wants Outlay Reduced.

While urging passage of the bill, Buchanan warned the time had come for balancing the budget by "curtailing expenditures."

The social security appropriations were:

Old-age assistance, under which the Federal Government contributes up to $15 a month on a dollar-for-dollar matching basis to any pension paid by a State, $37,312,500.

Administration of State unemployment insurance systems, $3,000,000.

Federal contributions to State aid for dependent children, $18,562,500.

Aid to the blind, $2,250,000.

$2,137,000 for Cripples.

Maternal and child health services, $2,850,000; aid to crippled children, $2,137,000; child welfare services, $1,125,000; co-operative vocational rehabilitation of persons disabled in industry, $630,750.

Public health work, $6,000,000.

For administrative expenses, the bill would allot $1,000,000 to the new social security board, $200,000 to the Children's Bureau, $1,000,000 to the Public Health Service and $16,500 to the Office of Education.

The bill also would provide $13,000,000 for making a permanent agency of the new soil conservation service.

Tariff on Wood Pulp Will Be Reconsidered

By the Associated Press.

On motion of Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, the Senate yesterday reconsidered and sent back to its calendar the Borah resolution directing a Tariff Commission investigation of the differences in cost of production here and abroad of wood pulp and pulp wood.

The resolution was approved Wednesday. Robinson gave no reason for his action. Borah explained Wednesday he wanted to determine if the present tariff was adequate to protect large cut-over timber lands in Idaho and Washington suitable for wood pulp.

Senate Votes Measure To Curb Picket-Breaking

By the Associated Press.

The Senate yesterday passed and sent to the House the Byrnes bill making it a felony to transport in interstate commerce persons to be employed in obstructing peaceful picketing during labor controversies.

The author said four or five national agencies hire persons for this purpose and it invariably results in "bloodshed and disorder." Violators would be subject to a $5,000 fine and two years' imprisonment Byrnes said it would not apply to persons hired to take the places of employes on strike.

KATHARINE HEPBURN plays the role of Alice Adams in the flicker of that name. In the sequence of Alice Adams at the party, says Florence Sacks, Alice is seen holding a handkerchief on which there is a capital "H."

It is a little absurd to Jack Griffin that in "China Seas" the pirates should fail to wreck the cannon in the bow of the ship. The cannon is seen plainly in the opening scene, and would have halted them even if they did get the gold. Wallace Beery, says Griffin, kind of purposely overlooked this.

There is a very obvious boner in "Love Me Forever," writes Leo Gewirtz, and any auctioneer will tell it to you. Leo Carillo goes to the auction and raises his own bid, despite the fact that there is an auction law which states that a buyer is not permitted to raise his own bid.

Allen Jenkins is waiting in the dressing room in "The Irish in Us" before the fight, says C. Sevkora. Frank McHugh, Harvey Perry, the other fighter, and his manager are in the room. The telephone rings and Jenkins begins fighting. The phone rings merely to start this gag in the flicker—and then ceases. Obliging phone!

LESLIE BANKS in "Sanders of the River" has a carrier pigeon bring Paul Robeson a message. In doing this, says Marion Smith, the note would have to be folded. However, when Robeson reads the note, the paper is minus the marks of folding.

In "Ladies Love Danger," according to H. Kain, Mona Barrie explains that she entered Gilbert Roland's room by mistake. She says that his room was 734 and that she meant to enter 743, but being a little gay she didn't notice the slight difference.

The script girl, the director and others didn't notice the slight difference, either, says Kain, for Roland's room was plainly marked 932.

During the raid of the Federal agents in "Public Hero," writes B. Rabin, on the gangsters in the garage, cottage and the night club, the scene shows the bullets destroying the night club. Night clubs are generally frequented by patrons at night and yet there weren't any people in the club during the battle.

In "College Scandal," Arline Judge comes in from swimming in the lake and goes into her room in the shack. When Miss Judge is in her room, it is easy to see that a strap in back of her bathing suit is opened, says Hank Weil, who likes Arline Judge and finds her easy to look at.

The next scene shows Miss Judge, "without any excess movements," walking into another room where there's a typewriter. Now the bathing strap appears to have adjusted itself.

It must have been a censor who adjusted Arline's bathing suit. They are everywhere.

EDWARD G. ROBINSON plays a gangster and a meek clerk in "The Whole Town's Talking," and that's all right with Raymond Tilds; his flicker flaw concerns the story itself.

He objects to Mannion, the gangster, planning to have Jones, the clerk, bumped off by the police in a frame-up, because they—Mannion and Jones—look exactly alike.

"If Mannion were the genuine gangster he pretends to be," continues Tilds, "he would certainly know that Jones' fingerprints would be taken, especially in view of the fact of the publicity Jones had gotten. With this accomplished, the police would have an easier job capturing Mannion."

Italy Boosts Export Of Airplane Engines

Italy's purchases this August of high-powered American airplane engines were shown yesterday to have exceeded shipments for all 1934, the Associated Press reported.

Figures of the Air Commerce Bureau, based on the certificates of airworthiness issued on plane exports, showed 16 engines already have been certified, and that six more are pending. In July only one engine was shipped. Figures for the first six months have not been compiled.

Air commerce records showed only 12 engines shipped in 1934.

Oil Administrator Harold L. Ickes last night issued an order requiring ships transporting petroleum or its by-products from Texas and Louisiana to file reports with his division of investigations, in an attempt to tighten enforcement of the Government's program to stop shipment of "hot oil" in interstate commerce.

Ickes acted under the newly enacted Connally act. His order provided a fine of not more than $10,000, imprisonment of not more than 10 years, or both, for any falsification of shipment reports.

Farleys Back to Coast, Attend Rogers Funeral

Los Angeles, Aug. 22 (AP).—Postmaster General James A. Farley and Mrs. Farley returned today after a vacation visit to Hawaii aboard the liner Lurline.

The boat was three hours late because of a stripped turbine and the Farleys were rushed ashore by Quarantine launch so they could attend the funeral of Will Rogers.

Knights of Columbus Retain Ban on Alcohol

New York, Aug. 22 (AP).—The Knights of Columbus closed its three-day annual supreme convention today after defeating a proposal to permit the use of alcoholic beverages at Knights of Columbus functions.

Gov. Herbert H. Lehman's veto of a bill that would have provided free bus transportation for private and parochial school pupils was condemned as "unnecessary, unwise, unfair and unjust" in a resolution presented by the New York State Council of Knights and unanimously adopted.

New Man Of Destiny.

Whatever else may result from Italy's bayoneted fixation on Ethiopia, it has served to reveal to the world a new and compelling figure in the person of Emperor Haile Selassie. Having won his way to the throne by running a gantlet of similarly ambitious "ras" or "kings"—whence his grandiose title, "King of Kings"—the 100-pound monarch now demonstrates a poise and a dignity that command world-wide respect and esteem.

More than any impulsive sympathy for the underdog accounts for this nearly universal attitude. Indeed, when the Ualual incident first appeared on front pages, Ethiopia was scarcely accorded even the status of underdog. A polygot and disorganized country, it was commonly pointed out, and one bedeviled by ignorance, poverty and, worst of all, human slavery. For a progressive European nation to take it in hand was easy to rationalize.

But slowly the personality of Haile Selassie emerged from the scene. World opinion wavered as the "civilizing mission" of Mussolini became daily more dubious. It became apparent that Haile Selassie, with little more than the aid of his consort (who serves as stenographer) and his innate common sense, is no benighted Fuzzy Wuzzy, but a truly enlightened leader, capable of doing much with even his underdeveloped people.

To confirm this now comes the interview granted by him to the Associated Press correspondent in Addis Ababa. With tears in his eyes, the Emperor predicts that the threatened Italian assault will lead to a world struggle such as to endanger the very existence of civilization. The tenseness of his situation may have led him to exaggerate, but he spoke with understatement in asserting that the opening of hostilities will put the world back to 1914. "There will be no security," he said. "International treaties will have no more validity than the word of a thief."

"I pray to God each day," the ruler of one of the oldest Christian nations of the world concluded, "that such a catastrophe may be averted." There can be few outside of Italy who will refuse to say "Amen" to the hope of this primitive yet noble potentate.

Promoting Confusion.

Organization of what appears to be an unofficial supreme court has been announced by the American Liberty League. The duty of this select aggregation of lawyers will be to analyze New Deal legislation with the view of determining whether or not those numerous measures are constitutional. Its usefulness is quite another question.

No doubt the lawyers who are set to work on the AAA amendments, the Wagner labor-disputes act, the holding company bill, the TVA, etc., will get a thrill out of writing opinions in imitation of the country's highest tribunal. Certain it is that orators of the Liberty League will revel in the expatiation of those findings. Beyond that, however, the purpose of the undertaking is somewhat obscure.

Every shade of opinion concerning the fundamental law may be found among members of the legal profession, even among accomplished lawyers. But only the Supreme Court can speak authoritatively. A series of unofficial opinions will be an excellent contribution to the existing public confusion over what is constitutional.

Railroad Relief.

Few subjects are less prosaic from the viewpoint of the average citizen than the reorganization of bankrupt railway companies. From the broader viewpoint of the national welfare, however, the Sumners bill dealing with this acute economic problem must be ranked among the constructive measures approved by both houses of Congress at this session.

For the most part the recovery which has been experienced in agriculture, and in some industries, has not extended to the railroads. Even the Class I roads are earning far less than their fixed charges. A total of 85 railway companies with 58,815 miles of track are involved in bankruptcy or receivership proceedings. These roads represent nearly one-quarter of the total rail mileage in the United States.

Operation of these roads under chaotic conditions would vitally handicap the entire transportation system of the country. Their restoration to a normal basis becomes, therefore, a national concern. Congress recognized this fact two years ago when it adopted amendments to the bankruptcy act designed to facilitate reorganization of defunct carriers. These proved inadequate, however, and further liberalization appears necessary to place the distressed companies on a sound financial basis.

The Sumners bill would give the courts wider discretionary power to approve reorganization plans over the objections of a minority of creditors, providing the interests of the latter are equitably safeguarded. Prompt adjustments that would free the railroads from the heavy charges and inhibitions of receivership would seem to be in the interest of all creditors as well as stockholders.

Congress has not accepted a revolutionary principle. It has simply approved another step along the line taken by previous measures. The fact that the Federal courts are to exercise a large measure of discretion in cases where agreements are not readily worked out with all creditors suggests that the scaling down of railway debts will be facilitated with the least possible loss to any interested party.

Rhetorical Declaration.

Just as a suggestion, Congress might today adopt a resolution declaring that under no circumstances, will any war, anywhere, at any time, be considered a war affecting the United States. This would meet the aim of jamming through a ringing rhetorical declaration before adjournment. It would insure American neutrality, for obviously it would be impossible not to be neutral in hostilities which in no way concern us. And it would have the further merit of being a less dangerous measure than the one in which the Administration, over cogent State Department objection, is disposed to concur.

The total absence of reasoning behind the resolution we modestly suggest should also rally to its immediate support all who are now emulating the estimable ostrich in a really notable riot of emotionalism. The very people who have never raised a hand to make war less probable, who have scorned and ridiculed the patient effort of those who have sought unceasingly to create effective guarantees of peace, are now panic-stricken by the complete success of their indifference. The world, and the United States as part of it, is face to face with the most serious crisis since 1914. And if that crisis should lead to protracted war it will require the most skillful, subtle and clear-headed diplomacy to keep us out.

Exaggerated ballyhoo about the influence of bankers, munition makers, newspapers and what not in bringing us into the last war have perilously blinded our national insight. Of course these groups, together with the farmers, organized labor, the clergy and business—were partly instrumental. But what really brought us into the last war, and would operate in the same direction again, is the size, the power and the multitudinous interests of a great nation which can not possibly be insulated from world events. Switzerland, in the heart of Europe, can stay out of Europe's wars perhaps more easily than can the United States of the twentieth century.

In the present situation—which, though bad, is by no means so desperate as many think—the rudiments of common sense would seem to demand that the tremendous influence of this country be used to prevent disaster while still there is time. To block all constructive action of a preventive character, as the Congress proposes to do, is deplorable. But to proceed from blocking efforts to prevent war to steps which may easily make our participation in war far more probable is worse than deplorable. It is blind hysteria.

There is now little hope that the Senate's misnamed neutrality resolution will be completely headed off in favor of a measure which does not make the fatal blunder of tying the State Department's hands at the moment when a discretionary policy is essential to assure the maintenance of neutrality. The absurdity of sending a doctor to deal with undiagnosed illness under lay instructions to use only certain medicines, would be apparent to all. Yet in principle that is precisely what mandatory neutrality legislation, even of a temporary character, resembles.

The ability of a democracy to act with wisdom and foresight in a time of crisis has never been more keenly tested than is the case in Washington now. A jaded and weary Congress, succumbing to wishful thinking and a totally unrealistic popular demand, lacking in any positive presidential direction, may easily raise the curtain for the beat of drums down Pennsylvania avenue.

One-Man Opposition.

When a single member of Congress, or a small group for that matter, attempts to control important items of legislation he always calls down resentment upon his own head. Especially is that true when a Senator takes advantage of a pre-adjournment rush to hold up measures affecting the welfare of many thousands of individuals. Congress might well remain in session an extra few hours to thwart the individual member who thus abuses his prerogatives.

A most emphatic case in point is Senator McKellar's opposition to the leave bills for Government employes. At the last session the Senator sponsored a disguised raid upon the civil service system. His reversal on that issue, when Congress learned the actual facts, may have distorted his judgment in regard to the leave bills. At any rate that is the inference which the public is likely to draw from the Senator's adherence to an obstructive amendment. His argument against discrimination in favor of some groups of employes is well taken. But it does not justify the blocking of a measure that would tend to eliminate inequities of a broader nature.

Indications are that the Senate would speedily accept these bills if given an opportunity. If they are left in their present status, the will of one Senator, or a very small group, will prevail. That, of course, would be the negation of representative government. Surely the Senate can afford to spend a few hours in debate, if necessary, to avoid decision of this issue by the obstructionists.

The President's Compromise.

When the Senate and House failed to agree upon legislation requiring the dissolution of utility holding companies, President Roosevelt suggested that the buck be passed to the Securities and Exchange Commission. There is some satisfaction in the fact that at last the President is willing to "compromise" instead of letting the measure die and making it a political issue. But the compromise he has indorsed is so utterly indefensible that it should not substantially change the situation.

Several test votes have shown that the Senate and House hold diametrically opposed views regarding the wisdom of destroying holding companies which the President regards as "unnecessary." In the circumstances the only reasonable course is to pass the regulatory bill minus this controversial section. There is not a shred of reason in the proposal to dump this complicated problem which Congress has failed to solve into the lap of a Federal commission.

A few weeks ago Chairman Kennedy of the SEC protested vigorously against the improper responsibilities the House bill would impose upon that body. Without attempting to work out a set of guiding principles for the SEC the House would have required that organization to decide what holding companies should be preserved in "the public interest." It is extremely doubtful whether the Supreme Court would have sanctioned such an extensive grant of power; and it is still more doubtful whether the SEC would have been able to exercise it intelligently.

Under the Barkley compromise, which the House has now accepted at presidential behest, the SEC would be required to reduce the operations of utility holding companies to "single integrated" systems, with a number of exceptions. Only the most rudimentary guiding principles are outlined. If this measure should be adopted and survive a final court test, it would leave largely to the discretion of a few executive officials the future development of industries vital to the entire Nation.

The President contends that "from the viewpoint of the House this proposal certainly constitutes a most generous concession on the part of the Senate conferees." From his own point of view, however, it seems to involve no compromise whatever. The President was not able to induce the House to decree death for all utility holding companies. Therefore, he suggested that the job be turned over to a commission controlled by himself. If the House had carefully analyzed this crudely camouflaged "compromise" it would have been more than ever opposed to surrender. For the new scheme adds to the unsound principle of destroying industrial units, without regard for their economic usefulness, another dangerous step toward administrative dictatorship.

The Textile Dilemma.

While the Cabinet committee which investigated means of reviving the cotton textile industry has made some constructive suggestions, its report serves only to depress New England mill owners. For the distress of this industry is acute, and the remedies proposed by the textile committee are of a minor character. Nothing less than discontinuance of the processing tax would have satisfied the industry. And such a sweeping retreat on the part of the Administration was at no time anticipated.

The committee found that some types of textiles imported from Japan have made considerable inroads upon the market for comparable American goods. Its suggestion of an agreement with Japan to limit imports of this character is a constructive alternative to tariff adjustments which might prove ineffective or provocative of retaliatory action. Whether or not such an arrangement can be worked out, however, remains to be seen.

Fortunately the committee has turned its back upon export subsidy schemes that might add several hundred million dollars to the deficit without changing the basic relationship of our cotton producers and textile manufacturers to the world market. Suggestions for the retirement of surplus and obsolete equipment are undoubtedly constructive. Some gains might be made through a study of new uses for cotton. But when all of these suggestions are put together the advantages they offer are by no means comparable to the handicaps that have been imposed upon the domestic industry by the AAA program.

The committee report is significant chiefly because it indicates the unwillingness of the Administration to modify a policy even when its adverse effects can no longer be concealed. If processing taxes continue greatly to increase the cost of manufacturing cotton goods in the United States, progressive decline of the industry may be expected. Sharp inroads have been made already in the export market for textiles and domestic consumption is at a very low point. Soon or late this vicious circle of declining consumption must inevitably return its disastrous effects upon the farmer, for whose benefit the processing taxes were levied and artificial prices were fixed.

A Detroit automobile engineer places the eventual speed of automobiles at 160 miles an hour. The time is fast approaching when a pedestrian who wishes to cross a highway will need a pair of field glasses.

Domestic Holocaust.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Avaunt, Europe, Asia, Africa! Tempt us not to enter into any pact which might drag us into war. Separated from turmoil by the Atlantic and the Pacific, we are quite content to remain within our boundaries and permit the high-powered, high-geared molochs of the road do the killing and the maiming.

What war could we have engaged in which would have resulted in 36,000 dead and 1,000,000 injured during one year, all victims of drunken, careless or incompetent drivers plus the high speed vehicles in which they roar over the road?

Let us alone, to continue our annual slaughter. In this manner home industries may be benefited: the funeral directors, the undertakers, doctors, nurses, lawyers who file damage claims; even the florists and the telegraph and telephone companies, not to mention increased postal receipts when letters go forward, telling that lives have been blotted out or fatal injuries received.

When our boys die in the trenches they are buried en masse with wooden crosses marking their resting places. Limit the killings to the homeland and monument makers will prosper. C. H. WETMORE.

Opposes Police Change.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Kindly grant me space in your valuable paper to express my utmost opposition and disapproval of the plan proposing to abolish the office of Assistant Superintendent of Police in the District. In my opinion it should not be tolerated or considered in fairness to the many worthy and efficient inspectors, captains and lieutenants who are eligible and anxious to reach the highest ranks and goal in the department.

It shows a very poor spirit on the part of those agitating abolishment of the position. It looks selfish and lacks fairness and justice. What does the measly sum of $500 amount to when compared to the fairness due the many competent men in line for advancement?

I trust your valuable paper will support and aid in this worthy cause in the interests of the men whose chances for advancement are hindered. HENRY F. ASH.

Tribute To Post.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

As a citizen, I would like to pay tribute to Wiley Post. He was America's outstanding flier. He had performed more services in the advancement of modern aviation than any other aviator. His death is a great loss to flying. No one can replace him. He was a genius.

I think his two round-the-world flights were the greatest feats of all aviation and his late stratosphere flying will rank with the great pioneering work of the Wright brothers.

No other flier has ever equaled Post in long distance or adventuresome flying. He was in truth America's knight of the skies and the entire world honors him.

Housing Problem.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Regarding the statement of the real estate men that there is no housing shortage here: I have spent all of my spare time for the last two months looking for a place into which I could move my family (wife and five children).

I have failed to find a single place large enough under $75 per month. Also I have tried the surrounding territory and cannot find a house within my means ($1,620 per annum). So I am forced to give up my place and leave.

There may be plenty of houses in Washington and vicinity, but not for the Government clerks.

League Spirit Will Live.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Representing, I'm sure, many readers of The Post, I wish to thank you for the editorial of August 21 on the League of Nations. The superficial cry that the League may permanently collapse is about as reasonable as to say that truth and justice will utterly disappear from the earth. The League spirit is here to stay, though it may have setbacks and temporary defeats in an attempt to plant itself in the heart of civilization. Those who live in the League atmosphere at Geneva did not hope (as the writer knows from personal interviews in February last) to meet entirely the just demands of Abyssinia; but as one said: "We may have to sacrifice some of Abyssinia to maintain the peace of Europe. The League as yet has not reached the ideal, where perfect justice can be done to the smaller nations. We cannot force an issue which may involve a world war. Fifty years from now, we may be able to rule by moral suasion, which is no rule at all, but an appeal to reason. Just now we do the best we can, and that is much more than has ever been done before."

If some of our otherwise able leaders in American politics get any consolation from the talk that the League will utterly collapse, these men might well have compunctions on thinking that, had the United States long ago gone to the rescue of our war-weary world, things might have been much better than we now find them. Strange that men will call themselves "progressive," while leading in the most reactionary step that our Nation has taken in all the years of its existence. Is our sole business confined to "taking care of ourselves?" Will intelligent men and women continue to repeat, in the name of Washington, something about "entangling alliances," which he never uttered, and which Jefferson, who spoke these words, never meant in the sense in which they are now taken? Who, that can, without partisan influence, get a true vision of Washington and Jefferson, doubts that these men today would be in the very front of the great movement, led at the first by one of our own Presidents, to join the peoples of earth in a council to preserve the peace of the world and to work toward a brotherhood of nations?

Capone's Case.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

I wish to protest as vigorously as I am able against the effort of your columnist, Westbrook Pegler, to whitewash Al Capone. It is an offense against common sense and, I am almost tempted to say, public decency. If any criminal in this country ever met up with just punishment for his evil deeds, it is that man. As a long-time reader of The Post, I do not take kindly to any effort to work up sympathy for that prince of bootleggers, and I do not think it is necessary to go captious about how the miscreant was convicted and sent to Alcatraz Island.

If Mr. Pegler wants a shining mark to knock down and drag out let him turn his vitriolic pen upon politically appointed judges of State and municipal courts; against the criminal lawyers who defend our Al Capones, and against the foolishness of court procedure and the silliness of the rules of evidence which are used in the defense of criminals everywhere in our land. There is something in which Mr. Pegler might hope to carry intelligent news readers with him.

Responsibility For Auto Accidents.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Some days ago you kindly published in these columns a letter of mine written in mild criticism of one previously submitted to you by one Wilbur Rogers, who in his letter laid the blame for the high automobile accident rate on the high speed and power of the modern motorcar. My criticism merely pointed out that a car on a showroom floor is as safe as a church, no matter how powerful or fast, and that it is not until an irresponsible driver takes it out on the road that it becomes dangerous.

Now comes to the fore a champion of Mr. Rogers' argument, F. H. Kling, who went to work on my criticism like a Republican on the New Deal. At any rate, Mr. Kling's letter fizzed like a Roman candle, and was just about as effective. Maybe he will tell us what he thinks ought to be done about it some time.

Mr. Kling unwittingly, I think, evolved a rather novel theory with regard to placing the blame for motor accidents during the course of his eruption. It would be something like this: Up to a certain speed and/or horsepower of a car the driver is to blame for accidents; beyond these the car is to blame. Assuming such a quaint premise has any basis in fact, perhaps Mr. Kling can tell us at just what speed and/or power the responsibility passes from the driver to the car. I fear his outburst was motivated more by personal feeling than by intellect.

Mr. Kling also soundly berates the "moguls of the motor industry" as being, because of their "greed and grab," the promoters of the current distressing accident situation. Very amusing. By his own argument it hardly seems reasonable the motor industry would deliberately start a campaign to narrow down its field of output through the killing and maiming of customers. This is about as logical as blaming a firearms manufacturer for the death of a customer because the latter insisted upon looking down the barrel when the gun was loaded.

Whether Mr. Kling likes it or not, the fact remains that personal irresponsibility on the part of drivers is by far the main cause of motor accidents. And for his information I might also add that, aside from the fact I am the owner of a flivver, I am not connected with the motor industry in any way. E. N. BLYE.

Some Reviews Of Previews.

Post Office, Friday.

EIGHTEEN people on the staff of this newspaper have been asked to help fill its book-columns while the usual incumbent vacationed. Eighteen—and we were overlooked! This being a distinction bordering too closely upon the invidious, we have stolen a glance at the unreviewed volumes still awaiting Mr. Hall and shall run a book-column of our own—once.

LITERARY CHAT: Will Durant is taking a course in philosophy at the Harvard Summer School . . . Fannie Hurst's favorite novelist (next to You've-Guessed-It) is Erskine Caldwell . . . EDUCATIONAL: *Science and the Public Mind. By Benjamin C. BIOGRAPHY: Thomas More. By R. W. Chambers (Harcourt, Brace). A study, for non-Catholics, of the new Catholic Saint and old social satirist. It balances his impractical actions by his heoric ideal and asks you a question as vital as when More answered it with his life: "Is there a moral law above the State?" . . . But don't confuse this R. W. Chambers with the author of "The Common Law."

We Too Are Drifting. By Gale Wilhelm (Random House). Miss A loves Miss B, but the course of true love is troubled by the sad fact that Miss B loves Miss C. So they all talk Hemingwayese and order drinks. A well of droneliness—author's age: 26.

The Wedge. By Hermann B. Deutsch (Stokes). Mr. Deutsch begins by indecision as to whether he wants to write a picaresque romance or a novel of the Mexican Revolution. At the end of your two dollars and fifty cents' worth, he hasn't made up his mind. So how can you make up yours?

Strange Passage. By Theodore Irwin (Smith & Haas). A group of aliens rounded up for deportation. In literature, youth is always a battle between the desire to be realistic and the impulse to be romantic. Mr. Irwin does his brave best with the bawdy and sadistic, but his heart runs away with him. A first book—oh, evidently!

The Demi-Widow. By Mary Pickford, (Bobbs-Merrill). In theatrical Paris, our violet-eyed heroine from California has a terrible time with the impassioned Russian; but virtue triumphs. As a novelist, "America's Sweetheart" is the Laura Jean Libby of the screen.

New York, Aug. 22.

A RIDICULOUS row is going on within the management of the soulless corporation which owns Madison Square Garden. Col. John Hammond, an old-time West Pointer and retired regular Army man, is trying to kick out the incumbent president, John Kilpatrick, who played football at Yale in his time and was a colonel himself in the big war.

Kilpatrick is a big, innocent stranger in a strange business. Hampered as he is by the old varsity idea of sport for the game's sake, he may be, even as Col. Hammond contends, no fit man for the presidency of Madison Square Garden. It is unimportant, anyway. Who cares who is president of the Madison Square Garden Corporation, the Ajax Hide and Tallow Corporation, or the Premier Hay, Grain and Feed Corporation, of Findlay, Ohio?

But Kilpatrick's troubles date from the time, soon after he became president, when he decided that it was dishonest to pay graft to certain sport writers in New York to publicize the Garden Corporation's prize fights and abolished the graft. He abolished not only the pay roll but the ticket graft.

THE trouble in dealing with this subject is that those sport writers who accept favors have always enjoyed immunity from discusison because, in the absence of a squeal, the honest ones, who are in the majority, were exposed to unfair suspicion. However, even in the profession it has been a matter of common knowledge that there are grafters who would take anything from a dollar shirt to a percentage of a heavyweight championship gate.

It positively does not follow, however, that because a sport commentator opposes the Garden Corporation he does so out of resentment for having been denied graft. The most persistent and effective enemy of the management and policy of the Garden during the last three or four years is a sports editor who acted for honest reasons of his own and relentlessly pointed out graft within the Garden family. He can look Kilpatrick or Jimmy Johnstone, the matchmaker and a great intriguer, dead in the eye any time. There are other square men who criticize the Garden for equally honest reasons or under orders.

• • • •

SO IT is a ticklish subject. But even so, that can not this time forestall discussion of the use of the power of the press to gang up on a victim and put him out of business or bring him to his knees. The thing has gone too far and is no longer under control.

In this case a rival corporation has been under newspaper auspices to take over the Garden's business with charity as a stooge in the promotion of the fights. The ownership of the papers disclaims any connection with the prize-fight business, claiming to be merely the sponsor of a charity which is, of itself, quite worthy.

But it is a peculiarity of newspaper owners and executives that they do not always know everything that goes on in their shops. A similar experience befell a newspaper in Chicago about 20 years ago when a boss editor who was deemed by the management to be very hot became one of the boldest raiders in the history of the newspaper game and was held in high esteem by the main office until it was finally disclosed that he had participated in a graft of $105,000 exacted from a company which sold some voting machines to the county. Incidentally, the voting machines were scrapped later, but that may have been merely another graft.

• • • •

SOME newspaper owners have made a couple of half-hearted attempts to clean up graft in their sports departments but have never really gone down the line, possibly because the evil seemed minor and not worth a scandal. Another reason was that one editor with a notorious chiseler in a position of trust and responsibility on his paper always expressed the highest confidence in his man.

However, the present case is one involving a famous American institution. That makes it news.

The newspaper business has been under fire from Frank Roosevelt and also such irresponsible but clamorous demagogues as Huey Long and Upton Sinclair for the last two years, and it would be a healthful thing for once to make a real investigation under conditions by some authority with the power to subpena books and box-office sheets, confidential men, box-office hands, accountants and other witnesses under oath, subject to citation for contempt and the consequences for perjury or loss of memory.

Reticence in the matter does not protect either the paper or the writers who have always spurned graft. It merely shields any individuals who happen not to belong.

"A. E."

By William Lyon Phelps

THE death of George W. Russell, better known as A. E., at Bournemouth, England, on July 17, removed one of the greatest men I have ever known. I say this advisedly. There have been greater writers, greater poets, greater painters, greater economists, greater journalists, but I think if we consider only character and personality, he was the greatest living Irishman of his time. It was my good fortune to know him well; he was certainly the best conversationalist I ever met, and I have met hundreds of good ones.

• • • •

On one occasion, when he was to lecture at Yale, and did me the honor of being my guest, I listened to him for ten hours, and could have listened for 20. He arrived at noon, sat down by the fire, and got out his faithful companion, the pipe. He talked until lunch, he talked through lunch, he talked till five, when I reminded him that he was expected at the lecture hall. We went thither, and for an hour he talked to that immense audience. Then he returned to my fireside, talked until dinner, talked through dinner, talked until 10 o'clock. Everything he said was interesting.

One day I had the pleasure of entertaining (if that is a suitable word) A. E. and G. K. Chesterton at the same time. They entertained me by a continuous stream of good talk.

• • • •

When Mr. Russell sent one of his earliest compositions to a journal, he signed it "Aeon," but the printer declared he could make out only the first two letters; Mr. Russell said "Go ahead and print those; that will make a good signature." He kept it the rest of his life.

A. E. was astonishingly versatile. He was a painter, a poet, a journalist, an editor, a farmer, a statesman, a novelist, an essayist, and helped organize the Abbey Theater in Dublin.

He was a profound mystic, being spiritually-minded, and while I cannot define his creed, he was one of the most truly religious writers of our time.

Chips From Saratoga

New York's Famed Spa Takes A New Lease On Life As "Right People" Again Swarm Northward To Take The Waters Or See Thoroughbreds Go Through Their Paces.

By Ralph E. Renaud.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

New York.

THOSE who have read the late Robert W. Chambers' "Cardigan"—and who hasn't?—will recall the lovable portrait of Sir William Johnson, England's great colonial commissioner to the Six Nations. It is said that Sir William Johnson was the first white man ever to benefit from the curative waters of Saratoga. His Indian friends carried him there in 1767 and from his lavish praises of their magic powers the Saratoga cult began, though aborigines had sipped at the springs time out of mind.

Of late years Saratoga and the State of New York have suffered from certain fixations in the public mind. The name evoked images of bustles, tiny fringed parasols, an amplitude of petticoats and fainting ladies. Its fame had descended from the President's "horse and buggy days" and its memory was that of a fad which had passed.

Saratoga's greatest popularity was in the period from 1820 to 1860. Just as the rich North winters in Florida today, the rich South summer in Saratoga then. Wealthy Southern planters and their wives felt that they couldn't miss the season and the spas were gay with frills and furbelows and musical with a soft Southern accent. Then the war came and most of the Southern planters were killed. Those who were not, were too impoverished to dream any more about Saratoga. The fashionable little village went into a decline and the atrocious villas of the rich began to rear their ugly heads at Newport, with Italian balustrades clinging to Swiss chalets or what have you.

• • • •

AFTER the Civil War and the panic of '73 people began to make money again in the '80's. It was then that Saratoga jumped into popularity once more and there are still a good many mementoes of that period about the place. There was a different atmosphere, however, a faster, racier tempo. The period stretched out into a champagne era with beefsteak dinners, into the days of Canfield and Lillian Russell and Diamond Jim Brady. But these prismatic figures passed into myth and after the World War Saratoga was not so much. The springs were pretty well commercialized, some of them, indeed, nearly approaching exhaustion. The spacious days seemed to have passed forever. But just as hope springs eternal in the human breast, so springs eternal needs a rest.

The news of this article is that Saratoga is coming back. This year, and this month especially, it is a distinctly fashionable spot. The "right people" are going there. Weighty names burden the dispatches under that date line. Some of the New York newspapers have sent their society editors up and the resulting twaddle is beginning to stimulate the curious. The new Gideon Putnam Hotel, built by the State and named after Saratoga's first innkeeper, is a comparatively small place, but it has already begun to burst with exclusiveness. And the older places, such as the United States Hotel, with its McKinley and Hanna architecture, are reaping a harvest.

THE chief cause of it all, of course, is the magnificent State enterprise at the springs themselves—the great $10,000,000 State plant on its 12,000-acre reservation which includes 122 of the springs—almost all there are. The group of Colonial buildings, including the Hall of Springs, are really beautiful and the grounds approximate the perfection which the State Park Commission has lately been achieving. There is even a therapeutic golf course of nine holes. Bernard M. Baruch seems to have been the driving force which made this development possible, but he had a lot of help.

But one doesn't have to be sick to enjoy Saratoga. The August racing brings its own crowd, including both the turfmen and the society folks. Discovery, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's horse, seems to be the real sensation of the season. Expectations centered on Omaha, William Woodward's Derby winner, but everybody seems to be talking about Discovery. Horse talk is natural conversation in Saratoga, which isn't surprising in a place where some of the estates, such as that of Jock Whitneys, have their own private tracks.

Saratoga this year is a composite of Park avenue, Broadway and Main street. There are plenty of night clubs, the Piping Rock, Riley's, the Arrowhead and Smith's, and it is difficult to jimmy a way into any of them, not because they are so exclusive but because they are so crowded. Helen Morgan does piano-sitting and singing at the Arrowhead, Irene Bordoni is the charmer at Riley's and Georges Metaxa flourishes at the Piping Rock.

Everything is wide open. Maybe the State and local authorities don't know anything about this, so it is offered here as the revelation of an after-dark secret. You can lose your money, if the races have left you any, on any sort of game there is, the wheel, the pasteboards, or the little jumping cubes. Fortunately, if this causes cardiac complications the healing springs are right at hand. When you get well again you can return to the gaming tables and help establish a pleasant and exciting, though vicious, circle. And they don't use Saratoga chips for their poker parties.

• • • •

THIS year, with so much of Uncle Sam's money within reach and with Robert Moses in active form, New York has gone park crazy. New parks spring up overnight and old ones get new costumes. City Hall Park is to be dressed all over again and already they are tearing away the ugly eyesore of the Brooklyn Bridge extension, sometimes described as "the floating car barn," to make ready for it.

City Hall Park is going rural and will become a village green with a sedate confusion replacing its present formality. It is to have a colonial fence around it to match the original one, a piece of which has been dug up from somewhere. Civic Virtue, which still stubbornly stands where he always was, will be carted away, and the whole environment will take on a New England flavor with greensward and the flickering shadows of stately trees.

Meanwhile, Bryant Park, recently turned into a formal French garden, has now become a library. A free book service has been established for the benefit of the homeless wanderers who chiefly patronize this Forty-second street oasis. They can have a book or a magazine for the asking. Bright-colored umbrellas are supplied at intervals to offer shade and comfort to readers. If anybody steals a book it won't make any difference, for none of the volumes are worth enough to pawn and the theft will have to spring from the pure joy of learning.

If the idea proves a success it is to be extended to most of the other city parks. If New York must have bums it wants educated bums.

Foreign Trade

By William Phillips

The Necessity for Give and Take.

Following are excerpts from an address by the Undersecretary of State broadcast recently in connection with a convention of the International Apple Association, meeting in Cleveland, Ohio.

IN ORDER to protect our foreign trade in general it is important that our exports should be on an equal footing with all foreign exports in the markets of the world. If foreign countries make preferential arrangements between each other excluding our exporters from the advantages thus granted, it is clear that our export trade would seriously suffer.

I am sure you will all agree that American exporters of many agricultural products, including apples, as well as exporters of industrial products, such as automobiles and machinery, are thoroughly prepared to obtain a substantial share of the total business in each market of the world, provided nondiscriminatory arrangements have been adopted. Under conditions of equal opportunity they know in advance that they can compete successfully with the exporters of other countries.

• • • •

BUT someone will say, why can we not make preferential agreements with every country so that our traders will have an advantage over those of our competitors in other countries? Why not get more than equality of treatment for our exporters? Why not secure from them special advantages and privileges over that of competing countries? The answer is that while it is a simple matter to make a preferential arrangement with one country it is difficult, if not impossible, to make preferential arrangements with all countries. If we secure preferences we must also grant preferences. But the minute that you grant a preference to one country other countries naturally object. In other words, it is impossible to grant preferences without discriminating against and hurting other countries. We might give one country a preference in one article and another country a preference in another article. But the countries that are discriminated against by this process will naturally not be very happy about it. They will naturally try to retaliate. If a country feels itself aggrieved by the fact that we have given unusual preferences to other countries it will naturally seek to divert trade which we formerly enjoyed. This is the one great world economic handicap today. In short, the game of handing out preferences all around is not an easy one and is likely to cause an immense amount of ill feeling.

• • • •

AMERICAN exporters are not afraid of their chances in foreign markets if they could only be given equality of treatment with their competitors. The game of trading advantages, which has increased during the depression, has only resulted in destroying more and more foreign trade. If we are to improve our foreign trade we must bend every effort to break down the discriminations that now exist against American commerce and to secure absolute equality of treatment.

This is precisely and exactly what is meant by the most-favored-nation policy. The term most-favored-nation is an unfortunate expression and is much misunderstood. What it means is that when we make an agreement with any single country giving their traders more favorable treatment on certain commodities than was hitherto accorded, we will give equally favorable treatment to any other country which does not discriminate against us. In other words, we will give all countries which treat us fairly as good treatment as that given the most-favored-nation. I repeat that this expression is cumbersome and complex. As a phrase it has long-established traditions. It would, however, be much better if we substituted for this phrase the term "equality of treatment," for that is exactly what it means.

Maryland Acts To Return Part Of School Pay

$500,000 Cushion Fund Is Allocated Among the State Branches.

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 22.—Restoration of a portion of the 10 per cent cut made in teachers' salaries two years ago was provided for today by the State Board of Public Works, when the $500,000 "cushion fund" was allocated among the State departments and institutions.

The board, consisting of Gov. Nice, State Comptroller William S. Gordy, jr., and State Treasurer Hooper S. Miles, with Joseph O'C. McCusker, chief deputy State comptroller, as secretary, allocated the fund at a three-hour session in the Governor's office in the Statehouse. Walter H. Blakeman, State budget officer, attended the meeting.

The board gave the State board of education $87,500 from the fund toward restoration of the teachers' salary cuts. The Legislature had authorized the board, in its discretion, to restore as much as half of these cuts if possible. The sum allocated, it was pointed out, will give the teachers back 25 per cent of the original cut.

In addition, the board added $20,000 to the State equalization fund to increase the amount provided for bus transportation of school children in the counties.

The board distributed the cushion fund throughout every department of the State and the State institutions. Provision was made for the restoration of other State salaries to the basis of the 1934-35 budget where it was deemed necessary.

Postlude

Reprinted from yesterday's last edition.

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Twelfth and last summer concert by the National Symphony Orchestra at the Potomac Watergate; Hans Kindler, conductor. Program "Carneval" Overture (Dvorak), Wedding Procession from "Le Nozze di Figaro" (Mozart), Symphony in B minor (Schubert), Dream Pantomime from "Haensel and Gretel" (Humperdinck), five numbers from "Casse-Noisette" suite (Chaikovski), "Bolero" (Ravel).

Recipient of a rousing welcome as he returned to the conductor's stand after an absence of five weeks, Hans Kindler led his musicians last night in a spirited performance of a popular program which was enjoyed by one of the largest audiences of the series. After a day of heavy showers, the clouds considerably cleared away to leave a balmy evening for the conclusion of the "Sunset Symphonies," and the crowded assemblage of music-lovers gave the occasion a gala air.

If the intentness and enthusiasm of the serried listeners may be taken as a presage of the always uncertain future, the summer concerts have only begun to fill their needed function in the community. While their continuance will involve the solution of certain problems of finance, one has confidence that the solution will be found because an unaccustomed supply of music has created a demand which has set in operation a law as potent in cultural matters as it is in economics. The public has become aware that it has long needed exactly what it recently has received, and that realization will have its potent effect.

Dr. Kindler's choice of the Dvorak overture as the opening number was a happy one, for it emphasized the festive nature of the final concert—a celebration of the good fortune which has attended the series. And the wistfulness of the middle section hinted at the tingle of regret in the feelings of all the auditors who were taking leave for a time from hours of pleasure.

The charming nuptial procession from "Figaros Hochzeit" was an appropriate transition to Schubert's mysteriously beautiful symphony, which has come down to us "not fully ended," as the German title so neatly expresses it. To call it "unfinished" does not convey quite the same shade of meaning, for it is a completely finished work of art as it stands.

The second part of the program, containing the Wagnerian echoes from Humperdinck's fairy tale opera, the instrumental ingenuities of Chaikovski's ballet suite, and the interminable repetitions of Ravel's hypnotic "Bolero," afforded satisfaction for diverse tastes.

Leiserson Mentioned As Labor Board Leader

By the Associated Press.

Dr. William A. Leiserson, chairman of the National Mediation Board, was discussed in labor circles here last night as a possible chairman of the New Labor Relations Board.

President Roosevelt late yesterday completed selection of the labor board as well as the board of three to administer the new social security program. Recess of the Senate, however, forced postponement of the announcement until today. Other names mentioned included those of Dr. George W. Stocking, chairman of the Petroleum Labor Board, and Edwin S. Smith, member of the old labor relations board.

Army to Form Citizen Unit for Hawaii Defense

By the United Press.

Honolulu.—Army officials are preparing quietly to instruct civilians in the problems of defense.

Protection of Hawaii presents a peculiar situation since an attack might cut the islands off from the mainland entirely, forcing them to rely indefinitely on their own forces and supplies.

Maj. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commandant of the Hawaii Department, largest Army concentration in America, has ordered the creation of a "service command," authorized under the national defense act of 1916, for the purpose of correlating military and civilian agencies in case of emergency.

"If an emergency arose, the problems of various local defenses largely would be up to the respective communities," Drum said, explaining that the service command would work with civic officials and industrial leaders to coordinate the framework of defense.

For defense purposes the Hawaiian archipelago must be considered as a unit for two important reasons, Drum told the United Press.

1. The speed and range of present-day fighting planes naturally would move the first line of defense outward, thus binding all the islands to an aerial frontier.

2. Routes must be kept open to outside islands for food supplies, since Oahu, where the backbone of Hawaii's army and navy protection lies, could not produce enough for its own consumption, particularly in wartime.

Following a detailed personal survey of the archipelago by land and air, Drum said he was agreeably surprised by Hawaii's facilities, both for producing food and for temporary military fortifications.

On the vast acreages of Maui, Hawaii and Kauai he found an amazing variety of crops being raised, ranging from such tropical products as coffee and bananas to potatoes and melons. Even wheat has been grown on some sections of Maui and could be cultivated if necessary.

Drum particularly examined the terrain for posibilities of emergency airplane landing fields. Outside islands have several areas used irregularly for landing fields but most of them would have to be lengthened and the surface improved to accommodate fast Army planes, he said.

The general admitted planes would play an increasingly important part in Hawaii's defense pattern, pointing out the projected $18,000,000 airdrome adjacent to Fort Kamehameha as evidence of that.

He stressed the importance of Hawaii's two National Guard Regiments. "It is desirable that the National Guard be used as a nucleus of local defense," he said, indicating it was tied in with his plans for the service command.

Alarm Irks Town.

Eugene, Oreg. (U.P.)—For an hour on Sunday afternoon the First National Bank's burglar alarm annoyed the downtown district. The caretaker had accidentally tripped the trigger. Only bank officials had the combination to turn it off, and they could not be found.

Town Minus "Smithy."

Independence, Mo. (U.P.)—Oldtimers and the Chamber of Commerce were reluctant to admit it, but the truth is out—Independence, outfitting point for covered-wagon trains making the perilous Santa Fe trail journey, has no blacksmith shop.

A Heavy Meal Dulls Hearing, Scientist Finds

By the Associated Press.

Hamilton, N. Y.—A drop in keenness of hearing after a heavy noon meal is reported by Dr. Donald A. Laird, director of the psychological laboratory, Colgate University.

He experimented with seven healthy young men. All showed a dulling of hearing after any noon meal whatever.

The drop was seven decibels after a heavy meal. One decibel is the volume of sound which can be barely heard. Seven would sound fairly distinct if isolated.

A light noon meal also caused a drop, but less than half as large as the heavy meal.

"Oculists," Dr. Laird states, "tell me they notice a similar dulling of visual acuity when eye examinations are made after a heavy meal. It is possible also that the sense of touch may be dulled after a heavy meal, since it is known that the blood is then drawn from the skin to assist in the process of digestion.

"The change in acuity of hearing, however, may likely be due as much to the relatively aenemic condition of the brain following a heavy meal as to an alteration in the circulation of the inner ear itself. This interesting and unexpected phenomenon not only throws some light on the diurnal variation in human performance, but also suggests that the salesman who has a noisy used automobile to demonstrate could make the noise appear less if he took the prospect out in it after his big meal of the day.

"This may also explain why dinner orchestras seem to favor volume to melody, but I doubt if it gives an esthetic justification for their choice of volume."

Lumber Output Gains.

Portland, Oreg. (U.P.)—Lumber production in Oregon and Washington during 1934 increased about 1½ per cent over that of 1933 and nearly 41 per cent over 1932's output, a survey of the Pacific Northwest Forest Experiment Station revealed. Douglas fir production was first with 3,886,102,000 board feet and Ponderosa pine second with 919,096,000 board feet.

Veterans Paying Debts.

Salem, Oreg. (U.P.)—Former soldiers who borrowed money from the World War Veterans' State Aid Commission are better off financially than they have been in five years, according to Secretary Jerold Owen. For the first time since 1930 the number of delinquent accounts has started to go down.

Five Generations Of Thompsons Mee

One, 93, From Maryland; Other 2 Months Living Her

From Charlotte Hall, Md., came James Thompson, 93, and his 61-year-old son, Stouten, both farmers. They were joined in festivities here by Mrs. M. V. Oliver, 39, Stouten Thompson's daughter and Mrs. A. G. Rice, 20, and Mrs. Oliver's daughter, who were the Washington hostesses.

Also in the gathering—and possibly the least interested—were Jean, 18 months and June, 2 months old, daughters of Mrs. Rice. They joined heartily in the ice cream.

Experts Claim Utility Measure Is Death Blow

Senate 'Compromise' Fails to Alter Original Bill, Operators Say.

By the United Press.

New York, Aug. 22.—The so-called Senate compromise on the utilities bill accepted by the House tonight is no compromise at all but a death sentence for utility holding companies as complete as that originally proposed by the Senate, utilities and financial experts said tonight.

None of the utility heads would permit his name to be used in comment on the measure until it finally passes the Senate as all agreed it will.

Heads of utilities companies anticipated the House action but it came as a surprsie to many stock market operators who had been accumulating utilities stocks recently. There was considerable buying in the utilities group today, despite unsettlement that followed publication of a letter from President Roosevelt to Representative Rayburn asking for passage of a utilities bill.

As a result of the suddeness of the House action on the bill, many anticipate considerable selling in utilities stocks tomorrow. This unloading process, however, may be slow in developing, some believe, inasmuch as there is a widespread hope the bill may be found unconstitutional.

Should the bill stand under court scrutiny, the utility leaders look for havoc when the holding companies marked for destruction are liquidated. Not only will the utility industry suffer, but all industry as well, they forecast.

"I anticipate attack in other lines under holding company control shortly," a leading utilities operator said. "There is even a chance that behind all this movement may be a hope that some of the large newspaper holding companies can be legislated out of existance, especially now that some of the newspapers are launching attacks on the Administration."

In event of dissolution of holding companies in the utilities field, utilities experts estimate that losses will run into billions of dollars.

Two Treasury Agents Face Laxity Charge

By the Associated Press.

Secretary Morgenthau announced yesterday that charges had been filed against two Treasury agents in Cleveland for failure to report a customs broker there who had diverted Government funds to his own use.

Clifford W. Pollock, deputy collector of internal revenue at Cleveland, and Edward W. Barbour, a customs agent there, were the officers against whom the charges were filed. The men have not been suspended and have been given until September 1 to answer the charges, Morgenthau said.

Text of Utility Compromise

"Compromise substitute for section 11(b) of the House and Senate utilities holding company bill.

"(b) It shall be the duty of the commission, as soon as practicable after January 1, 1938:

"(1) To require by order, after notice and opportunity for hearing, that each holding company, and each subsidiary company thereof, shall take such action as the commission shall find necessary or appropriate to limit the operations of the holding company system of which such company is a part to a single integrated public utility system, and to such other businesses as are reasonably incidental, or economically necessary, or appropriate to the operation of such integrated public utility system.

"Provided, however, that the commission may permit a registered holding company to continue to control one or more additional public utility systems, if, after notice and opportunity for hearing, it finds that

(a) each of such additional systems is incapable of economic operation independently of such holding company without the loss of substantial economies not otherwise obtainable.

"(b) all of such additional systems are located in one State, or in adjoining States, or in a contiguous foreign country; and

"(c) the continued combination of such systems under the control of such holding company is not so large (considering the state of the art and the area or region affected) as to impair the advantages of localized management, efficient operation, or the effectiveness of regulation.

"The commission shall permit as reasonably incidental, or economically necessary or appropriate to the operations of one or more integrated public utility systems, the retention of an interest in any business (other than the business of a public utility company, as such) which the commission shall find necessary or appropriate in the public interest or for the protection of investors or consumers and not detrimental to the proper functioning of such system or systems.

"(2) To require that each registered holding company and each subsidiary thereof shall take such steps as the commission shall find necessary or appropriate to insure that the corporate structure or continued existence of any company in the holding-company system does not unduly or unnecessarily complicate the structure, or unfairly or inequitably distribute voting power among security holders, of such holding-company system.

"In carrying out the provisions of this paragraph the commission shall require each registered holding company (and any company in the same holding-company system with such holding company) to take such action as the commission shall find necessary in order that such holding company shall cease to be a holding company with respect to each of its subsidiary companies which itself has a subsidiary which is a holding company.

"Except for the purpose of fairly and equitably distributing voting power among the security-holders of such company, nothing in this paragraph shall authorize the commission to require any change in the corporate structure or existence of any company which is not a holding company, or of any company whose principal business is that of a public utility company.

"The commission may, by order, revoke or modify any order previously made under this subsection if, after notice and opportunity for hearing, it finds that the conditions upon which the order was predicated no longer exists. Any order made under this subsection shall be subject to judicial review as provided in Section 24."

Roosevelt Pays Honor To Pioneers' Spirit

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt hailed the "stalwart qualities of frontier days" in a talk last night over the telephone to Sainte Genevieve, Mo., commemorating its bi-centennial.

The President recalled the hardships of the early days, spoke in admiration of the "Christian courage" of the pioneers, and said:

"These triumphs over affliction are characteristic of the spirit of our early Americans. Although the problems which confront us today are of a different sort, I am confident that you have not lost the stalwart qualities of frontier days."

107 Sons of Soldiers Get West Point Chance

To enable them to carry on family military traditions, President Roosevelt yesterday designated 107 sons of Army, Marine and Navy officers and men to take examinations for West Point.

A number of sons of officers and enlisted men who lost their lives in the World War are in the group. It also included Philip Henry Sheridan 3d, son of the late Maj. Philip Henry Sheridan, of Santa Barbara, Calif., and grandson of the famous Gen. Phil Sheridan of the Civil War.

Martin Bomber to Aim At New Records Today

By the Associated Press.

The War Department announced yesterday an attempt to set new world's records would be made this morning by a Martin bomber equipped with pontoons at Langley Field, Va., weather permitting.

Brig. Gen. Frank M. Andrews, commanding general of the GHQ air force, according to earlier reports, was scheduled to fly the plane in the record attempt, but the announcement did not name the pilot.

Bill to Finance Rail Pensions Voted by House

Measure Sped to Senate Calls for 3½% Levies on Worker, Company.

By the Associated Press.

A weary House mechanically chanted approval last night of a tax bill to raise pension funds for more than 1,000,000 railway workers.

Speeding toward early adjournment, the House did not even bother to have the bill read. The clerk droned through a series of perfecting amendments which were accepted without debate and then sent the measure to the Senate by a perfunctory voice vote. A similar bill was pending in the Senate Finance Committee.

Chairman Doughton (Democrat), North Carolina, brought the bill to the House floor in a matter of hours after it had won approval of the Ways and Means Committee.

It would impose a 3½ per cent tax on incomes of rail workers and a like levy on carrier pay rolls to be paid by the employer. The money would be turned into the Treasury, from which pensions would be paid to workers under terms of a measure now on the President's desk.

White House Acts.

Only after suggestions came from the White House did the committee agree to an equal division of the tax and to increase the proposed total levy from 6 to 7 per cent. Originally the bill called for a 2 per cent tax on workers and 4 per cent on carriers.

The committee had worried over assertions that 6 per cent would be inadequate to finance the pensions, and that the Government might have to contribute $2,000,000,000 annually—in ten years perhaps $4,000,000,000.

Since the pension plan, which would provide a maximum of $120 a month to employes who had worked 30 years or who had attained the age of 65, does not become effective until next March, the committee would have time to study the need for higher tax rates and make recommendations to the next session of Congress.

Chairman Doughton (Democrat), of North Carolina, of the Ways and Means Committee, asserted it was understood the rail pension was to impose no obligation on the Government, "assumed or implied," and that "the benefits would be scaled down if the tax bill would not raise sufficient funds."

Even as his committee was reaching an agreement on the measure, the Senate Finance Committee, in anticipation of a quick House vote, heard it indorsed and attacked.

Senate Hears Arguments.

Speaking for 21 standard brotherhoods, Timothy Shea, chairman of the Railway Labor Executives Association, asserted workers were willing to pay 2 per cent of their incomes into the pension fund. Word had not reached the Senate committee at that time of the increase voted by the House committee.

The 6 per cent levy, said Edwin Krauthoff, counsel for railway labor organizations, would protect the Government for ten years, and after that the tax could be boosted.

Arguments of inadequacy and unconstitutionality were offered by R. V. Fletcher, general counsel of the Association of American Railroads. He suggested postponing action until the next session of Congress to allow more time for study.

House Reprimanded For Aping Hyenas

By the United Press.

Representative Claude Fuller, presiding in the House of Representatives, was having a difficult time preserving order at one of the few night sessions of Congress this year.

Finally, disgusted, he blurted out:

"I'll recognize no one. All of you will have a chance to offer amendments to this bill. There is no use for you acting like a bunch of hyenas."

The confusion subsided.

Inflation Bonus Petition Signed

Next Congress Must Take Up Patman Bill at Once.

By the Associated Press.

The bonus-by-inflation issue, which racked the now-ending Congress, yesterday was cast squarely before the next session with a vote assured within the first ten days.

Projecting a shadow that stretched 4½ months in advance, 218 House members signed a petition that will force consideration of the Patman bill providing for issuance of $2,000,000,000 of new money to pay the adjusted service certificates.

Representative Patman (Democrat), Texas, author of the bill, said the vote would be on January 13, ten days after the next session opens.

In the stampede yesterday to bring the number of names on the petition to the required 218, four members signed the petition twice. So there were 222 signatures on the petition to represent 218 signers.

Presidnt Appoints Shipyards Mediators

By the United Press.

President Roosevelt in an executive order late yesterday created a board of arbitration looking to settlement of the Camden shipbuilding strike.

He named Rear Admiral Henry A. Wiley, retired, as chairman, and Robert Bruere, New York, and Col. Frank P. Douglass, Oklahoma City, as the other members. The board was named after a lengthy session at the White House in which the Camden situation wasm explored by the President with Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins and Assistant Secretary of the Navy Henry L. Roosevelt.

Roosevelt Talk To Bring Quick Reply by G.O.P.

Snell to Go on Air Sunday to Answer President's Speech Saturday.

By the Associated Press.

Signaling approach of a thunderous presidential campaign, Republicans arranged yesterday to give a quick reply to President Roosevelt's speech tomorrow night.

Less than 24 hours after the radio address of the President from the White House, Representative Snell, of New York, the Republican leader, will go before the microphones. He said yesterday that what he would say depended on what happened between now and Sunday night. The President's speech is one of the things that will happen.

Snell has been mentioned frequently as a contender for the Republican nomination next year. Another such contender — Col. Frank Knox, of Chicago—made a radio attack upon the New Deal and its works Wednesday night.

The President will speak at 9:30 p. m., Eastern standard time, tomorrow. The time for Snell's speech has not been set definitely, but probably will be either 7:30 or 10:45 p. m., Eastern standard time, Sunday over the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Republican officials said similar tactics would be employed throughout the coming campaign.

"Every time we get a chance, we will reply," one of them said.

Mrs. Hoyal Arrives.

Plans for the speech were disclosed shortly after Mrs. Robert Lincoln Hoyal, of Douglas, Ariz., came to town to replace Mrs. Ellis A. Yost as director of the women's division of the Republican national committee.

Mrs. Hoyal predicted the Constitution would be the issue for the coming campaign and said women would play a heavy part in it.

While these plans for what will be, in effect, a radio debate on accomplishments of this session of Congress were developing, Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, declared he was "proud" of the record of Congress and asserted "prosperity" is returning despite criticism of the New Deal.

"I do not say that mistakes have not been made," said the Arkansas Senator in a radio forum speech reviewing the session.

"In a program of such magnitude errors are inevitable, but how small and trifling these seem in comparison with the results.

Claims Prosperity Due.

"Our President has been charged with everything from communism to despotism, and yet you cannot pick up a daily paper that does not reflect a rise in the stock market, an increase in profits, a resumption of dividends; in fact, every manifestation that tells of a country bound back to prosperity."

"I am proud of the record made by the Congress, proud of the part it has played in the accomplishment that has brought us so far toward contentment," he said.

He said if the session "had done nothing but enact the social security act, it would have qualified itself for a place among memorable Congresses."

D. C. Job Insurance Bill On Way to White House

Legislative action on the Ellenbogen unemployment insurance bill for the District was completed yesterday with House adoption of a conference report. The measure now goes to the President.

The chief amendment of the conferees required the District to contribute from $100,000 to $175,000 a year toward financing the program. Most of the expense will be borne by pay-roll taxes. Payment of benefits will not begin until 1938, as the plan calls for creation of a reserve fund at the beginning.

House Accepts 'Death Clause' In 219-142 Vote

author of the motion, had called on the House "to settle this question and take it out of politics and out of the campaign next year."

"It is a compromise and not a surrender on the part of either the House or the Senate," Rayburn said. "We have come back to the House asking what I consider to be a reasonable concession. It won't have to go back to the Senate, because they are unanimously for it."

To which Huddleston retorted:

"The gentleman again invites the House to surrender to the Senate. • • • Thank God I have no face that's worth saving. But some of my colleagues have faces that are worth as much to them as the faces of Mr. Corcoran and Mr. Cohen." (Cohen and Thomas Corcoran, Government attorneys, supplied the original draft of the utility bill.)

Rayburn read the President's letter, and this drew a charge from Huddleston that the Texan was unwilling "to consider the case on its own merits." Representative John Cooper (Republican), Ohio, joined Huddleston in the attack.

Said the President's letter:

"I have seen a copy of the proposed substitute for subsection b of section II of the public utility holding company bill offered by the Senate conferees as a compromise of the differences between the House and Senate bills on the subject matter of such subsection b.

"From the point of view of the House, this proposal certainly constitutes a most generous concession on the part of the Senate conferees.

"From my point of view, it represents a greater recession from the Senate bill than I should like to see made. But I understand the urgent desire of many members of both houses to have a bill worked out at this session, and to that end I hope the House will find this proposal of the Senate conferees acceptable."

That letter turned the trick so far as the House was concerned. The "compromise" was accepted and the last serious adjournment barrier crumbled with it.

On the House vote instructing conferees to accept the "compromise," 59 Democrats joined 83 Republicans in shouting "no," but 202 Democrats combined with 7 Republicans, 7 Progressives and 3 Farmer-Laborites in piling up a majority of "ayes."

"Must" Slate Complete.

Approval of the Guffey-Snyder bill by the Senate virtually completed the Administration's slate of "must" bills, aside from measures now tied up in conference.

The coal bill slid through by an 8-vote margin, amidst a running fire of charges that it will sovietize the soft coal industry and establish a price-fixing and marketing monopoly for Eastern coal operators.

The final Guffey bill count showed 38 Democrats, 6 Republicans and 1 Progressive voting "aye" and 24 Democrats, 12 Republicans and 1 Farmer-Laborite balloting "no."

Outstanding among the amendments was a change proposed by Senator William E. Borah (Republican), Idaho, and approved Wednesday, removing anti-trust law exemption from coal operators who co-operate.

Another important amendment proposed by Senator M. M. Logan (Democrat), Kentucky, and adopted yesterday, was a blow to United Mine Workers' control of district boards.

As originally written, the bill provided for election of the labor member of each district board by the "national" organization representing the "preponderant number of employes in their industry." The Logan amendment eliminated the word "national," permitting the election to be made by the organization having the majority in the individual district.

The change was approved over the vigorous opposition of Senator Matthew M. Neely (Democrat), of West Virginia, who said it was designed to "protect the fraudulent company union."

Closed Shop Assailed.

Senator William H. King (Democrat), of Utah, replied with an "objection to any legislation that compels a closed shop."

"This is a free country, and I oppose utterly any legislation that will compel miners to join a particular union," King said. "There are a great many miners who do not belong to the United Mine Workers."

From the standpoint of Illinois, Indiana and Iowa, the bill was amended in another important respect, on motion of Senator Sherman Minton (Democrat), Indiana. The bill as written sought to create minimum price-fixing areas and embraced these three States in area No. 1 with West Virginia and Pennsylvania, whereby the latter could compete in Chicago markets irrespective of freight advantages. Minton's amendment provided for creation of a new minimum price-fixing area, embracing these States.

Constitutional Test.

In a national sense, the bill is more than a measure to set up a national bituminous coal commission to regulate the coal industry, President Roosevelt, in a letter to Representative Samuel B. Hill (Democrat), Washington, made clear that he intends to make of the proposed act a test of how far the Constitution will stretch. Mr. Roosevelt asked members to approve the bill, regardless of doubts as to constitutionality, "however reasonable."

In the turbulent course of debate, Senator Thomas P. Gore (Democrat), Oklahoma, said the bill "not only violates the Constitution of the United States, but the constitution of nature itself."

At least one Administration stalwart, Senator Tom Connally (Democrat), Texas, raised the Constitutional issue when Senator John H. Bankhead (Democrat), of Alabama, proposed a tax of ½ cent a barrel on oil to compensate for the 15 per cent tax on coal provided in the bill.

"Russia permits particular groups to form soviets, which make their own laws," shouted Connally. "That's what this bill seeks to do—to sovietize the coal industry. It permits particular groups to use the taxing power of the United States, not for the purpose of raising revenue, but for their own special benefit. Any one who has read the Supreme Court's Schecter case decision knows that this bill is utterly unconstitutional."

The Bankhead motion was defeated, but even so, Senator Connally, who hails from the chief oil-producing State of the Union, voted against the bill on passage.

Before the final vote, Senator William H. Dieterich (Democrat), Illinois, renewed his three-day assault on the measure.

"I live in a small community of 8,000," he said. "The mines in that section are able to deliver coal to the community at a very low price through the use of trucks. Yet this bill seeks to levy a tax upon that activity, which is in no sense in interstate commerce."

Dieterich said the bill as written would increase the price of coal in his State alone from $2 to $3 a ton.

Senator King failed in an effort to strike out a section exempting marketing agreements from prosecution under anti-trust laws, when they had the sanction of the bituminous coal commission.

Under the measure, the new commission would be created in the Interior Department and would comprise five members and the office of "consumers counsel." There would be 23 district boards of from 3 to 17 members, including one representative of labor. A bituminous coal labor board of three members also would be set up to have jurisdiction over soft coal labor relations. Collective bargaining provisions would parallel those of the labor relations act.

Under the rules of the national board, the district boards will fix minimum prices, draw up "fair trade" practices and supervise the flow of coal into the markets. There would be 14 minimum price areas.

Although a 15 per cent tax would be levied on value of coal at the mine doors, 90 per cent of this would be rebated to operators who co-operated in the program.

Coupled with the President's desire to see how far the Constitution will go in permitting legislation of this character, were arguments by Administration forces that will serve as a major implement in averting a coal strike.

The Senate immediately asked a conference with the House on the measure, to adjust differences between the two chambers.

Another hurdle to adjournment tomorrow was removed earlier, when the Senate Commerce Committee turned thumbs down on the President's request that a ship subsidy bill be enacted this session.

Senator Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), of New York, chairman of the committee, introduced a resolution following a session of the committee, extending existing ocean mail contracts (expiring in October) until April 30, 1936. Senator Hugo Black (Democrat), Alabama, has a counter resolution to terminate existing contracts 90 days after opening of the next Congress.

Copeland called his committee together to hear a letter from the President, which read in part:

"Dear Royal,

"I do hope the shipping bill will go through. I know you will do the best you can on the various forms before you."

Three Republican members of the committee, Senate Minority Leader McNary, and Senators Vandenberg, of Michigan, and White, of Maine, walked out immediately, saying they wanted nothing more to do with the matter. Copeland said there was no hope of getting a bill through this session, particularly as the President had failed to give his opinion on a new draft of the bill now before the committee.

The House already has passed a ship subsidy bill, and the Senate committee had reported a revised version. Recently a new draft was laid before it, purporting to be the result of collaboration between Senator Black and Karl A. Crowley, solicitor for the Postoffice Department.

Other Bills Passed.

Other progress toward adjournment yesterday included the following:

The House, without a record vote, approved a tax bill companion to the railroad retirement act which earlier passed both chambers. It would impose a pay roll tax of 3½ per cent on employers and another 3½ per cent tax on rail workers, both to be paid into the Treasury, which already is authorized to provide rail pension funds.

The House passed a $92,691,299 third deficiency bill, the bulk of which would supply funds for the first year's operation of the social security act. This brought the session's appropriations to $8,246,000,000.

The Patman bonus petition, to force a House vote on the inflationary Patman bonus bill, was "signed up" with the necessary 218 signatures. The Patman forces do not plan to ask a vote this session, however, but will ask action soon after Congress convenes in January. Senate Administration leaders already have promised a Senate showdown at that time.

The $250,000,000 wealth-taxing bill, which already has been approved by conferees, was held in reserve yesterday lest Congress after passing it, bolt for adjournment.

Autumn Fashions Run to Vivid Hues

Glorious Reds, Greens, Blues In Schiaparelli Show.

Paris—The glorious colors featured in Schiaparelli's recent opening have challenged the attention of all who viewed her fall and winter display. Vivid reds are prominent, such as a vermillion called Gallois red, and many tones of carrot and orange. The color known as chocolate paper is noted for its subdued glow. Green is shown in a wide range of tones, particularly the dark shades, which appear even in satin evening dresses. Blues in deep royal hues and dark purples are in evidence, and there is a new violet called imperial. Pearl gray is sometimes combined with vivid yellow, and the latter color is emphasized for gold rayon lame mixtures. A few browns are seen, one particularly worthy of mention being used in a velvet evening gown with a top bodice in transparent acetate fabric in degrade tones of pink in small shell design. Orchid and pale pink are also observed. An interesting mixture of slit cellulose film combines midnight blue and black. Black gowns are still prominent, the evening costumes often enhanced with color.

Discovering America

With Maxine Davis

Chicago, Aug. 22.—I was talking to a truck driver for a great manufacturer of agricultural implements here.

"Why don't you fellows organize?" I wanted to know. My victim was a little man with the general aspect of a jockey who doesn't have to diet any more, and an alert face a little the worse for wear, with its squashed nose and cauliflower ear, but he looked pretty wise.

"Well, it's this way, lady. We had a union here oncet, a long time ago. It didn't work out. We get treated white by the company. We ain't had no wage cut, and we're working the same hours we was during the NRA. And the company took care of every guy who'd been working for it five years when the depression came and it had to cut down. None of us ain't been on relief. We got no kick.

"But I'll tell you what, lady. We all know what the unions have done for us. We know who we got to thank for our pay, and for getting off in time to throw a baseball around in the vacant lot with our kids. It's the unions that held out for it.

Nonunionists Not Rivals.

"Just because we don't want to start nothing by organizing don't mean we're against it. And if anybody around here thinks they can line the working man who don't belong up against them that does, they've got another think coming. If it comes to a showdown, that is."

That was interesting, because Chicago is a nonunion town. Or so I'm told. I'm a wandering reporter, and not precisely informed. I am concerned with the situation, and I inquired further. Here are some of the other things I heard.

The president of one of the largest manufacturers of men's clothing said, "We've only the highest regard for the Amalgamated. Our relations are so satisfactory that we wouldn't change them if we could."

And the vice president of one of the largest can and carton factories gave me an opinion which I feared was going to end in apoplexy.

"If they ever try to organize we'll close our plant. Once upon a time we had a factory and a whole community grew up around it. People owned their homes, and trades people depended on them. We told them if they formed a union we'd move the plant. They went ahead anyhow and we shut down and moved that particular unit to Cincinnati, where they didn't have any such fool ideas. Most of those people are on relief today."

I met a girl working in a small candy factory. She went to work for $8.25 a week, on the understanding that if she learned her trade she'd be raised. The $8.25 was for three days, she was told, and the other three days of work were charged up to "education." That was seven months ago. She's still "learning." "Form a union?" she jittered. "Oh, no. Times will pick up. What good does the union do people like me?"

I rode in the elevated beside a burly workman in a paper plant. "Don't let me hear of any of those union fellows coming around and trying to start trouble," he said, and his belligerent lurch was only partly due to the turn the train was taking around a loop curve. "Say, I just got my job back after twiddling my thumbs and telling the case worker how many fillings I got in my teeth. Maybe my pay ain't so good as it might be, but, by God, I earn it, and no case worker can ask me what I did with it. Don't let no union organizer start nothing around me."

Which, as a cross-section of Chicago sentiment in the labor situation, all adds up into nothing special for this inquirer.

Mrs. C. C. Miller To Play Lead In Production

Warrenton Presents the Comedy "Horse Play" This Evening.

Mrs. Celeste Crosby Miller, of Viewtree, Warrenton, Va., and Washington, has been selected to play the leading role in the comedy, "Horse Play," which will be presented at the Warrenton Theater Friday, August 30, for the benefit of the Fauquier County Hospital. Others in the cast will include Mrs. Ben Cain, Miss Jane Hall, Mrs. W. D. Morton, Miss Virginia Howard Bowman, Mr. Ben Cain, Mr. Gould Shaw, Mr. William W. Gulick, jr., Mr. John Drake and Mr. Lincoln Theismeyer.

The play will be featured by a cast of near professionals, several of the participants having previously appeared in semi-professional productions. The play, with the scenes laid in Warrenton, was written by Mr. Lloyd Gough, of New York, author and playwright, after a sojourn in Warrenton and observation of the society and sporting set there.

The plot has to do with a couple, the wife "wearing the breeches," and being far more interested in her horse than in husband and home. The husband, a business man, has little interest and enthusiasm for horses. The wife is finally "broken to harness," and they live ever happily after.

Miss Sue Peirce, of Canterbury Farms, is assisting Mr. Gough in the production of the play, which is being eagerly awaited by Warrenton's social set, and which has been previewed as one of the most interesting ever offered on a local stage. It will go far to sustain that reputation, since for several generations Warrenton has offered a number of clever productions, even operettas, written, produced and led by a resident of Warrenton. It has also given to the New York stage worthy representatives, and, today, has acting in Washington two or three native "sons and daughters."

A reception for the two families and a few intimate friends will follow the ceremony.

This BUSINESS of LIVING

Widow, 38, Asks Suggestions on How to Make Friends With Men Her Age.

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I read your column every day and enjoy it very much. You have helped so many others that I wonder if you can help me. I am a widow 38 years of age and lost my husband five years ago. I am very lonely. I would like to go places, but don't care to go alone.

It is my hope to meet some nice man of my own age or a few years older with whom I could go dancing and have as a congenial social companion. I dress well, even though my salary is small, am considered good looking and have a pleasant personality. My family on both sides has lived in Virginia for generations.

• • • •

Can you suggest any steps I might take to meet men of the type I would like to have for friends? It seems almost impossible to do so nowadays, as the majority of men of my age seem to be looking for friends of the opposite sex among girls in their 'teens or early twenties.

• • • •

Perhaps I should explain that I lived for ten years in the West, and came back here only recently. It is necessary to make new friends and I am hoping you can offer some suggestions. I want to thank you for the enjoyment I have derived from your excellent column. I feel you do much good. Sincerely.

MAE.

Community Social Center.

DEAR MAE: A program of social and educational activities for adults is conducted virtually the year 'round at Roosevelt High School, Thirteenth and Upshur streets northwest, by the Community Center Department of the District public schools. The six weeks' intensive summer program has just been concluded, but the winter schedule starts October 15.

During the winter season, meetings are held every Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings, beginning at 7 o'clock. There are classes in contract bridge, conversational French, tap dancing, social dancing, fencing, archery, basketball and physical education, among other things; and each Tuesday evening meeting takes the form of a social gathering with dancing from 8:30 until 11 p. m.

• • • •

The Tuesday evening program opens at 7 p. m., with a beginners' class in social dancing. At 7:30 there is an advanced class in social dancing. At 8 o'clock there is a social recess, and at 8:30 dancing begins. Instruction in other subjects listed above is given on other evenings. You may enroll in any class, or attend any evening gathering, simply by presenting yourself at room 103, office of Miss Adelaide L. Irving, secretary of the center, on the evening in question and announcing your wish to do so. The cost of any evening's instruction and entertainment is 25 cents.

• • • •

A short story and discussion group class will be conducted free of charge each Monday evening at 7 o'clock, beginning October 1, at Roosevelt High School by Mr. J. B. McBriarty. The same course will be offered by Mr. McBriarty at Ben Murch School, Thirty-sixth and Ellicott streets, each Friday evening during the winter. Current events, new books, theater and drama are discussed; short stories and radio skits are written by members of the group and criticized by others; playlets and radio skits are presented. Members of last winter's class so much enjoyed the weekly meetings that they refused to disband when the date for summer recess arrived on May 30, but continued to meet regularly at the homes of members throughout the summer.

• • • •

Something of the same sort has happened in the French conversation class conducted this summer by Miss Pauline de Brodes, graduate of Columbia University and former student at the Sorbonne in Paris. The six weeks' summer course, brought to a close on August 14 with a skit entitled, "A Tea Party in Paris," so pleased students that the course was increased to 12 weeks by popular demand. Classes are held each Monday evening.

• • • •

It occurs to me you may make three-fold progress toward becoming an interesting, attractive woman with a host of friends by embracing such opportunities as are offered by this community service. For one thing, you can meet men and women whose interests and social necessities are similar to yours, on grounds of mutual acceptance and understanding. For another, you can develop greater social poise by enlarging your repertory of social talents. And for a third, you can learn that there are other ways of defeating loneliness than by going places in company with a man.

• • • •

The person who knows the companinoship to be found in books, who has discovered the worlds of art, literature and music, who dares to try his hand at short-story and playwriting, who follows current events with an intelligent and interested eye; who tries to master some new accomplishments each day, each month, or even each year (be it learning languages, skating, swimming, or what-not) need not be actually lonely, even though he is much alone.

• • • •

Persons as a rule are interesting to others in the degree that they are interested in all those things which go to make up the world in which we live. You should not expect some man to be your "way of life." You must first create an interesting, stimulating life-pattern for yourself and then you may expect to find many volunteers willing to enjoy the pattern with you.

M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Women Again Turn to Charm As Means of Attaining Ends, But Leader Favors Militancy

By Malvina Lindsay,

A WIDESPREAD revival of feminine charm apparently is under way. On every hand books, magazines and bulletins are offering women formulas by which they can fascinate and presumably dominate men. No sooner does an American woman engage the interest of the Prince of Wales than a pamphlet is on the market revealing her secrets of enchantment. "What men like" is becoming the feminine byword of the day and every third woman you meet is cultivating an undulating glide or a rapt stare.

• • • •

Coincident with this phenomenon there descends on Washington a militant feminine group representing the embattled housewives of Detroit. These women, who say they are boycotting the butchers because of high meat prices, are using a direct action rather than "nods and becks and wreathed smiles" to win their ends. They are reminiscent of some of the pre-suffrage armies.

• • • •

This naturally raises the question as to which method, the direct or the indirect, women will pursue in protecting their rights in future emergencies. Will they find it more effective to turn seductive smiles on industrial Hitlers and congressional Mussolinis or to break windows and burn mail boxes?

SOME INTERESTING light on the way Anglo-Saxon women get what they want is offered by Frank Swinnerton in "The Georgian Scene." He attributes the English women's suffrage victory largely to the rumpus they raised.

• • • •

"What always happens in England," says Mr. Swinnerton, "is that when men are sufficiently worried they yield. This is because they have a passion for peace which is sometimes called a love of justice, or sometimes the British Genius for Compromise, but which, as many women know, is nothing but a hatred of a fuss."

• • • •

The same situation prevails to a large extent in America. Even Congress, if ragged sufficiently long on any subject, will give in, as note the agreement to pay the soldiers' bonus. And certainly it was persistent and direct action, rather than any subtle political vamping, that won women in this country the vote. For the early suffragists had already discovered that the so-called indirect influence of "the hand that rocks the cradle," which was constantly preached at them by their male opponents, was highly undependable in the field of political action.

IN ANY GENERAL defensive or offensive undertaken by women, solidarity is the first requirement of success. And there can be no solidarity among charmers. For unfortunately the best enchanters are usually the most undependable soldiers. They are likely to desert at the first bribe of a fur coat or a lobster supper.

• • • •

Certainly there is no one but who will welcome the return of feminine charm. It is a long time since we have had any to speak of. In the pre-war period women were taking themselves so seriously as careerists and reformers as to be social bores. In the post-war jazz period the brusque flapper was to say the least unsubtle in her personal relationships. Following her, the hard-boiled sophisticate imparted an Arctic chill to social life. And during the depression feminine charm sadly languished, as it is not an art to be pursued with half-soled shoes and last season's hats.

• • • •

Yes; the return of charm will make life pleasanter for everyone. And it will help women greatly in achieving individual ends. But they may as well face the fact that in any big crisis affecting their general welfare they may as well prepare to be—well, militant in a nice way. This failing, they may even—remembering Mr. Swinnerton's hint—have to become fishwives.

College Girls To Find Verve In New Styles

Rich Reds, Browns and Tweeds Will Rule, Says Fashion Expert.

A SLIM young person in a rose rust velveteen dress. A top tweed coat of darker shade, tweed scarf to match, and a flat velvet beret set off with a blue lacquered feather. That, according to Miss Helen Cornelius, fashion authority of Harper's Bazaar, is one picture of Miss 1935 Collegiate.

Miss Cornelius for the last two days has been directing the college style shows at Jelleff's. Costumes displayed included winter coats, swagger suits, tailored dresses, dinner and evening frocks, and formal wraps.

"The college girl is going to blossom forth this autumn in rich red and brown shades, in luscious greens, and tangy blues," said Miss Cornelius. "As usual her campus clothes will be selected for comfort and practicality, but this season they combine these attributes with more verve and more real chic than ever before!"

Skirts Shorter.

Skirts are shorter, she pointed out, ranging from 12 to 14 inches from the floor. And skirts are fuller. There are more pleats, and there's more flare to silhouette in general. Suggestions of peplums, mushroom collars, full sleeves! Dresses are emphasizing more freedom of action, declared Miss Cornelius.

Not Paris Models.

"College fashions," she continued, "are not dictated from Paris or Hollywood. They originate right on the campus and fulfill the needs of the young collegiate. They do reflect the mode, however, and combine current styles with a smartness of their own."

Off the campus when school hours are over, the college girl delights in informal dinner gowns made along simple, shirtwaist lines, says Miss Cornelius. Her favorite colors for such casual garb range this season from the ever popular and flattering black and white to Medici red and Mediterranean blue.

While debutantes are thrilling over the long, all-concealing evening wrap, the college girl is dividing her preference between these dramatic cloaks and the short jacket or cape, was another one of the many points touched on by Miss Cornelius.

Rich Hues in Durable Fabrics Feature Smartly Cut Suits for Campus Wear

The musically inclined fellow is wearing an odd jacket of brown and black mixture, with gray flannel slacks, and a shirt with the new widespread collar. His friend, who doesn't seem to be going out tonight, has on a blue flannel robe with white dragon embroidered across the back. Other items scattered about include a stitched fur felt hat, crocheted tie and plaid shirt of brushed cotton. Oh, yes—and a pair of plain buckskin shoes with marron rubber soles.

The Crochet Tie Returns Unwrinkable and Gay as Ever.

By John Q. Alexander.

IN THE spring a young man's fancy . . . but in the fall he's even more so. All summer long he's been barging around in white—white shoes, white suits, white slacks, white everything—and, by jimminy, he's weary of looking like an overgrown dove of peace. From now on, he's out for color!

And so, these days, you'll find him threshing about in men's shops, buying bright plumage. He'll emerge dazzling as the spectrum, which is well, particularly for the collegian. For he is young and apple-cheeked enough to change his colors as unblushingly as the chameleon, and get away with it. Almost any hue goes.

Today's words are dedicated to those lucky guys who will be off for school soon. No doubt they'll put their shopping off till the last moment, but at any rate our suggestions may help make those last moments a little less feverish.

Everything mentioned today has been chosen as suitable for young men in and out of town during the next few months. Prime considerations have been good taste, smartness and last but not least, durability, since young men are even harder on their clothes than they are on their parents—if possible.

Three-in-One Cheviot Outfit.

Standing out among current items like Mae West at a Girl Scout picnic (and deserving as much attention) is a suit we saw yesterday. It is of cheviot, a mixture of brown and black, cut exactly right for campus and country. The beauty of it is that it will serve either as a complete suit, or you can use the jacket with gray flannels, or the trousers with another odd jacket or sweater. Really a sort of three-in-one outfit. The coat has a modified sports back—an inverted center pleat and a smaller pleat on either side. Half-belted, of course. Patch pockets, flap-less. It's smart and will wear practically forever. Fifty dollars and worth more.

The most practical tie in the world is the crocheted kind. It is extremely good-looking, has an air of gayety and verve, and doesn't wrinkle, stretch, shrink or soil easily. A good crocheted tie should last for years. Horizontal stripes are best this season, and perfect for school wear. $2 each.

Next best thing in ties is made of wool, which likewise is virtually wrinkle proof, lasts indefinitely, cleans (when necessary) beautifully. $1.50 each, available in dots, stripes and plaids.

Duke of Kent Sets Dollar Fad.

If the king can do no wrong, neither can the Duke of Kent, we suppose—they being in the same business, as it were. Well, the Duke is wearing a new type of collar on his shirts this year and we'll wager it finds wide acceptance in the universities. It's extremely widespread—comfortable. Don't use a collar pin, and have the knot in your tie larger than heretofore. Available in fine quality madras and cheviots, $3.50.

This same store has a fine selection of the new plaid and hound's-tooth designs in shirts of brushed cotton resembling flannel but lighter in weight. They are new, ultra-smart, and long enduring under the damaging influence of the average laundry, $4 each, and when you've got one of these, you've really got something.

If you've been searching for a hat you can sit upon, chew upon, crush, and beat cruelly without destroying its beauty, we've found it first. Constructed of stitched fur felt, quite dashing, and very flattering. Don't wear it around town, but at school and for the great outdoors it's the top. For $5, take your pick of two shades of gray, wood brown or dark green.

Stylish Overplaid Slacks.

Slacks are practically a necessity and necessarily practical, since they can be worn with odd jackets, sweaters or anything else in infinite combinations and besides they take an awful beating and come through smiling. The best we've seen are of overplaids on dark brown and Cambridge gray (the latter being stylish color this year), priced at $12.50. This outfitter has other new ones in large herring-bone designs, brown and gray, at the same price. They are unusually well tailored, with the correct amount of pleating and open welt-side seams.

If you're one of those men who insists upon wearing white shoes all winter (the flock increases yearly) now's the time to get a bargain. Best of the lot for knock-about service is a shoe of white buck, with a thick maroon raw rubber sole, and no fancy business at all such as perforations or seams. Should be comfortable, and buckskin cleans easily. Special sale, $2.95 per pair.

Don't buy a dressing gown or bath robe until you've looked at the ones we saw yesterday. They are wrap-arounds, without buttons and have a patented belt which won't slip through the loops—a blessing, indeed. Pure wool flannel, in all colors, with designs, such as dragons, embroidered in contrasting colors across the back. These are really swell—the ones we liked best were of navy blue with Chinese red dragon having a spasm across the shoulders, and the same thing with the dragon in light blue. Best of all is the price—$7.95, low, considering the quality.

Light but Hardy Raincoat.

Our idea of the raincoat to end all raincoats is made of a special processed material, light as duck feathers and absolutely waterproof. Semitransparent, and comes in black, green, tan, brown or blue. You can fold it in a small space, and it won't stick, wrinkle or crack and though thin, is strong. Double-breasted, with reglan shoulders, $15. Others by the same maker, not as classy, of course, but still unusually good, are priced as low as $5.50.

If you go in for mornings after the night before, we've got a suggestion for making you feel up and at 'em in spite of all. It's a gargantuan towel of pure linen terry, natural color, with red and white border and fringed ends—lovely to look at. Linen terry is harsher than the ordinary variety and a good rub-down with this towel after a cold shower will make you feel like doing things. Straight from England, $2 each. Impress your friends.

Idle Laughter Over Mistakes Injures Child

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

It is very easy to gain a feeling of superiority by laughing at others. If one laughs at one's contemporaries, one is apt to get as good as one gives. But children are defenseless, and many adults prop up their own self-esteem by laughter and ridicule of children. Parents are often guilty of this breach of etiquette, and quite unconsciously.

Tommy mispronounces a word which he has found in some book. Quite without malicious intent, there is laughter. Tommy's excursions into etymology may be cut short by the involuntary laughter. He will take care never again to use that word or any other about which he is doubtful.

Mary recites an original poem which to her is the essence of beauty. Her brothers and sisters laugh, of course—that was to be expected. Father and mother will understand. But they laugh also, and the child undergoes an agony of shame. Never again will she lay herself open to such an ordeal.

It is hard to keep from laughing at such moments, and parents must be on their guard lest their sense of humor prove too strong. It is, however, a matter of common courtesy among adults not to laugh at each other for social breaks. Surely the same consideration can be given one's children.

If Tommy mispronounces a word, the thing to do is either to wait and correct him later on, very casually, and not as if it were a matter of importance, or else to say at the time, without emphasis, "I think that is pronounced so and so," not as one speaking from a position of superiority, but in the tone one would use to a contemporary. It may even be well to suggest recourse to a dictionary to see if there is an alternate pronunciation.

Short-Sleeved Sailor Dress Ideal for Hot Summer Days

Pattern No. 750.

THE SHORT-SLEEVED SAILOR-TYPE dress is perfect for the dog days. Low-necked, easy-fitting, it is cool yet not too summery. Silk crepe or novelty cotton would be suitable for it.

The tailored version included in the same pattern is particularly easy to wear. The shaped collar and vestee offer a choice for interesting use of contrasting fabrics. The skirt has the fullness demanded of 1935 frocks. This pattern is cut in sizes 12 to 20; 30 to 38. Size 16 (34) requires 3½ yards of 39-inch fabric for the short-sleeved frock; 3⅜ yards of 39-inch material and 1⅛ yards of contrast for the long-sleeved version.

Grandmother's Lotion Insures Velvety Hands

Old Blend of Honey and Olive Oil Still Best on Market.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

CHALK UP another point for grandmother. She's scored again, and this time with a bit of good, old-fashioned beauty advice.

Grandmother modestly admits she was the belle of the county, and she "didn't use a lot of doo-fangles, either." But one thing she did do was keep her hands smooth and white, "as a lady's hands ought to be," says she.

And how did she do this? Grandmother's not a bit bashful about telling. She used a certain lusciously scented lotion which is compounded of honey and almond oil. Oh, it's an old, old formula all right, but it still works wonders. You ought to see grandmother's hands! Skin like a magnolia petal!

It's really thanks to grandmother that we are able to buy this velvety lotion. Her son is a chemist who does a lot of work for a certain large cosmetic house. She sold the idea of her preparation to him, and he in turn sold it to the manufacturers. Now, it's here, on sale in a downtown store. And while it's put up in a modern looking bottle, it's still the same grand old lotion that's been proved and tried these many years.

It may be used on the face as well as the hands and be depended on to do a splendid job of softening and soothing the skin. Just try it! If your face, or your hands, are scaly, and rough, you'll find that one application does wonders, and two or three work a sure cure.

Keeps Tubs Clean.

AS SOMEONE whimsically remarked, "of course there's no place like home—there's no other place we have so much to do!" And true enough, there are always myriads of little duties for everyone around the house. There's the question of picking up this and that, keeping the mirrors polished, and the floors shiny, the windows clear, and silver polished, the furniture in good condition—and last, but far from least, the tub clean.

That cleaning of the tub is just another nuisance. A necessary one, of course, but certainly a tedious one. A certain Washington housewife discovered not long ago one way to make this dread duty a simple task, which may be performed quickly and thoroughly. She suggests using a certain sponge which has a miraculous cleansing powder concealed inside of it.

You simply wet the sponge, a small square piece about the size of an ordinary cake of soap. And does it cleanse! And is it practical! You can use it time after time and it's just as good as new!

Not only is this the ideal solution of dirty tubs, but it keeps the windshield clean and polished, mirrors and fixtures in top-notch condition, and is unrivaled for good work on porcelain, tile, enamel, nickel and painted surfaces.

One sponge costs only 10 cents.

New Umbrellas Modish.

WHEN A CLOUD of gray engulfs the day just as you start out on your shopping tour, better dare that old sun to show his face by taking along an umbrella. Of course umbrellas are bothers! No one will deny that. But since we have to put up with them, why not choose one that complements our costume and at the same time protects it from a drenching downpour? Those little flimsy affairs that cast flattering shadows are fine and dandy, but—they're about as good as a lace hanky when it comes to keeping the rain out. No need, of course, to carry one that looks like a small circus tent and flaps and bulges even when it's closed.

The proper solution lies in those 16-rib gloria umbrellas now selling in a downtown store for only $1.69. They are shower proof, and what's more they're downright good looking. The smooth texture of the fabric and the attractive composition handles give them a real claim to chic. Certainly their price gives them a send-off with one and all.

Tiny Gardens Realistic.

WITH THE CHARM of exquisitely cut cameos the little miniature English gardens are exercising strong appeal for the shoppers in an F street store. They have set a new pace for house ornaments and strike a new note in artistry. Each one is so perfect in itself, so real that you might almost imagine you were viewing an actual garden with its vivid flowers and rich shrubs clustered around a small rock-bound pond.

A mirror makes the pond. The flowers and shrubs are artificial. They're grouped together in a china plate. Words cannot depict them as they really are, so do see them whether you're in a buying mood or not.

Soothing Cold Cream Soap.

Three big, loud, lusty cheers for a certain buyer in a downtown store! For a long time she has been on the lookout for a good, a really good, soap which she could sell in her department for a modest price. Now at last, after months of looking, she's found what she wanted. It's a cold cream soap, with no cloying sweetness, just a good, fresh, clean smell. Lather? Marvelously! And is it good for those rough, peeling skins, the aftermath of a summer at the beach!

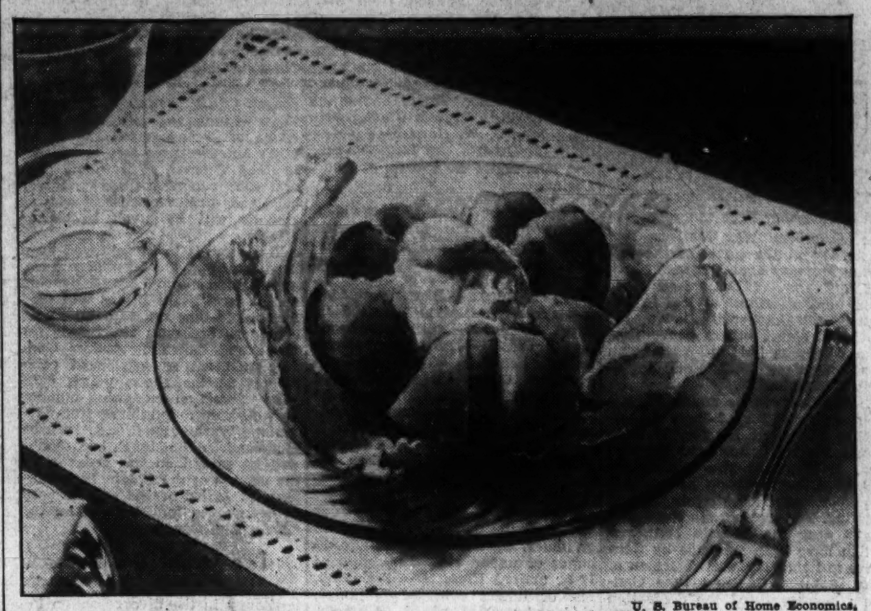
Salads Give Meals Refreshing Aspect That Stimulates Heat-Jaded Appetites



U. S. Bureau of Home Economics.

A salad when served as the chief dish of a summer meal should contain all the food values of a well-balanced meal. The cream cheese, tomato and lettuce salad illustrated above has all the essential elements—starch, vitamins, minerals and protein.

Perfectly Balanced Meal May Be Provided by Cold Dishes.

A MEAL THAT looks refreshing can do a lot toward lifting wilted spirits and relieving overheated dispositions. The chief dish of such a meal may be a salad in which the food values are well balanced. Crackers, small sandwiches, rolls, biscuits or muffins that usually accompany a summer salad plate furnish the starchy food element, while lettuce, shredded cabbage, cress, tomatoes cucumbers and green peppers furnish all the vitamins and minerals one needs.

Cheese, cold meat, including chicken, fish and eggs, furnish the protein element required for good balance. First on the list for substantial value combined with lightness is cottage cheese or cream cheese. Add a little something tart or pungent and use mayonnaise or Russian dressing. The oil in the dressing will supply the fat that is an essential of a perfectly balanced meal.

You might try some of the jellied meat or fish salads. These are both cool and substantial, and are also a solution for your summer leftovers. Chicken, lamb and veal will be the jellied meat your family will especially like. Serve horseradish or a green relish or catsup with jellied meat dishes.

Meat-Filled Jellies Tasty.

Another way to use a jellied foundation for a salad is to make a tomato or vegetable jelly in a ring mold and fill the center with a fish or meat salad. This is also an attractive way to serve chicken salad.

Hard-cooked egg salad belongs particularly to the summer salad group. Eggs are almost always on hand and they are moderately priced in summer. You may serve eggs in plain halves or deviled and stuffed. A little cheese or a little chopped country ham worked in with the yolks gives zest to deviled eggs and a sprinkle of paprika adds the needed color accent.

With these hearty salads served on plenty of lettuce or shaved cabbage and accompanied by almost any form of bread, you can work out many appetizing, simple, cold meals. Have fruit for dessert, perhaps a cookie or two, a glass of iced tea, and what more do you want for a summer meal.

Here are two refreshing summer salads that have well-balanced food values:

Cream Cheese Salad.

1½ cups cream cheese or cottage cheese
Lettuce leaves
French dressing

Arrange crisp lettuce leaves on a salad dish and press cream cheese through a potato ricer upon them. The cheese must be thoroughly chilled before making a salad, and it should be served immediately. Use French dressing and pass barle-duc or guava or any preferred fruit jam or jelly with it.

Fish Salad.

1 lb. flaked, cooked fish
2 tablespoons oil
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 cup chopped celery
Lettuce
Mayonnaise.

The remains of almost any cold fish may be used in salad very satisfactorily, but the salad is more successful when made of fish that will flake nicely, such as salmon, cod, haddock or halibut. Remove the bones, pick the fish into flakes, turn over it oil mixed with vinegar and set away in a cold place. When about to serve, chop celery and add to the fish. Arrange crisp white leaves of lettuce in cup shapes on a platter, using one or two leaves for each, then lay one spoonful of the mixture in each cup and pour over it one spoonful of mayonnaise.

Culbertson On Bridge

Mathematical Odds.

Any primary school mathematician can figure out for himself that the chances of a distribution of four units between two individuals favor a 2-2 over 3-1 or 4-0. On this basis alone there is a rule that with nine trumps in the two hands, missing the Queen, play for the drop. But purely mathematical odds govern a Bridge player only when he has nothing better to guide him, and any experienced card player will rely on the mathematical formula only when he can find nothing to indicate a mutation of the law.

Two Principal Factors.

The two principal factors which guide a good players when he decides to play against purely abstract mathematical odds are counting the opponent's hands and the Law of Symmetry.

Today's hand is a simple one. Declarer's making his contract depended solely on avoiding the loss of a trump trick.

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

4♡(1)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—With partner having given two free raises and indicating a decided preference for suit play, South chose four hearts as his game declaration, despite holding a stopper in diamonds as well as in spades.

The Play.

West opened the King of diamonds and shifted to the King of spades, which declarer won with the Ace. Although he knew he could set up one trick in diamonds, the discard of either a club or spade in dummy could not prevent him from losing one trick in each of these suits. This, with the diamond he had already lost, meant he could not afford to lose a heart trick. Apparently without much thought declarer led a low heart to the Ace and returned a heart, finessing the Jack. The King of hearts captured East's last trump and the Queen of diamonds was played through, forcing West to cover with the Ace. North trumped. South returned to his own hand with the Ace of clubs, cashed the Jack of diamonds, on which he discarded a spade, and then led the ten of clubs. With a trump left for North's fourth club, South lost but three tricks and chalked up the game.

Hat Designer Taps History In New Models for Fall

Italian Types Range From Florentine Turbans to Fascisti Caps.

HATS WITH historical backgrounds were the highlights of a collection of more than 50 original models presented by Lilly Dache recently at a private showing for the press.

Italian types ranging from Florentine and Medici turbans to Fascisti caps (quite modified) emphasized Mme. Dache's belief that the Italian mode not only will survive but will be the successful influence for the coming season.

In addition to the Italian models, hats taken from Ethiopian, African, and many Asiatic sources were shown. Finding her inspiration in such obscure and novel millinery as the headdress of a Senegalese slave girl, the fez of a Turkish high priest and the turban of a Kurdistan warrior, Mme. Dache presented modern hats both excitable and wearable.

Height Irregularity Is Marked.

Height irregularity is an important point of these new hats. It is achieved in many ways, a draped front bow on a toque, a wide double roll on a turban, a fez with "pigtail" and coils of velvet, a front sheet of clipped aigret, a peaked crown with a crest of coq feathers, a conical cap with tiered ribbon trim. The hats are definitely off the face but firmly on the head. Few of them need or have back elastics—a change in hairline that should interest hairdressers.

A rich color range included the Italian shades—Raphael red, Veronese green, vitrail blue—and subtle combinations of henna, brown, yellow and reddish orange in a Rodier fabric whose plaid is interwoven with gold and tinsel threads. Many velvets are used, especially velvet ribbons in broad widths which have not been seen for some time, velours, reindeer suede, felts, both hairy and smooth, and a number of fabrics such as ribbed wool jersey.

Trimmings Simple but Novel.

The trimmings of these new hats are simple but novel. Earrings of bright gold "shells" with matching necklace are effective on an Italian aureole of black velvet. Long, slim veils dotted with black chenille were draped like medieval coifs on dashing black suede skull caps. Quills are used on a number of the sports and tailored street types.

One of hte most effective of the Italian berets had a stiff, straight feather thrust through its double-brimmed crown. Coq feathers, gleaming green and black, were dashing on a peaked black felt hat that might have been worn by a Corsican bandit. A fat rope of wool threads in coral, brown, gray and green bands a conical hat of dark green felt. A new note in trim introduced by Mme. Dache was wide cuff bracelets of carved coral or turquoise to match the hat itself or its color accent.

"Flambeau" is the name of this Raphael red and rose toned velvet turban designed by Lilly Dache.

Mortality Rate From Diabetes Now Going Up

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

WE know what brings on the symptoms of diabetes, namely, a deficient secretion of certain cells of the pancreas—but we do not know why these cells degenerate or why they fail to produce a sufficient amount of insulin to oxidize all the sugar that a given individual chooses to consume. It may well be that the production of insulin by a normal pancreas is limited and that demanding too much of these highly specialized cells is the cause of their failure, just as overuse may destroy the power of a muscle.

Although the discovery of insulin has brought about a startling change in the lives of diabetics and has enabled otherwise hopeless invalids to resume normal activity, we are faced with the curious fact that the mortality from diabetes is increasing steadily. In the United States more than 30,000 deaths occur each year, and there are ten to fifteen times that number of cases. Among women past 45 years of age the disease causes more deaths than does tuberculosis.

Death Rate Fell During War.

The death rate from diabetes showed a marked decrease during the World War. In that period there was a Nation-wide effort to save food, particularly sugars and fats, and on the whole diets more nearly approached actual body needs. A second drop occurred with the advent of the use of insulin, but this was not maintained and the rate is now steadily mounting.

Another unexplained factor has entered the picture. Whereas diabetes was far more marked in males than in females a number of years ago, the present day rate is reported higher in women than in men. This is true particularly following the change of life.

Our large annual per capita consumption of sugar (93 pounds), especially the between meal use of sweet flavored drinks and foods, undoubtedly plays an important role. To this we may add the tendency to use too much food. When we eat carbohydrates to excess we are probably creating a situation which the internal secretion of the pancreas is able to handle for a while, but after a time the gland function is so overworked that diabetes results. Overweight individuals are prone to the disease. This means that these persons have consumed too much food and have stored up surplus fat that should have been burned through work or exercise.

The value of insulin is incalculable. Through its use tens of thousands of lives have been preserved and prolonged with comfort to the patients. We must not forget, however, that in using insulin we are supplying to the blood of the diabetic a secretion that has failed in his own body. Without this artificial supply many sufferers would be hopeless invalids with but a few years of life in prospect.

Few Working Wives Operate Home On Basis of 50-50 Salary Division

Accountings to Husband Held Unnecessary in Most Cases.

Desire for New Trappings Prompts Many to Take Employment.

The working wife—how can she meet her manifold problems? What share of the family expenses should she pay? Should she continue to darn her husband's socks? These and other questions are discussed in the following article, the third in a series of four.

By Emma Perley Lincoln.

AMERICAN MEN apparently deserve their claim to being the best husbands in the world. They allow their wives to do whatever they please. They even permit them to earn as much money as they are able to, and to spend it to suit themselves.

On questioning a half-dozen typical employed couples in moderate circumstances, not one could we find where the arrangement was a definite fifty-fifty split on expenses.

Due to many reasons, Washington has more than the usual quota of husbands and wives gainfully employed. Activity is in the air. Living is pleasant here. People easily become imbued with the idea of enjoying life to the full.

So young Mrs. Average Wife sees no point in struggling along on a meager existence, when her earnings will mean just enough more for wider privileges for her children, added conveniences in the house, possibly more spacious living quarters, and consequently an easier time for her husband.

When asked if she accounted to her husband for what she did with the money she earned, one young woman replied, "Goodness no! Account for my money! I don't even account for how I spend his. My husband turns over his pay check to me just as though I were not earning anything. He never sees the bills. I attend to everything and pay for all the regulation expenses out of his salary."

She Pays the Maid.

In common with most married women who work, this young matron feels that when she is out of the home, it's her job to pay for the maid necessitated by her absence.

"The last few years, my husband has not been making as much as he formerly did, and we would not be keeping a maid if I were at home," she said. "Naturally our expenses are slightly higher this way, as a cook always runs up the grocery bills, but even so it is an economy to have her when I am in an office.

"I always attend to the family shopping, buy all my husband's clothes with the exception of his suits and hats and overcoats. I do not even know how much those cost, until the bills come in, but if they come to a little more than the budget will easily stand, he knows that I will do the worrying, and the bills will be paid.

"The money I earn does things like paying for Sonny's camp in the summer, new things for the house, clothes for myself that I don't especially need but enjoy having. Luxuries like little parties, movies and concerts, anniversary gifts and Christmas savings."

Supporting her mother is one young wife's reason for having a job. "I always contributed to my mother's support before I married," she said, "and I prefer to do it now, rather than add that to my husband's burdens. However, were I unable to work, my husband would do what he could on it."

In the case of the average couple, when the husband is out of a job, as has often happened these last years, the wife steps in and makes her salary meet their expenses. In nine cases out of ten it's gladly and cheerfully done, sparing the husband humiliation as much as possible, and keeping up his morale, until he finds work again.

Wife "No Better Off."

An interesting slant on the working wife situation was provided by one married girl who said she could not really see where she had any more now that she worked than she had before. She has had a job in the Government for about six months, the first since her marriage several years ago.

"I'm making a very good salary," she confided, "having an agreeable job. It's nice to have the money. I've paid for my son's going to camp, but if I hadn't, he would have gone anyway, as we would have managed somehow.

"It's true I have more clothes than usual, and cash seems freer. We don't stop to think quite so long before going out to a restaurant for dinner or for a little roof dancing. My husband is able to have more clothes too, and I've bought lots of little things for the house that we needed and wanted."

As to the family mending and darning, most of the wives keep up this side of their home duties, just as they always have. If they do not do it themselves they see to it that it is done.

One girl said that instead of doing the mending each week, she occasionally took a Saturday afternoon, and did it all in one grand gesture.

Another said that she met the mending problem by turning it over to an elderly woman who needed the money.

All the working wives agreed that if the household expenses were to increase, they would assume the extra burden. But as for a definite 50-50 basis that was out.

Most wives appreciate the dangers which might beset the economically independent course.

"If I thought bringing money into the home, would mean I'd be cut down on, I wouldn't work," they all say.

"If I thought my working were to lesson my husband's effort or ambition in any way, I wouldn't have a job. If it meant that I would be obliged to let the house and children go to rack and ruin, I would not work outside the home. But we find it possible to keep these things up to standard and by working and earning, make a fuller, more abundant life for all of us."

Read tomorrow of how two professional women budget office and home duties.

H.L. Woodward Enters Race for County's Board

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Horace L. Woodward, a resident of Arlington County for the past 18 years and a patent attorney with offices in Washington, has announced his candidacy for membership on the county board of five, subject to the Republican convention to be held next Tuesday at Lyon Park. The election will be in November.

Mr. Woodward for many years has been a delegate to the Arlington County Civic Federation from his community and is president of the Hume School and Civic League.

He says if successful in receiving the nomination at the hands of the Republicans he will base his campaign as follows:

Favors a liberal program for schools; comprehensive development for roads; business form of government, having at all times the best interest of the taxpayers at heart.

He further says that he will, if elected, work for a lower electric light rate for the county and give the people what they need, but will not be in favor of any increase in taxes.

A movement looking to having the county take over the abandoned right of way of the Arlington-Fairfax Railway from Clarendon along Washington avenue to a point where it crosses Relee at Columbia pike is about to be launched, it was revealed last night.

The movement will be sponsored by the Lyon Park Citizens Association and it is planned to hold a mass meeting in the Lyon Park Community House early in September, according to A. D. Adams, president of the association.

This road is badly needed, declared Mr. Adams. At the present the citizens of Lyon Park, Ashton Heights and Clarendon have no direct road leading to the Highway Bridge. With this development much time would be saved in reaching the city, he asserted.

Girls' School Opens Sept. 18

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

St. Agnes School for Girls will open for the 1935-36 session on September 18, Mrs. Helen Arny Macan, headmistress, announces. The school already has a large enrollment.

There is no change in the faculty of the school this session, with the exception of the secretary, Miss Lucy Anderson, succeeding Miss Courtenay M. Cochran, who has resigned.

During the summer the school has been redecorated, interior and exterior, and the extensive grounds improved.

Dr. William Lewis Schafer, city health officer, Dr. Llewellyn Powell, city coroner, and Dr. M. D. Delaney, a physician, have all issued statements to the effect that Alexandria is free of infantile paralysis, and that there is no reason to be apprehensive of the proximity of the Marine base at Quantico, with its shifting population.

Douglas North Stanton, jr., of Alexandria Chapter, Order of De Molay, has been notified by the grand council, Order of De Moley, that he has been awarded the decoration of Representative De Molay.

This makes three local boys winning this distinction, and on Monday evening, September 16, the decorations will be presented to William Edwin Lee, Richard Earl Stulz and Stanton by Harry H. Newton, venerable master of Washington Memorial Lodge of Perfection, Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite Masons.

Funeral services will be held at 9:30 a. m. today in St. Mary's Catholic Church, this city, for George Justis Humphrey, jr., 21, of Clarendon, Va., who was killed on Wednesday, presumably by being struck by a train. The accident occurred at Bush Hill, about 4 miles south of Alexandria.

Rockville Judge Forfeits Collateral

Judge Harold C. Smith was on the receiving end of Montgomery County justice yesterday instead of his accustomed position as magistrate of the police court.

Charged with overtime parking by Deputy Sheriff Leslie B. Thompson, Rockville's town bailiff, who set out on July 15 to enforce the law "without fear or favor," he decided to forfeit $3.50 collateral when Justice Charles Webb called his case yesterday morning.

Webb was appointed by the town council of Rockville when it became apparent that Judge Smith could not hear his own case. The judge, however, was nowhere to be found when the special five-minute session of court was called at 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning.

F ral Rites Held For Girl Slain Here

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hopewell, Va., Aug. 22.—Funeral services were held today for Virgie Lyttle, 26-year-old Washington department store employe, at Hopewell, Va., who was killed during an altercation with Charles Frederick Hisey, Washington linotype operator, at his home there Tuesday morning. Hisey is being held by Washington police.

Prescott Assails Fusionists On Montgomery Tax 'Excuses'

State Senator Attacks Party 'Efforts to Justify' Rate Increase, Charges County Board Will Not Pay Off $1 of Bonded Indebtedness.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post.
1111 Oak Ave., Silver Spring, Md.
Telephone Shepherd 2363.

Attacking reported efforts of the Fusion Party to justify Montgomery County's 60-cent tax increase this year, State Senator Stedman Prescott, former State's attorney for Montgomery County and now chairman of the county Democratic organization, charged that the present county commissioners have not paid off one dollar of the county's bonded indebtedness and do not plan to do so this year.

"This unprecedented increase means that taxpayers will be required to pay $530,430 annually over what was required under the former administration," he said. "Naturally, the Fusion Party is manufacturing any and every possible excuse to give as a reason for this tremendous burden placed upon the taxpayers.

"During the last campaign they repeatedly told the taxpayers that taxes were too high, that there had been waste and extravagance, and if elected they would remedy these evils.

"Yet the taxpayers in this county realize that the present county commissioners have not paid off one dollar of any bonded indebtedness of the county and the present budget with the 60 cents increase in tax rate does not call for the payment of one single dollar thereof.

"Even though they severely criticized the policy of refunding bonds at maturity, they have refunded every bond that has matured since they have been in office and their present budget calls for refunding every one to mature during the fiscal year.

"I have also heard it said that the school budget was increased by $160,000 and the county commissioners are required by law to accept this increase. Mr. Edwin W. Broome, superintendent of schools, informs me that this is not correct.

"It is true that the county levy for schools last year was not as high as at present. The reason is that under the former Democratic administration the county obtained a portion of these funds from the State, and even though the State tax rate is the same as it was last year, the county will not be able to collect the amount obtained by the Democratic county commissioners from a Democratic State administration.

"I have even heard it said, and read one letter in a Washington newspaper stating that the police bill introduced by me at the last session of the Legislature required an increase in the expenditures for the police force and the county commissioners have no control over this.

"As drawn the bill actually authorized, if the county commissioners deemed it wise, a decrease in the number of police and a corresponding decrease in expenditures therefor.

"They have even gone so far as to say there are many pieces of property that have been advertised for sale for taxes and no taxes collected thereon. These properties have previously been bought by the county commissioners at previous tax sales. There would be no good purpose in the county's advertising its own property for sale for taxes.

"They also claim a substantial decrease in the cost of operating the engineering department. Under the former administration there were more employes than at present, but the county was substantially repaid by the State and by abutting property owners.

"The present county commissioners decreased the number of employees, but in doing so they also decreased the work, and an examination of the figures will disclose that the cost to the county and its taxpayers is just about the same as it previously was, although several Montgomery countians have lost employment.

"Yet within three months after taking office I have their letter requesting authorization for an additional bond issue of nearly $1,000,000, and it is a matter of common knowledge that they have recently borrowed nearly $800,000, which will be an increase of nearly one-tenth of the whole outstanding bonded indebtedness of the county.

"It is extremely difficult for economical and efficiency experts to sell to an intelligent electorate a $1.50 tax rate when they have criticized a 90-cent rate as extravagant and wasteful.

"They might attempt to explain to the taxpayers of Montgomery County how it is, with Maryland receiving $52,000,000 highway program from the Federal overnment, none of it is expended in Montgomery County.

The closing of 135 family relief cases because of the provision of employment to members of the family during July in Montgomery County was reported yesterday by Miss Dorothy A. Everson, executive secretary of the county welfare board at Rockville.

The number of families receiving relief in the county during July was 374, plus 53 families who received service only, from the welfare board staff. There were 18 cases reopened during the month, a record low for recent months.

The number of families on relief from week to week is about 270.

Charles Henry Weadon, 36, who gave addresses of Rockville, Md., and 3335 M street northwest, Washington, was charged yesterday with possession of gambling paraphernalia when he was arrested by L. B. Thompson, of Bethesda sub-station, in the act of writing numbers slips in the 6700 block of Wisconsin avenue, Bethesda.

Weadon was released on $500 bond, and his trial was set for September 6.

Dr. Bertram M. Osgood, pastor of Bethesda Baptist Church, died early yesterday at Washington Sanitarium at Takoma Park, after a two weeks' illness. Dr. Osgood, who was born in Massachusetts, had lived a good many years in the West, being pastor of a Baptist church at Fort Dodge, Iowa.

He was pastor of First Baptist Church at Rockville 6½ years. During the three years he lived in Bethesda he organized the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Rotary Club and the Bethesda Baptist Church. At the time of his death he was contemplating the erection of a church building at Bethesda.

Dr. Osgood is survived by his wife, Mrs. Luella B. C. Osgood, and two sons by a former marriage, who live in California.

A scholarship for a course in a correspondence school will be awarded by the Lions Club of Silver Spring to a student of the Takoma Park-Silver Spring High School in a popularity contest, which will open Monday and continue to Sunday night.

Five high school students will be selected for the competition by E. Merritt Douglass, principal of Silver Spring-Takoma Park High School and a member of the Lions Club. The selection will be made on a basis of the economic needs of the students' families.

The students selected will distribute ballots among their friends and other residents of the community, who will deposit ballots in a box in the Silver Spring drug store of J. Howell Forsyth.

The boy committee of the Lions Club has charge of the contest. Kenneth Savee is serving as chairman in the absence of E. Wilson Stewart, chairman. He is being assisted by Lowell Hendrick and Mr. Forsyth.

St. Michael's Parish School, Silver Spring, Md., will open September 9. Registration days for all pupils will be held August 24, 25 and 26.

The same staff of teachers will be at the school as last year, with Sister Mary Eleanore as principal.

Plans are being made by the Southern Maryland District American Legion, Department of Maryland, for a dance and rally Thursday night at Chevy Chase Lake, Md., in honor of the retiring president of the American Legion Auxiliary, Mrs. Lucille F. Steindler, and the retiring department commander of the American Legion, John F. McNulty.

The initiation team of the Snyder-Farmer Post will be present, as will the Takoma Park Post, the official flag post of the Department of Maryland.

Josiah W. Jones, president of the County Farm Bureau, addressed the Rockville Rotary Club yesterday on "Rotary Membership."

Court Curbs Milk Board In Maryland

DairymenGranted Order Restraining Functions for Control.

Law's Legality Assailed; Commission Allowed Chance to Fight.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Aug. 22.—An injunction restraining the Maryland Milk Control Commission from functioning in the State was obtained today by the milk producers cooperative and a group of dairymen.

The order was signed by Judge Samuel Dennis in Baltimore City Circuit Court No. 2. It is a permanent injunction, but the commission will be allowed to move for dissolution of the order.

The petition was signed by the Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers, Inc.; the Maryland Dairymen's Association, J. Frank Lupo, of Sparks, Md.; B. W. Amoss, of Fallston, and George B. Kelly, of Glenwood. The defendants are members of the control commission individually and as a commission.

The petition attacks the milk control law on more than 12 counts

That the law was passed as an emergency measure, although no emergency existed in the business.

That the act is impossible of execution because the commission can not function until requested by the industry in a certain area, but that the limits of the area can be established only by the commission. The petitioners allege that the commission can not establish this area in advance of a request from the business in it.

That the provision for the commission to act only on request sets up a referendum where only affirmative votes are counted.

That the act is inequitable because a small number of producers have the same influence in the setup as a million consumers.

That the provision for the consumer to request the commission to function is an "unlawful delegation" of powers given to the General Assembly.

That the Baltimore area had not been determined officially when requests were received for the commission to function in it.

That the power to regulate production is conrtary to both the State and Federal constitutions.

That the General Assembly has delegated taxing powers to the commission, which is unlawful.

That the tax for the support of the commission does not apply to milk produced in Pennsylvania and sold in Maryland.

That the rate of the tax is uncertain.

That money can not be spent by the State without a specific appropriation, and that no such appropriation was made for the commission.

That the constitution forbids the creation of new offices by emergency laws and that the milk control law does so.

The injunction bars the commission from collecting the tax and from issuing licenses. It also restrains it from attempting to force dealers and producers to obtain licenses.

Toole spoke last night before the United Mine Workers of Midlothian. Tonight he will address a meeting at Lonaconing and tomorrow night at Westernport. Saturday afternoon he will speak at Mount Savage and at night at Deer Park, Garrett County.

Penal Farm Wages Cut to 10 Cents Daily

Baltimore, Aug. 22.—Wages of prisoners working on the State penal farm in western Maryland have been reduced from 25 cents to 10 cents daily, State Superintendent of Prisons Harold E. Donnell said today.

"Lack of appropriations" was the reason he gave.

He explained the 25-cent wage, which ended August 1, was paid from the last of a 1933 bond issue of $175,000 for new prison construction work.

Since that sum was exhausted, work at the farm has been on a maintenance basis, he said. The reduction brings the pay of prisoners working outside down to a level of that of prisoners working indoors, Donnell pointed out. Virtually no trouble has resulted from the change, he said.

2 in Congress, Another Hurt In Auto Crash

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 22.—Two Virginia Representatives, A. Willis Robertson (Democrat), of Lexington, and Colgate W. Darden, jr. (Democrat), of Norfolk, and Frank C. Harahan, former Portsmouth (Va.) city manager, suffered injuries 13 miles south of here on State route 2 this morning when their machine collided with another car. W. J. Chenowith, secretary to Darden, and driver of the car, was unhurt.

Darden's car and a light roadster driven by John R. Pavey, of Richmond, collided almost head-on. The Representatives' machine overturned and was badly damaged. Neither Pavey nor two youths, who accompanied him, were hurt.

Harahan and Robertson were brought to Mary Washington Hospital here, where it was said the former suffered a fracture of the collarbone and slight bruises. Robertson was treated for back injuries and abrasions.

Harahan was transferred by ambulance to Emergency Hospital at Washington. Darden did not go to the hospital here, but entered Naval Hospital at Washington, where it was said that his injuries were not serious.

State Motorcycle Policeman Sam Redding, who investigated the accident, said that no charges had been placed in connection with the accident.

Bus Safety Survey Set In Maryland

Action Taken at State Parley, Outgrowth of Tragedy.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Aug. 22.—C. Howard Whittle, chairman of the Fire Prevention and Inspection Committee of the State Volunteer Firemen's Association, said today he is planning a survey to determine the safety of all county school buses.

The survey, Whittle said after a conference with John J. Seidel, superintendent of industrial education for the State Department of Education, and Wesley S. Hanna, State insurance commissioner, is an outgrowth of the Rockville bus accident last April in which 14 school children lost their lives on a grade crossing.

Examinations will be made to determine if the vehicles are equipped with fire extingushers, whether they have escape doors, whether bars outside the windows would prevent quick exit, and whether other safety features should be, or have been, added.

Horner told the police that Boles stepped from a car which was parked in the middle of the road.

Schools' Board At Martinsburg In Salary Row

County Teachers Threaten Court Fight for Pay Set by Contracts.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 22.—High schoo teachers here and other county employes have notified the Berkeley County Board of Education that they will go to court to force payment of salaries given in their Junè contracts. The salaries have been facing a cut by a new school board on the ground that the estimated county income would not permit payment of the contracted salaries.

H. H. Byrer, attorney appearing for the protesting teachers at the board meeting last night, announced the plans to test the case in court.

After explaining why they felt the reduction necessary this year, the board said it would be glad to respect the contract terms if the teachers could demonstrate the financial possibility. The protestants were asked to appear at a meeting later this week for further discussion on the theory that only the basic salaries, under State law could be paid. The present board had announced it would ask for secondary State aid this year. The law stipulates that counties asking secondary aid may be paid only the basic salaries.

Maryland's Fighting First Attacks During Heavy Rain

By Phil Austensen,
A Staff Correspondent.

Camp Reckord, Mount Gretna, Pa., Aug. 22.—Pouring rain gave the finishing realistic touch to the advance of Maryland's "Fighting First" Infantry against a battalion of the Fifth Maryland in today's maneuvers of the Twentieth Division, in camp here as part of the Third Corps maneuervs. Shortly after Col. D. John Markey had established his command post and the First began its assault on the strongly placed position of the Fifth, the heavens opened and the dusty area became a quagmire.

Despite rain, the attackers went forward until the "enemy" was contacted. The maneuver halted just before actual hand-to-hand fighting contact was reached and the troops were hurried back to camp for dry clothes and hot food.

Maneuvers Improved.

Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, in command, observed the maneuver. Every Regular Army officer in camp and the staffs of the Twenty-ninth Division and Fifty-eighth Brigade were present as observers and umpires.

The advance and the defense both showed the effects of the battle training of the past several days. The attack was made with greater co-ordination and effect than in any of the previous displays and the defense was particularly well handled. Artillery support from the 110th Field Artillery showed improvement.

"The Life of Riley."

One artillery observer was living the life of Riley when it started to rain. He had spread his raincoat over a corner of a brick wall around a farmyard and from his protected "dugout" was observing over the wall with his periscope. The rain bothered him little.

The "killed" and "wounded" were the lucky ones. They enjoyed perfect comfort as the perspiring members of the 104th Medical Regiment lugged them to the rear on stretchers—and didn't fail to add their remarks to the already uncomfortable situation of the litter bearers.

The division tomorrow engages in an overnight maneuver, leaving the base camp for a hike of approximately 4 miles past Colebrook, eating dinner in the field and then pitching an overnight bivouac. Saturday morning the soldiers will rise to an early breakfast and then engage the "enemy."

Headquarters Company, Thirty-fourth Infantry, commanded by Lieut. H. B. Thatcher, and Headquarters Battery, First Field Artillery Brigade, commanded by Lieut. W. T. Sexton, were attached to the division yesterday and will remain until after the corps maneuvers next week.

Veterans' Day.

The First Maryland Infantry will hold Veterans' Day Sunday in accordance with established custom. Veterans of the previous wars of the United States will be guests of honor and will review a parade.

Except for the special regimental parades in honor of the thousands of visitors expected Saturday afternoon and Sunday, the men will be given holidays over the week-end as far as possible. No division activities are planned.

Annapolis Expects 2,000 Enrollment

New Academic Year Will Open September 30.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 22.—Increase in the number of appointments of midshipmen to Annapolis allowed each United States Senator and Representative will increase the enrollment this year to 2,000, authorities estimate.

Summer vacation will end September 27, and the academic year begin September 30. The first term end February 1, 1936, and the second term closes May 28, 1936. June Week is scheduled to start May 29, terminating with graduation exercises June 4.

Although no new courses are being offered this year at the Naval Academy, the subject of hygiene, formerly studied by the midshipmen in their first year, will now be taken in the senior year. This is the only change in curriculum.

Coyotes Raid Sheep Of Buck Mountain

Richmond, Aug. 22 (AP).—Apparently the now-not-so-wild West has become too sissy for the ornery coyotes who have moved into the Buck Mountains section of Grayson County.

Rumors that the transient coyotes were howling at night and killing sheep between howls were confirmed after an investigation by County Game Warden J. M. Reeves.

Sixty-one sheep have been killed in the last three months, he wrote the State game department today. One coyote has been killed. The sheep killing is going on at an alarming rate, Reeves said, adding that all farmers in the community are "keeping their sheep in lots close to their homes in the day and in barns at night."

Nice Considers 6 Military Men For Police Post

Gen. Hill, Col. Woodcock, Col. Markey Are Names Reported on List.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, Aug. 22.—Six men with military records are being considered by Gov. Nice as successor to Maj. J. Purdon Wright, superintendent of the State police, it was reported today.

One of the six men will be appointed October 1 to the position which carries with it a salary of $3,500 and the title of major. Wright has been holding the position temporarily without pay.

Those being considered by the Governor are all Republicans with excellent service records in the World War. They are:

Brig. Gen. John Philip Hill, assistant State adjutant general.

Col. Harry Jones, State employment commissioner and colonel in the Army Reserve.

Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock, president of St. John's College, Annapolis, and former national director of prohibition.

Lieut. Col. Elmer F. Munshower, former Mayor of Frederick and now lieutenant colonel of the First Regiment, Maryland National Guard.

Col. D. John Markey, of Frederick, commander of the First Regiment, Maryland National Guard.

Maj. Edward McK. Johnson, captain of the State police and commander of the Second Battalion of the Fifth Infantry.

Col. Markey, now with his troops engaged in mimic warfare at Camp Reckord, Mount Gretna, Pa., indicated today he was "not interested." He said: "I have heard nothing whatever of this appointment. I appreciate the honor, but I am not at all interested at this time."

Maj. Johnson, who is also at Camp Reckord with his Fifth Infantry, said the first intimation of such a move he had heard was in newspaper reports.

"As I have worked with the State police for nearly four years with great interest in its development as an outstanding organization, it naturally is gratifying to be considered for possible appointment as its head."

Lieut. Col. Munshower, also at Camp Record, was not available for statement.

Report Lists Ways to Aid Tobacco Sale

Maryland Survey Urges Developing Market in Southern States.

Better Leaf Quality and Packing Held Means to Create Demand.

By the Associated Press.

College Park, Md., Aug. 22.—Belief that Southern cigarette manufacturers would use more Maryland tobacco, provided leaf quality is improved and a more uniform pack obtained, was expressed today in a report of a special committee of planters and experts.

The committee, named by Dr. T. B. Symons, director of the University of Maryland extension service, conducted a survey of the large manufacturers of cigarette tobacco in North Carolina and Virginia before submitting their report.

Members of the group were Dr. S. H. Devault, head of the department of agricultural economics of the University of Maryland; J. B. Morsell, Calvert County agent, and Samuel C. Linton, Charles County tobacco grower.

Seek to Aid Industry.

Their purpose, the report stated, was to learn "in brief what can be done to make our tobacco more desirable to the manufacturers and benefit the industry in general."

Pointing out that "there is no good substitute for Maryland tobacco and so long as the manufacturers can get this leaf in sufficient volume and desirable quality, they will continue to use it," the committee reached these conclusions:

"Farmers should grow obacco on land that is suited to the production of high quality, light, fluffy cigarette-type tobacco, the type that is in demand by manufacturers of cigarettes. The leaf quality can be further improved by the use of the proper amount of fertilizer and analysis of fertilizer.

Caution on Cleaning.

"Careful assorting and uniform packing are necessary to insure the sale of Maryland tobacco at a fair price. This necessitates the packing of tobacco of similar texture and quality in the same hogshead and the packing of tobacco only after it has been thoroughly conditioned * * *.

"Care should be taken to clean the tobacco, especially the 'seconds,' of sand and other materials.

"Every possible effort should be made to get a fair sample, one that is truly representative of the quality of tobacco in the hogshead.

Fred Stone Leads Support in Drama That Rings True to End.

By Nelson B. Bell.

"ALICE ADAMS." RKO-Radio picturization of the novel by Booth Tarkington, adapted to the screen by Dorothy Yost, Mortimer Offner and Jane Murfin, starring Katharine Hepburn, with Fred MacMurray, Fred Stone, Evelyn Venable, Frank Albertson, Ann Shoemaker, Charlie Grapewin, Grady Sutton, Hedda Hopper and Hattie McDaniels. Directed by George Stevens. Reviewed Wednesday evening.

Rehabilitating herself as one of the most effective practitioners of the subtle arts of the cinema, Katharine Hepburn, in "Alice Adams," once more takes her place among the foremost of the artistes of the screen.

The film version which RKO-Radio has managed to contrive of the Booth Tarkington fiction is to be ranked among the best of the late summer's camera diversions. It has the authentic flavor and splashy colors of a typical American small town; it reveals American character with something more than casual accuracy; it tells a pitiful tale of triumphant tragedy in the face of social handicaps that are as cruel as they are universal.

Alice Adams was an imaginative, ambitious and slightly futile young woman who saw the town of her birth go by her in a swirl of prosperity and social climbing with which she was not able to keep abreast. Her father was looked upon with mildly lifted eyebrows by those who thought he had been a little less than ethical in his dealings with the man who had been his life-long employer. Her brother was no better than he should have been.

Alice Lived in Imagination.

Altogether, all Alice had to cherish were the things that she hoped sometimes might be hers. It comes out that way in the end—a little too precipitately, perhaps, but with a fine observance of human worth and a surprisingly convincing demonstration of the occasional discernment of the male gender when the more important considerations of life are involved.

In the title role, Katharine Hepburn offers one of those superbly wistful, plaintive and potent performances that she has approached on earlier occasions, but never quite achieved to the degree that here is registered with such irresistible charm.

It is as if Miss Hepburn had taken those priceless early sequences of "Morning Glory" and perpetuated their compellingly realistic artistry and human values through the full footage of her present picture.

She never makes a mistake, never recedes from that perfect assumption of maidenly defeatism that seems to augur an end as drab as her ineffectual father's and never loses the touch of exquisite pathos that tinctures the whole life of Booth Tarkington's fine feminine creation.

Support Is Flawless."

The supporting roles are no less expertly played than that of the star. Fred Stone, veteran comedian of the musical comedy stage, and last season's victim of "Jayhawker," contributes an acutely poignant impersonation of a doting father who hasn't quite made a go of it. As his wife, Ann Shoemaker offers one of those finely ralistic portraits of a homey mother that from time to time punctuate the purely artificial essays of less skillfull actresses at the same sort of sympathetic role. Frank Albertson does a finely comic bit as the son of the Adams family who manages to get into some very fine difficulties, and Fred MacMurray, last seen in "Men Without Names," one of the Department of Justice gangster epics, is the living image of the William Faversham who played on the stage in "The Squaw Man," in the role of the rich young lover who eventually extricates Alice from the social bog into which she has floundered.

There are many excellently etched minor portraitures, among which Charlie Grapewin's bit as the business mogul, Hedda Hopper's likeness of the social aristocrat, Evelyn Venable's pampered pet, and Hattie McDaniel's colored maid should not be overlooked.

Maj. Bowes' Amateurs.

The principal supplementary of the new week's bill is "Maj. Bowes Amateur Theater of the Air," in which a large number of aspirants for radio honors "strut their stuff."

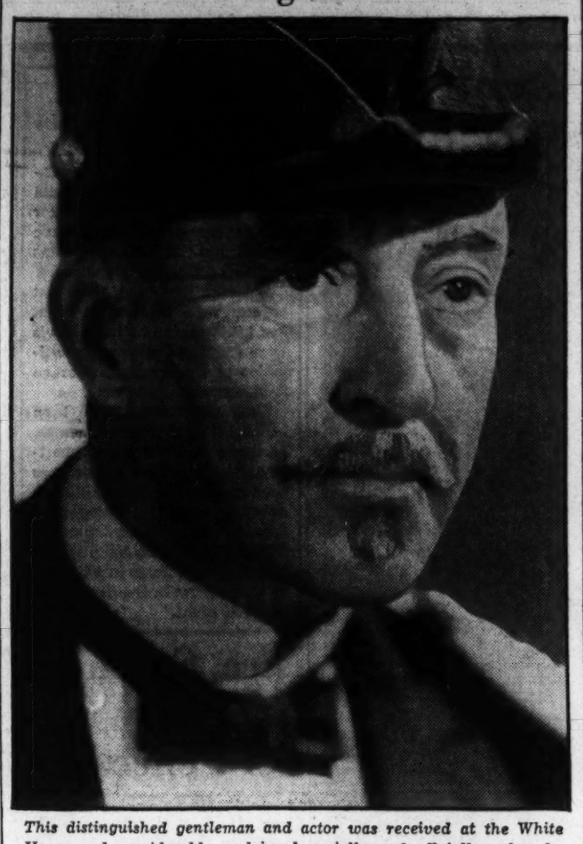
Maj. Bowes, an adept at the discovery and development of talent for the air waves, here presents a group of acts that seem not to be quite so amateurish as they are represented to be.

The Coogan Hillbillies are in the conventional, big-time, stage manner for such things, and the Cactus Four from the University of Missouri certainly are good enough to pose as professionals in their genial warbling. The Morris Sisters and the Stauffer Twins, with their saxophones, pianos, drums and voices, also take on big-time measure, and Maj. Ginsberg and his Levee Frolickers are a pretty swell act, what with Jimmie Brown's hoofing and Adolphus Robinson's singing. Doris Weston, a torch singer, accompanied by piano and harp, may not be quite as professional as the others, but she is nothing to ring the gong on, at that, and the Oklahoma Mustangs do well enough with "Coming 'Round the Mountain."

The only other subsidiary is the Pathe News, which takes a turn at the revival of prosperity and flashes several hats that are supposed to be in the ring, among them Franklyn D. Roosevelt's and Herbert Hoover's. Hoover received just as much audience applause at the reviewed performance as Roosevelt, and Huey Long received a good many more laughs than Borah.

So it is a fine bill!

Stars in Tonight's Premiere



This distinguished gentleman and actor was received at the White House and considerably acclaimed, socially and officially, when he was making the picture in Annapolis last June in which he now is to be seen for the first time on any screen in the Metropolitan Theater tonight. The picture, of course, is "Annapolis Farewell;" the distinguished gentleman and actor, of course, is Sir Guy Standing. Oldsters in the local theater will recall Sir Guy, not then touched upon the shoulder by the king's accolade, as a member of the old Columbia Players, in the days of Charlotte Walker and Hilda Spong. This recollection will add interest to his appearance on the Met screen tonight.

Nearby Events Are Announced For Show Week

Film and Al Fresco Hits Are Promised to Start New Week Tomorrow

Reprinted from yesterday's last edition.

"Annapolis Farewell," the Paramount picture made for the greater part in Annapolis during June Week of this year at the United States Naval Academy, will be presented for the first time on any screen in the Warner Brothers' Metropolitan Theater tonight, preliminary to a week's engagement at the Earle, beginning tomorrow. The principal roles in this romantic subject—which is proclaimed one of the finest "service" pictures ever made—are played by Sir Guy Standing, Richard Cromwell, Tom Brown and Rosalind Keith. Tonight's premiere will be marked by all of the usual pomp and circumstance of a real Hollywood first night and will be attended by a distinguished audience, including the Washington debutantes who appeared as "extras" in the more important scenes of the film. The usual supplementary attractions will complete the Metropolitan's regular bill, which will be featured by "Smart Girl," featuring Ida Lupino, Kent Taylor and Gail Patrick, beginning tomorrow.

• • • •

When "Annapolis Farewell" opens its regular engagement at the Earle Theater tomorrow the stage portion of the entertainment will be headlined by the Mustang Band and Glee Club. This is an organization from the Southern Methodist University. The other acts on the stage will be offered by the Three Wiere Brothers and Charles Carrer. There are 35 collegians engaged in the goings-on of the "Mustangs."

• • • •

Joel McCrea and Maureen O'Sullivan are the co-stellar players in "Woman Wanted," the major screen attraction at Loew's Fox Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. Others of note in the cast include Lewis S. Stone, Edgar Kennedy, Louis Calhern and Adrianne Ames. On the stage the chief diversion will be supplied by Maj. Bowes' "Amateur Theater of the Air," concerning which there has been a magnificent confusion of stellar identities. Since RKO-Keith's Theater is presenting a film version of the same outfit on its screen this week, it seems fitting to say that in the main the stage group and the cinematic are not the same.

• • • •

James Dunn, Arline Judge, Raymond Walburn, William Frawley and Charles Ray are importantly cast in "Welcome Home," the screen feature of the bill beginning tomorrow at Loew's Columbia Theater. The story concerns the adventures of four "con" men who invade his home town in pursuit of a "sucker." The bill for the new week will be augmented by abbreviated camera subjects and a new issue of news events.

• • • •

"China Seas," that tumultuous melodrama of one of the world's most exciting outposts, will continue for a second week on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater beginning tomorrow. Clark Gable, Lewis S. Stone, Wallace Beery, Jean Harlow, Bob Benchley, Dudley Digges, C. Aubrey Smith and Rosalind Russell are the foremost players. The feature is supported by a well-selected group of short-reel features.

• • • •

Crystal pool, the Spanish garden ballroom, the exciting rides and some 50-odd assorted amusement devices continue to spell sensational success for the current season at Glen Echo Park. There is no discounting the appeal of the most perfectly appointed natatorium this side of New York, the charm of the ballroom or any other of Glen Echo's star features on days and nights like these. You have to go out there to get the "punch."

• • • •

On next Monday night a "Gold Cup Floor Show" will be offered aboard the Wilson Line's steamer City of Washington, under the personal guidance of Harold Allen Long, for the benefit of the President's Cup regatta fund. Jack Mullane will be master of ceremonies and the acts to be presented will represent the cream of the local theater and floor shows. Tickets for this outing are available at $1 each.

• • • •

The postponed production of "Romeo and Juliet," by the Community Players in association with the Office of Capital Parks, will be a forthcoming event in local theatricals, of which the definite date will be made known at some future time. The cast engaged for this local enterprise is one of the best so far assembled under the same auspices.

Willard Players

"EAST LYNNE." The Willard Players present the melodrama in 5 acts and 11 scenes by Ellen Price Wood; produced by Myrtis Morgan and Isham Keith, and staged under the direction of Elizabeth Gatlin Pritchard. Settings by Hugo Inden. Piano accompaniment by Lyman McCrary. At the National Press Club. Reviewed Wednesday evening (second week) by W. A. Whitney.

Continuing their individual and collective triumphs of last week, the Willard Players resumed last evening in the auditorium of the National Press Club their excruciating burlesque of "East Lynne," Ellen Price Wood's immortal melodrama of sin and retribution.

With four performances of increasing betterment behind them, the Players offered their smoothest production, and this even progressed further as the audience forgot its 1935 theatrical repressions and entered into the spirit of the occasion, spontaneously and vigorously applauding the hero and heroine and booing and hissing the villain.

There is no need to state that the audience likes all this, nor is there any particular reason to mention that the feeling is reciprocated by the cast—but, surely, no local group before has ever entered the realm of melodramatic exaggeration so completely attuned to the possibilities and delivered so devastating a performance as this present company.

Maestro Pete Conducts Band, Amid Whiskers

By Chanticleer.

Pete Macias dropped in at the Powhatan Roof a night or two ago and some of the customers wanted to know who the "new man" was at the piano! Pete merely grinned through his long whiskers. Oh, yes, for a time Ol' Massa Pete stood before the band and waggled a baton . . . looking very much like Whiteman just before Whiteman reduced. Seems if with all the preliminaries going on in the back of the Macias mind these days . . . on the eventual re-opening of the Heigh-Ho . . . that the genial maestro would shift a bit here and there. (Personal note: I wish I looked half as healthy.)

Judy Ellington and Al Norton paid a little informal visit to the Mayfair an afternoon or so ago . . . and when Joe Murphy and Jack Reynolds wheeled their pint-size piano around and discovered who they were . . . the Murphy-Reynolds duo was made into a quartet. Judy is full of rhythm these days what with having been on a vacation for a couple of weeks and having a lot of hot-cha stored up. But wait until Joe and Jack repay the call at the Lotus. Its an odds-on bet that Al will have them on the floor repeating the impromptu vocalizing when Judy takes her bows.

It's nice to have St. Clair and Day around this week. They make news. First it develops they will open at the Palladium in London next month. And then they turn up at the Palace in a short feature entitled "Magic of Music." Appearing at the Shoreham Terrace with them this week is Lew Hoffman, comedy juggler, who climaxes his turn with the neat trick of juggling a hat, a cigar and a lighter . . . and finishes with landing the hat on his head, the cigar in his mouth and the lighter in his pocket. It's necessary to do it that way. The cigar is lighted.

It was just nine months ago today that nine cold and tired young fellows pulled up in three broken-down flivvers before the Maryland Club Gardens' front door and announced they had come to take over the band stand. Very little was known about the boys except they had been the goods when auditioned in New York . . . and their name was Al Barkley and the New Yorkers. And that they had plenty of competition in Washington for after-dark dancing feet. Well, Barkley and his New Yorkers certainly have earned their long stay at the Gardens. Their arrangements are smooth and sweet. And, since everyone admires hard work of the garden variety sort . . . it should be recorded that the New Yorkers got the way they are by working four, five and six hours every day.

Should have mentioned a day or two ago that Lee Simms and Ilomay Bailey were among those present Monday night when the "judging the stars" gang made its regular weekly appearance at Club Habana, atop the Arlington. And Aubrey Seiber made a return visit . . . with Shannon Allen, of N. B. C., who had been missing for a couple of weeks because of vacationing 'way up in Provincetown vicinity . . . and Morris Kafka, back from a Canadian trip . . . and Rudy Schramm. Moe Baer's singing guitarist, Jimmy Bright, is No. 3121 among the bright lights about town who originally aspired to be a newspaperman.

Hotel Hamilton's Rainbow Room now announces dancing every afternoon from 5 to 7 . . . and has extended supper dancing to 2 in the morning. And word reaches me that Milt Davis has added a second violinist to his orchestra . . . which will bear looking into at once. One thing about the new addition. He just won't be able to sing in as many languages as Bert Bernath, Davis' first violinist. Bert sings in German, Spanish and Italian . . . and his repertoire isn't limited to "O sole mio," either.

• • • •

Verne Wilcox, the "world's greatest acrobatic dancer," is making her last appearances this week at the Dude Ranch . . . positively and absolutely. Billed a sensation from last summer's World Fair, no one yet has challenged the claims made for her acrobatic dancing feats. And in addition there's lots of dancing, singing and merry-making on the floor each night.

There really are 100 acres to the Griffith Farms establishment . . . but most folks are content with the half acre that includes the stand-up bar, lawn tables, Hawaiian orchestra and side porch. Dinners include everything from Maryland fried chicken to sea food specials . . . Downtown the Madrillon sets about as nice a board as you would care for whether at home or in some furrin clime. And between courses of Peter Borras's superb cuisine you can dance to Leon Brusiloff's music, with vocalizings by Messrs. Donahue, Schaeffer and Delroy.

Oscar must be living up to all expectations at the Hangar Club. At least the new dinner policy is meeting the approval of the Hangar Club's early evening guests, and Oscar is personally responsible for that. Oscar takes a perfectly ordinary appearing crab, for example—and after all crabs look alike to the naked eye, don't they?—and when he has concluded a long confidential conversation with that crab it just hits the spot as no crab ever did before. You're right, Oscar is the new Hangar Club chef.

Ceiling Falls on Woman.

Mrs. Bessie Garrison, 35, 3430 Connecticut avenue northwest was seriously injured yesterday when a portion of the plaster ceiling on the living room of her apartment fell on her head. She was taken to Sibley Hospital by her husband. She was treated for severe head injuries.

Here Now—In London Soon

Topping the floor bill at the Shoreham Terrace are St. Clair and Day, who go to London in September to dance. Barnee plays your dinner dance requests.

ANOTHER effort is being made to obtain WPA funds to continue the services of approximately 2,400 employes of the Coast and Geodetic Survey. A delegation from the national office of the Federation of Architects, Engineers, Chemists and Technicians yesterday made a formal request to WPA officials for additional funds, the federation reported.

About 2,000 extra workers in the field division, Coast and Geodetic Survey, already have been laid off, Capt. R. S. Patton, director, said, and about 400 in the District will lose their jobs at the end of the month if additional appropriations are not made available. Efforts are being made to obtain funds for continuing the services of the entire 2,400 employes.

In urging the appropriation, the delegation pointed out that a large proportion of the men working for the Survey on these extra projects have come from relief rolls.

These extra workers have been making surveys, laying the foundation for topographic mapping.

Why Wait?

Will the Senate shelve our leave bill?
To some that may sound grand;
But Samuel's ranks will surely grieve
If Congress takes this stand.
When the members turn their footsteps
Toward a lengthy, needed rest,
Perhaps they'll pause to say to us,
In earnestness or jest—
"When we return to Washington
And our duties on the Hill,
We will give our prompt attention
To your 30 days' leave bill."
For that we would be grateful—
For we are tired indeed,
But why not pass the leave bill now,
And meet our urgent need?

Inmate of Aged Home Is Believed Drowned

Harry Walker, about 60, an inmate of the District Home for the Aged at Blue Plains, was believed to have drowned in the shallows of the Anacostia River yesterday afternoon. Harbor Precinct policemen dragged the muddy water for his body last night.

Police were told Walker and some companions went swimming in the river near the Navy Yard and the Eleventh Street Bridge. As his friends swam out into the stream, Walker remained in shallow depth, police were told.

Hensiek Stars in Relief Role as Nats Down Chisox Again, 7-4

This Morning . . .

With Shirley Povich

NOW that an enterprising correspondent with the Washington club in the West has unearthed the evidence that the Nats are likely to lead all American League teams in double plays this season, it is easier to understand why the Nats are occupying seventh place. About the worst thing that can be said about a ball team is that it leads in double plays. Rather than a sign of strength, it is an infallible token of weakness despite its high-sounding attributes.

Only when a club is handicapped by poor pitching can it turn in an extraordinary number of double plays. Runners must be on the bases to set the stage for twin killings and the clubs with the worst pitching staffs thus are in a position to execute the most double plays. The teams with good pitching, you'll notice, are not specialists in double plays because ordinary double-play balls can result in only one putout if there is none on base.

POVICH.

Baseball history supports this department which, however, is not making an argument out of it. The facts are there. The Cincinnati Reds set the all-time National League record of 194 double plays in 1928, and where did the club finish? Fifth, because it had a poor pitching staff. The Cleveland Indians set the American League's record of 187 double plays in the same season. And the Indians, obviously handicapped by poor pitching, finished seventh.

So, when great store is laid by the double-play abilities of a ball club, you can almost throw that team out of the pennant race. There are and have been great double-play combinations, of course, but most of 'em never achieved distinction because they were unlucky enough to play behind good pitching. A double play in a crucial spot is a fine thing for a ball club, of course, but none of 'em hanker after that twin-killing championship over a whole season. It doesn't pay.

WE have further incriminating evidence against the Washington pitching staff this morning in that toothsome table of figures called "Work of the Nats." With Heinie Manush having climbed into the .300 class yesterday by getting two hits in four times at bat in Chicago, the Nats now boast no less than six .300 hitters in the regular line-up, more than any other club in the league can boast.

With a half-dozen .300 hitters on a team that is one-two-three in fielding playing behind 'em, the Washington pitchers obviously have much to answer for. I mean the present seventh-place position the Nats are occupying. Obviously, the Washington pitching isn't only bad, Ted Husing had a six-letter word for it, usually applied to decayed fruit.

Buddy Myer is leading the pack, of course, with his .344 average. Cliff Bolton is hitting a nice .314; Jake Powell is slamming the ball for .313; Johnny Stone boasts .312 figures; Cecil Travis is hitting .310, and Manush is banging the agate, as they call it, for an even .300. But Washington's pitchers are wasting that kind of hitting with the league's sourest performances. Even the last-place Browns excel the Nats in pitching talent this season.

And there is no relief in sight for the Nats. Earl Whitehill is getting no younger and Irving Hadley is now a confirmed in-and-outer. Ed Linke has done well in his last two starts, but three weeks ago was on the verge of the minors. Buck Newsom has proved something of a disappointment, and the relief men, Jack Russell and Leon Pettit are extreme risks whenever they go to the mound. And there's no consolation for Clark Griffith in the knowledge that he can't buy pitchers, even with money.

In Short—

If Buddy Myer is appointed manager of the Nats or any other club, it will be a case of the office seeking the man . . . Myer has no ambitions to be a manager . . . George Marshall's scheduled conference with Charles F. Adams, owner of the Boston Braves, in New York two days ago was mysteriously called off by Adams . . . Marshall is not pressing his offer to buy the club . . . and the Boston bank that holds a $200,000 mortgage on the Braves is thinking twice before it freezes its equity for five years under Marshall's plan . . . Joe Saverine, Georgetown's 1935 captain and catcher, is a sensation with the Allentown, Pa., team . . . Heinie Manush is not a long-distance hitter despite his size, because his arms are short and he is too smart up there at the plate to over-swing in an effort to knock the ball out of the lot . . . Sammy Holbrook, the Nats' third-string catcher who is now seeing duty daily, has made an over-throw of second in each of the club's last three games . . . The White Sox are no longer the wonder team of the league . . . everybody has stopped wondering when they would collapse . . . they've lost 14 of their last 16 games.

15-Hit Attack Is Fired at Chicago

Griff Hurler Fans Dykes With Three On in 7th After Linke Fails.

Single Runs in 8th and 9th Clinch Decision for Washington.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—The first good bit of relief pitching received by the Nats since the groundhog saw his shadow brought the Washington Club its second straight victory over the Chicago White Sox today.

It was all very much in doubt as late as the seventh inning when Ed Linke, who had been pitching a tolerably good game was staggering under the burden of filled bases and the Sox needing only one run to tie the score. In this emergency the Nats found a hero in Phil Hensiek and won the ball game, 7 to 4.

Fighting to stay in the big leagues after two miserable performances in relief roles, Hensiek, the Albany recruit, struck out Manager Jimmy Dykes to leave three White Sox on base in the seventh and then permitted only seven Chicagoans to face him in the last two innings.

Nats Boost Lead.

In seeming gratitude for Hensiek's efforts, the Nats made sure of their triumph by boosting their 5 to 4 lead with single runs against John Salveson in the last two innings.

It was a 15-hit attack that the Nats launched against Sad Sam Jones and Salveson to win again today after their 18-hit triumph of yesterday. Every man in the Washington line-up, including Hensiek, figured in the hitting, with triples by Powell and Strange the feature blows.

Joe Kuhel set the stage for a two-run uprising for the Nats in the first inning when he led off the game with a double to center field. He scored from third on Myer's long fly. After Heinie Manush drew a walk, Cecil Travis singled to center and when Al Simmons bobbled the ball, Manush scored all the way from first base.

Powell, Strange Triple.

Simmons atoned for his error by belting a home run into the right-field stands in the Sox half of the inning, but the Nats boosted their lead to 3-1 in the fourth when Powell and Strange socked consecutive triples with none out.

Linke gave a run back to the Sox in the sixth despite a brilliant double play that he started himself. After Simmons and Piet had walked, Linke took Appling's bunt, rifled it to Travis at third to force Simmons and Travis' throw to Kuhel nipped Appling for a double play. But Piet eventually scored on Dykes' single.

Linke's own double to right started the Nats on a two-run rally in the seventh. Kuhel and Miles followed with telling singles. But the Sox were well on their way toward battering down Linke's 5-2 lead in their half of the inning.

Dykes Strikes Out.

Hensiek obliged the entire Washington club when he fanned Dykes for the necessary third out.

Singles by Travis and Holbrook boosted the Nats' lead to 6-4 in the eighth and they made it 7-4 in the ninth when Myer and Manush produced singles and Travis drove a long fly to Simmons who robbed him of a hit.

Those two runs were superfluous in view of Hensiek's relief work, but the Washington pitcher did get a break in the eighth when Hayes, who had led off with a single, was struck by Conlan's hard grounder between first and second and thus was automatically out. It was the last hit off Hensiek.

Heil Hensiek!

Brookline Tennis Play Is Rained Out

By the Associated Press.

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 22.—The five finals in the National Doubles tennis tournament at Longwood were put over until next Monday as a result of a heavy shower that washed out today's men's quarter-finals as well as most of the secondary program.

Brookline's Sunday sports law permits amateurs to play at Longwood on that day, but prohibits the club from charging admissions.

As a result, today's schedule, which called for quarter-final matches between Frank X. Shields and Frank Parker and the last foreign pair, Roderick Menzel, of Czechoslovakia, and Enrique Maier, of Spain and Berkley Bell and Gregory Mangin against Wilmer Hines and Henry Culley, was postponed for 24 hours. This delay switched the semi-finals in the men's, women's, mixed, veterans' and father-son competition to Saturday.

Baer-Doyle Battle Postponed a Week

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 22.—A six-round match between Jacob (Buddy) Baer, brother of the former heavyweight champion, and Jack Doyle, known as the thumping Irish thrush, was postponed because of rain tonight until next Thursday night.

The battle site likewise was shifted from Madison Square Garden's bowl on Long Island to the Garden arena indoors on Forty-ninth street, where it never rains.

The shifts in dates and sites were decided upon after showers held on all day despite predictions of fair weather. The gladiators will weigh in again next Thursday. Today Baer scaled 236¾, Doyle, 206¾.

Red Sox Rally To Nose Out Detroit

Score 6 Runs in 8th to Win, 10-9; Greenberg Hits 33d Homer.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Aug. 22.—The Boston Red Sox today regained third place in the American League standing with a 10-to-9 victory over Detroit. The triumph put the Sox ahead of the beaten Chicago White Sox and Cleveland while the Tigers held their seven-game margin over the Yankees.

A six-run outburst in the eighth inning gave Boston the game after they had lost an earlier lead. Dib Williams began it with a home run, and Babe Dahlgren, who had hit for the circuit in the second frame to offset Hank Greenberg's thirty-third homer of the year in the first, followed with a double. Tommy Bridges, who had pitched creditably thus far in his first game since August 15, was removed for Elon Hogsett. A hit, a walk and an error sent the chief out again and Eldon Auker was rapped for three more blows before he got the side out.

Score Five Runs.

The Tigers apparently had sewed up the game in the third inning when, after the opening pair of boundary belts, they jumped on Rube Walberg for five runs. The Sox had a bad time of it in that frame when Rick Ferrell made two errors and Manager Joe Cronin one to go with four hits off Walberg and one off Jack Wilson.

Stuart Bowers, a rookie who followed Wilson on the hill in the sixth, got credit for the victory although Fritz Ostermueller pitched the last two innings. Hogsett was the loser.

U. S. Trackmen Win Ten Events in Paris

By the Associated Press.

Paris, Aug. 22.—Touring American track and field athletes won 10 of 12 events today in their first meet against picked French athletes. Members of the invading team appeared tired from the strain of their eighth engagement in 18 days, but they outclassed their rivals in all but the 500 and 1,500 meter runs.

Eulace Peacock, fleet Negro sprinter from Temple University in Philadelphia, figured in three American victories. He won the century and the broad jump and was lead-off man on the victorious 1,500-meter relay team.

Cubs' Pinch-Hit In 11th Trims Giants, 4-3

English Singles in Marker; All Others Are Result of Home Runs.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—Woody English came through with an eleventh-inning pinch hit today after a bit of managerial juggling of the line-ups had delayed the climax of a hard-fought game and the blow sent in a run to give the Cubs a 4-to-3 victory over the Giants.

That hit and its result put the Cubs only three games behind the league leaders and reduced New York's lead over the second-place St. Louis Cardinals to 2½ games. It was unique in a way as it produced the only tally of the long contest that didn't come by the home run route.

Cincinnati Protests Artificial Twin Bill

By the Associated Press.

Cincinnati, Aug. 22.—The Enquirer, in a Philadelphia dispatch, quotes Larry MacPhail, general manager of the Cincinnati Reds, in protest against a proposed double-header there Saturday as saying he "instructed Manager Dressen to have the team at the field there tomorrow, and if the Philadelphia team fails to appear we will claim the game by forfeit and make a case of it before directors of the National League."

He said the club's executives had not been advised of the change and added that postponement of the game "without consultation with business heads of the club" was illegal under rules of the league.

"If we had known about this artificial postponement," he was quoted, "we might have agreed to it."

40 Players Will Report on Sept. 5; 29 in List Are Sophomores.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

SURPRISINGLY light-hearted for a head football coach with a green squad on his hands and a tough schedule looming up forebodingly in the future, and minus the haggard look that has haunted his features since he assumed command of Georgetown's football destinies two years ago, Jack Hagerty returned to the Hilltop yesterday and immediately plunged into the task of preparing his men for another strenuous campaign.

Two months of vacationing on Long Island have left him brown as a nut and apparently as fit as a stringed ensemble. His is a difficult task, but Hagerty is looking to the future with a spirit of optimism that belies his grim experiences of the past.

Invitations have been dispatched to 40 players to report for preseason work September 5, but 29 of these are inexperienced sophomores whose actions under fire cannot be accounted for. To offset this liability of youthfulness he has only six seniors and five juniors, admittedly not much to build on. But Hagerty persists in his optimism.

The loss of 11 letter men has shattered the Hoyas' front line. Only three guards and three tackles are returning. Frank Williamson, burly center, is gone, and of the three men in line for the berth, two must be alternated at guard to alleviate the situation. Red Hardy appears to be the leading pivot candidate, with Sam Leslie and Mike Fuardo ready to step in should he falter.

"Turk" Teehan, Lou Shuker and Jake Fleck are the only guards returning, while the tackles will be occupied by "Little Cy" Cummings, Viccaro and Stralka. No other candidates are in sight at this writing.

Fortified at Flanks.

But at the flanks. Ah! A gleam of hope beams in Hagerty's black eyes. At the wings Georgetown will be better fortified than it has been since the sport was de-emphasized at the school. Hagerty will have half a dozen men, led by Joe Williams, 150 pounds of human dynamite, who shape up as class A material.

Striving for end positions will be Dave Noonan, Al Snyder, Johnny Frank, Joe Cavadine, Dick Dealy and Tony Barabas, in addition to Williams. All are tall, fairly light afoot, and good pass receivers.

Now Hagerty has two expert

Welsh Winner; McElvenny Is Defeated

Barney Conquers Bayon in Three Sets as Ralph Bows to Simons.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 22.—Top-bracketed winners of today's quarter-final matches in the men's singles division of the national Public Parks Tennis Tournament here today were stretched to the limit to advance to the semi-finals while the lower-bracket pair won easy contests.

Second-seeded Arnold Simons, of Louisville, won from Ralph McElvenny, Washington, 12—10, 3—6, 6—3, 9—7, to take a place in the semifinals tomorrow against William Schommer, of Minneapolis.

Schommer took four sets to eliminate Dave Gillam, Pasadena, Calif., ace, 6—4, 6—4, 3—6, 6—3.

The other two semifinalists who will meet tomorrow for the right to play in the finals had little trouble with their opponents.

Welsh Wins Easily.

Bernard Welsh, of Washington, defending champion, conquered Maurice Bayon, New Orleans, 6—1, 6—1, 6—1, while William Lurie, New York City, defeated Ted Drews, St. Louis, 6—3, 6—2, 6—0.

An unseeded doubles team from Buffalo, Joseph Turski and Edward Nowak, came within a shade of upsetting the champion doubles players, William Schommer and Charles Britzius, of Minneapolis, but lost at 6—1, 2—6, 2—6, 6—3, 6—3.

Welsh and McElvenny, who defeated New Orleans' doubles contenders, Maurice Bayon and John Thorn, in straight sets today, will meet Roswell Lee and Hudson Hamm, of Miami, in the doubles semifinal. Lee and Hamm conquered Arnold Simons and John Evans, Louisville, 7—9, 6—2, 6—4, 6—3.

Two Attorneys Favored for Ring Post

THE choice of a boxing commissioner to succeed the late Maj. Lucien Vandoran yesterday narrowed down to two prominent attorneys as the District Commissioners prepared to name a man to fill the office today. The choice lies between Ringgold Hart and Kenneth Parkinson.

At the same time The Post last night learned that the new member will not succeed to the chairmanship which was held by Vandoran. The gavel at future meetings will be wielded by either Maj. Ernest Brown, superintendent of police, or Fred Buchholtz. Brown is the one who probably will be chosen.

Hart is a brother of David Hart, assistant District attorney. He is well known in local sporting circles and an ardent boxing fan. It is believed that Brown and Buchholz favor his appointment.

Parkinson, president of the District Bar Association, has the support of Senator King, chairman of the Senate District Committee. He too, is popular with the sporting fraternity and familiar with the ring game.

Commissioner Melvin Hazen will make a decision in the matter today. Commissioner George Allen is understood to have agreed to accept Hazen's choice.

Loughran weighed 188½, Delaney 185.

HERSHEY, Pa., Aug. 22.—Leo Diegel, of the Philmont Country Club, Philadelphia, carded a 68, 5 under par, to assume a 2-stroke lead today in the third annual Hershey Open Golf Tournament.

Denny Shute, 1933 British Open champion, who represents the Westward-Ho Country Club of Chicago, shot 70, the second low score of the day. Bobby Cruickshank, of Richmond, Va., was third with a 71. About 40 golfers were still out.

Cruickshank, who represented the Country Club of Virginia, dropped strokes to par at the first two holes, but made the turn in 36, even par, and scored a 35 on the back nine. He played the last 16 holes in 4 under par.

Shoots Two Birdies.

On the back nine he was the same steady Cruickshank who tied Bobby Jones for the National Open crown at Inwood way back in 1923. The diminutive Scotchman got down 6 and 10 foot putts at the fourteenth and sixteenth holes for birdies and parred the remaining holes.

Al Houghton, of Indian Spring, paced the Washington golfers with 36-37—73. Al Treder, of Manor, had 74; Leo Walper, Bethesda driving range professor, a 78; Bob Barnett, of Chevy Chase, 80, and Cliff Spencer, of Beaver Dam, 81. Spencer, out in 45, played perfect golf on the back nine for a 36.

Myer Credits Batting Rise to Taking Up Golf; Says Pitching Standard Is Below Days of '29

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—Up to this season, the lifetime batting average of Buddy Myer in the American League was .297.

Then he took up golf.

Today, the Washington infielder is batting .345 and in the midst of a hot fight for the American League batting championship.

Managers and trainers, who shake their heads when their players suggest a round of golf on their days off, might have to do some explaining when this gets around. It's true that Buddy gives credit to other elements, such as pure luck and a better spot in the Senator batting order, for his sudden rise in the averages, but he regards golf as probably the biggest reason for the change.

"I used to spend my winters hunting and fishing," said Buddy, "but last winter I decided to take up golf to toughen my legs and to reduce my waistline. Well, I had a tough time breaking 100, but I got myself into excellent condition and have been breaking into the .300 hitting class this season."

Before this year, Buddy's highest average was .313, in 1928, when he was with the Boston Red Sox.

Buddy also figures his escape from the leadoff role has materially helped his batting average. For most of his previous 10 seasons and for approximately six weeks of this campaign, Buddy acted as leadoff man, a tough spot to build up a sizeable average. He slumped at the start of this season, but got the range and forced his way into third place in the Senator batting order, supplying one of the few rays of sunshine to Owner Clark Griffith and Manager Bucky Harris.

Yet he thinks luck has something to do with it and that the American League pitchers today haven't quite the stuff that they had in 1929 when Lefty Grove and George Earnshaw were burning 'em up for the A's.

Buddy continued: "Luck has a lot to do with it. I'm hitting the ball harder this year than ever before, but it just seems to go where they 'ain't.' I believe any player hitting above .340 has to be lucky. Hardest pitchers to hit? Well, I don't think the pitchers have it like Grove and Earnshaw used to have it, but when you're hitting, pitchers don't mean much to you. And when you're not hitting, they're all tough."

2,000 See Dr. Allen's Horses Dominate Show at Berryville

Only 2 Spills Mar Events First Day

Special Dispatch to The Post.

BERRYVILLE, Va., Aug. 22.—Dark overhanging clouds this morning gave way before a bright sun in the afternoon that smiled down on the victories of Dr. L. M. Allen's Clifton Stables, of Clarke County, on the inaugural day of the Berryville Horse Show.

Only two accidents marred an otherwise perfect day at the jumps. Dick Kirby, rider for Mrs. John Hay Whitney, of Llangollen, came a cropper in the handicap class when his mount, First Night, stumbled on a 4-foot jump. Kirby alighted on his feet and was unhurt.

Mrs. Anna F. Hedrick, of Clarendon, Va., took a bad spill in the pair of hunter class. She received several cuts about the face, but was not seriously injured.

2,000 Fans Look On.

A crowd of 2,000, one of the smallest on record, due to the infantile paralysis scare, lined the fences, but the grandstand was only partly filled.

Due to the amount of time it took to start the races, today's card was not completed until 7 p. m.

Dr. Allen chalked up his first victory early in the morning in the class of 2-year-old thoroughbreds suitable to become hunters. He annexed the class with Clifton's Trump and then took second and third in the same event with Clifton's Diana and Clifton's David.

Royal Wonder, Allen's champion at Orange, annexed the 4-year-old and under hunter event and the 3-year-old hunter class, while Petitit Poule, another of the Allen aggregation, took the lightweight hunter event and Clifton's Rose annexed the ladies' hunter class.

Wins Handicap Class.

Brown Buster, owned by Stephen Nelson, of Chambersburg, Pa., put on a splendid performance over a 4½-foot jump to capture the handicap class, while his entry in the pair of hunters took the blue.

Mrs. John Hay Whitney could do no better than second today. She placed second in the road hack with Glory Road, in the ladies' hunter with Spring Hope, and in the pair of hunters with her entry of Two Leggins and Cypress de Beau. She also took several third ribbons.

Honors in the thoroughbred foal of 1935 went to Lady Gossip, owned by High Acre Farm, of The Plains, Va., while Meadow Lane Farm, of Warm Springs, Va., took the blue with Angkorwat.

Heavy Draft Division.

In the heavy draft division honors were divided among Raymond W. Myers, of Purcellville; J. W. Orrison, of Peonian Springs, and Harvey Fields, of Round Hill.

In the small pony classes L. R. Colbert, of Fredericksburg, with Little Eliza Jane, accounted for the blue ribbons in both of the classes carded for today.

Doesn't Fear Louis, Braddock Declares

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Bristol, Va., Aug. 22.—"He's no punk, but he's got a jaw and as long as they've got one of them things they don't scare me."

So opined James J. Braddock, heavyweight boxing champion of the world, as he sat munching a sandwich in a local hotel coffee shop during a brief stop here yesterday. He was referring to Joe Louis, the Brown Bomber from Detroit.

The champion was accompanied by Joe Gould, his manager, and Jack McCarthy, a sparring partner and inseparable companion. The party was bound for Memphis to fill the first of a series of ten exhibitions below the Mason and Dixon line.

"Sure, he looks good, but he has to face his first real test," the champion declared. "As far as I'm concerned, they all look alike to me. I ain't dodging any of them."

Dundee Moves His Boxers to Richmond

By Charles Hamilton.

A Special Correspondent.

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 22.—Chris (We Wuz Robbed) Dundee, rated in some quarters as one of the country's leading fight managers, and certainly Virginia's leading light at the game, is transferring his headquarters to Richmond next month, it was learned today. The Norfolk manager plans to bring his stable with him and branch out more than ever.

Chris is bubbling over with enthusiasm, so much so that he pays for long-distance calls himself as he perfects his campaign.

"I'll bring Ken Overlin and Stumpy Jacobs along," he said. "Red Journee is about through with the game. Billy Landers will fight some more, though. Then, too, I've got Bob Turner; I'd like to swap him off so he and Overlin could fight.

"Of course," he went on, "I've got Baby Miller. That is, we have a contract saying I'm his manager. But that's just a business arrangement and another guy gets the cut. What I want to do is to keep Overlin on the way up. It took three years to get him started and you can bet we don't want to slow down now."

Vague About Plans.

Dundee is both vague and enthusiastic about his plans after reaching Richmond.

"It's a great fight town, and don't let anybody tell you different," he proclaims. "It's drawing better than Washington or any place in this territory. I'd like to open up some sort of a gymnasium in a section of town where folks could drop in and watch the fighters work out. You know—no admission charge, but just something to keep interest up."

Meanwhile, plans go ahead for the all-star program on Monday night. Overlin is set to fight Tommy Romano, New York middleweight with a record that indicates he can give the former sailor some anxious moments. Freddy Wallmeyer is working out with more earnestness than ever before. Wallmeyer is in a spot just like Max Baer. Beaten the last time by Bob Turner, Freddy realizes that he must come back in impressive style. He meets Glen Morgan, of Portsmouth, whom he should beat, but Morgan is capable of winning unless Wallmeyer goes "all out," as the tennis players say.

Miller Allegedly Irate.

Baby Miller and Tootsie Bashara are both breathing fire and defiance. Following Bashara's 50-second knockout and subsequent reports of a "bagged" fight and equally emphatic denials, fans are flocking for tickets. Miller has said that he will quit the game if he loses again. While that is doubtful, it is certain that another defeat would wash him up as a Richmond drawing card.

Another preliminary is being lined up to precede the Wallmeyer Morgan go. The card is being billed as a double-windup, Overlin and Bashara on top. The lightweights will hold the last spot on the card.

Plans to book the program at the auditorium have been shelved and the place will depend upon the weather, the stadium being used in the event of clear skies.

Wilson and Furr To Battle Sept. 3

The Joe Turner-Goldie Ahearn fistic forces will not attempt to compete with the drawing power of Joe Louis, who is scheduled to make a personal appearance in connection with an all-colored show next Tuesday night, so there will be no fight card at Griffith Stadium Monday.

The Turner-Ahearn combine will get back into action Tuesday, September 3, with an all-star show to be headed by a return engagement between Bob Wilson and Phil Furr.

Marty Gallagher, the Foggy Bottom thumper, will leave Sunday for Boston to train for his important bout against King Levinsky at Griffith Stadium September 16.

Gallagher will work at the Kelly-Hayes gymnasium in Boston and his sparring partners will include such performers as Patsy Perroni and Tom Patrick, Champion Jimmy Braddock's chief sparmate.

A's Beat Tribe In Pitchers' Duel, 1-0

Dietrich Allows Six Hits, Lee Seven; Higgins Scores Lone Run.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 22.—A pitching duel that was one of the outstanding of the season in Cleveland produced a 1-to-0 victory for the Philadelphia Athletics in the third game of their series with the Indians today.

Bill Dietrich held the Indians to six hits, while Thornton Lee, Cleveland hurler, allowed seven.

Higgins scored the lone run of the game. After he walked, McNair singled and Warstler sacrificed, but was safe when Brenzel threw too late to third for Higgins. Richards then bounced to Lee, who threw him out, Higgins scoring.

Play was halted briefly in the first inning as spectators paid silent tribute to Will Rogers.

Baer-Louis Fight to Be Held At Yankee Stadium on Sept. 24

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—Willing to gamble, turning down a certain profit of $100,000 for himself, Mike Jacobs, the promoter who gets to look more like Tex Rickard every day, announced today Joe Louis and Max Baer would fight here in the Yankee Stadium on the night of September 24.

He could have accepted a proposition, backed by Ford Motor Co. interest, whereby he would split $300,000 with the fighters just by taking the fight to Detroit and giving the broadcasting privileges to the automobile concern. Instead, he's going to stage the show here and shoot for the first gate that seems possible to reach $1,000,000 in New York since Jack Sharkey and Jack Dempsey warred on the same battleground in 1927.

"I can get over $1,000,000 into the stadium with a crowd of 85,000," Jacobs said.

$25 Top Price.

"The house will be scaled at a $25 top, and I'm only allowing for 8,000 ringside seats, less than we've had for any big fight this summer. If interest justifies putting in another 10,000 ringsides, we might do $1,250,000."

Under the terms of the various agreements, Baer will get 30 per cent of the net receipts, Louis 30 and the milk fund 10 per cent "off the top." Considering that the rental of the Yankee Stadium amounts to 10 per cent of the receipts, and expenses should amount to another 10 per cent, Mike has left for himself only 10 per cent. The match will have to draw $1,000,000 for him to profit to the extent he would have in accepting the Detroit offer.

There has been no question in the minds of anyone who has seen Max lately as to the condition of his hands. He needed a quick alibi after losing the heavyweight title to Jimmy Braddock and the hands just fitted in.

Today several commission doctors, headed by Frederick E. Elliott, an X-ray specialist, examined his fists, took a dozen pictures and declared there was no apparent sign of anything not normal in a fighter's hands. The pictures will not be developed for another day.

"There are outward signs of old fractures suffered long before the Braddock fight," said one doctor, "but every fighter has that. There's no tenderness."

Bristol Horse Show Is Slated for Tonight

Bristol, Va., Aug. 22.—Tar Boy, from the Felts Stables, of Galax, Va., which swept through the hunter class at the 1934 Bristol Horse Show, will be back to defend his honors tomorrow night in the 1935 show, Love B. Rouse, general chairman of the event, said today.

Along with Tar Boy will come two full brothers, Hi Boy and Oh Boy, both thoroughbred horses, and likely to crowd their stable mate for honors. Hi Boy took the hunter class at the Danville, Va., show last season.

Browns Stick Yankees for 12-9 Game

Van Atta Blows With Lead of 11 Runs, But Mates Stagger to Triumph.

By the Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 22.—The Browns and the Yankees took turns at trying to lose a ball game today and St. Louis finally got the best of a ragged contest, 12 to 9.

With Russ Van Atta pitching one-hit ball for seven innings, the Browns slammed Walter Brown and Vito Tamulis for 14 blows and combined them with 5 Yankee errors to build up a 12-1 lead. The former Yankee flinger blew up with a loud report in the eighth and was touched for six hits and five runs before Jack Knott came to the rescue. Knott prevented further scoring in the eighth, but gave up three more tallies in the ninth.

Tom Carey and Harland Clift led the Brownie attack with three hits each. Despite the defeat the Yanks remained seven games behind the league-leading Tigers, who also lost.

Jakovia Runs Second in Feature

Plate Presented to Beal by Mayor Jackson; Grace Bunting 3d.

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Aug. 22.—It was fiitting that a horse owned and trained by a Baltimore man should win the fetaure race on "Baltimore Day" today and likewise fitting that Mayor Howard W. Jackson of Baltimore should be here to present the silver plate emblematic of the victory.

Most important in the setting was the filly, Veritas. It was she who had the speed to go to the front and it was she who had the courage to stick to her guns when challenged in the stretch. She was not on the platform in front of the grandstand after the race when Mayor Jackson made the presentation to Charley Beal and congratulated Jockey J. Hernandez.

And Veritas' backers did not see that part of the show. They were forming in merry lines under the stands collecting that $23.90 mutuel and telling each other of their prowess as handicappers.

Jakovia Favored.

However, the blare of the loudspeaker and Mayor Jackson's interesting remarks did serve to keep the burden off the minds of those who made Jakovia an even-money favorite.

Jakovia was a sprightly second in the 6½ furlongs contest and Grace Bunting was an equally determined third. Four others accepted the issue in the role of chasers.

Veritas was a prominent figure from the start of the race. Take Off went out to burn the pace setting oil but Veritas was a length away with Jakovia far back. When Take Off had taken enough, Veritas took command and had enough left to hold sway over the fast charging Jakovia nearing the finish. Grace Bunting made up a lot of ground to gallop in the pay-off circle.

Jockey W. Hilley, who rode first and last with the greatest of ease, fell into the clutches of the racing officials. On the favored Furled Flag in the second race, Hilley pulled up in fourth place. His mount was little opposition for Opposition, which brought those in the know and a few stragglers a $21.10 mutuel.

The stewards made the next move, suspending Hilley for the remainder of the meeting and referring his case to the racing commission.

Amijo Is Winner.

Mrs. M. Nelson Bond's Amijo, the second choice, scored a close decision over Ina Dear, the favorite, in the first race to pay a $5.90 mutuel. Dressmaker was third in the field of eight. Ina Dear set virtually all the pace, but was forced to yield to the closing speed of the Bond gelding.

A paddock tip made good in the fourth race when Eddie Smith, of Northeast Washington, gave Infilee a million-dollar ride so that his backers might collect a $6.40 mutuel. Infilee was 10 to 1 at one stage of the betting. The principal contender was Dunair, but that one gave up the task in the stretch, although finishing second ahead of Dearzin.

Smith scored his second success of the day aboard the favorite, Whiskora, in the fifth race. Consummation was second and Holland third over the 6½-furlong course. Whiskora made every post a winning one.

Eddie Smith rode his third winner of the day in the last race on Doubtless and virtually clinched the jockey honors for the meeting and the wrist watch offered as a prize.

Arson, at $11.80, Wins Lincoln Fields Race

Chicago, Aug. 22 (AP).—T. Donley's Arson, an outsider in the wagering, outlasted James Norris' Reservist in a see-saw stretch battle today to win the feature event, a 1 mile claiming race, at Lincoln Fields.

Gilbert Elston and Synod battled for the lead until the stretch bend where Arson, ridden by J. Pollard, moved out in front. Reservist, the favorite, passed Arson midway down the stretch, but weakened in the last few strides and was beaten a head.

2,000 Boys Vie in Postponed Playgrounds Track Meet Today

12th Annual Tests Draw 65 Teams

Parade to Precede Event at Central Stadium at 10 o'Clock.

THE stage is set at Central Stadium today for the twelfth annual track and field meet conducted by the Department of Playgrounds in which more than 2,000 boys, representing 65 teams from the District's playgrounds, will compete. The meet was postponed from Tuesday because of inclement weather.

Richard S. Tennyson, assistant supervisor of playgrounds, will be commander in chief at today's sports fest. The meet is the culmination of a series of sectional meets during the early summer, and each playground director has pointed his athletes toward victory in the city-wide meet.

Events in the unlimited, unrestricted division will be started at 12:30 p. m., Tennyson said, because many of the contestants have taken time off from work to participate. The feature event in this class is the mile run, in which some of the city's best known runners will compete.

Parade to Be Held.

The meet will start at 10 a. m. with an Olympic parade of all the contestants, led by the band from the National Training School for Boys. The band has been "loaned" to the Department of Playgrounds by Col. Claude D. Jones, superintendent of the school. George Shorb, who has been a "playground boy" since he was old enough to join in such activities and who now is well known for his ability as a mile runner, will take the playground oath as representative of all the boys. Shorb, a product of Garfield Playground, will compete in the mile run in the unlimited and unrestricted class.

Events:

Hotel Turns Down Joe Louis' Request

'Hands Pretty Full Now,' Owner Declares.

By the Associated Press.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 22. Tom Luther, owner of the White Sulphur Springs Hotel, said today that he had been forced by a "chain of circumstances" to turn down a request from the manager of Joe Louis, outstanding heavyweight challenger, for training camp facilities at the hotel.

The manager of the hotel where Dempsey, Tunney, Firpo, Jimmy Braddock, Frank Moran, Pancho Villa, and other notables of the ring trained in former years, said he received a phone call yesterday from "some man who said he was speaking for John Roxborough, Louis' manager." He said the Louis camp wanted to move in about September 1.

"I wrote Roxborough today and explained to him that the notice was too short," said Luther. "We've got our hands pretty full now."

Mt. Jackson Trims Strasburg Nine, 11-3

Loser's Lead Cut to One Game in League.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Woodstock, Va., Aug. 22.—Mount Jackson downed the Strasburg nine in a slow contest at Strasburg today to the tune of 11 to 3, before one of the largest crowds of the season. Litten, Mount Jackson rookie, started and emerged the winning pitcher granting only four hits. Rittenour pitched for the league leaders and was pounded worse than any pitcher in the Shenandoah County League this season as Mount Jackon bombarded him with 20 base hits. Harold Shannon's homer with two on bases in the eighth was the highlight of the game.

Rhodes Leads Attack.

The Strasburg attack was led by Rhodes, star second baseman, who made two of Strasburg's four hits. Today's defeat sliced a game off Strasburg's lead, while Mount Jackson and Woodstock remain in a deadlock for second place trailing the leaders by but one game. Mount Jackson faces Strasburg again Sunday and the Woodstock Shamrocks will play Edinburg team here for the Sabbath tilt.

Hiestand Wins Two Crowns In Shoot

Zweiner Handicap Victor; 594 Will Vie Today in Grand Finale.

By the Associated Press.

VANDALIA, Ohio, Aug. 22.—A pair of farm boys were the "hot shots" as 594 of the Nation's trapshooting stars warmed up today for tomorrow's feature, the Grand American Handicap, which will wind up the most sensational week of scoring the annual tournament has ever witnessed.

Ray Zweiner, 41, of Blooming Prairie, Minn., won the preliminary handicap, shot under the same conditions as tomorrow's classic, while Joe Hiestand, of Hillsboro, Ohio, who won the national clay target title yesterday, took the doubles crown.

A tricky wind made the targets cut capers, but Zweiner, from the 21-yard mark, broke 99 out of 100. Steve Crothers, of Chestnut Hill, Pa., who has been one of the first 10 in the country for a decade, did the same. In the shoot-off for the preliminary laurels Crothers missed his first and seventh targets, while the Minnesota marksman cracked all but the eighth. Crothers fired from the 23-yard marker.

Wins Two Crowns.

Hiestand, as a result of his performance, became the third man to win the singles and doubles championships of the country the same year. W. Henderson, of Lexington, Ky., did it in 1914 and P. R. Miller, of Dallas, Tex., repeated in 1923.

Hiestand broke 93 out of the 100 targets in the 50-pair event and had a 3-target edge over the rest of the field at the finish, for one of the most decisive victories in the history of the event.

Hale C. Jones, of East Alton, Ill.; O. B. Franz, of St. Louis, Mo., and E. L. Hawkins, of Fort Wayne, Ind., tied for second place with 90 out of 100. Mark Arie, of Champaign, Ill., the defending champion, was far down the list with 86.

Zweiner, with four brothers, has been shooting nine years, and has attended all the Grand Americans since then. This is the first time, he said, that "I've shot well enough to even get my name on the score board."

Lost in Shootoff.

He turned in 199 out of 200 yesterday to tie for the North American clay target championship, but lost in the shootoff with nine others. That was the highest score he had ever made at 16 yards, and today's 99 out of 100 from 21 yards was 4 targets above his average from 16 yards.

Today's handicap, shot under exactly the same conditions as the Grand American, found the last three champions of the big event far down in the list.

Coach Changes Jobs.

Horses Bring $950,450 at Spa Sales

598 Thoroughbreds Sold During Auction at Saratoga.

By the Associated Press.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 22.—Showing considerable increase over last year, the Saratoga horse sales have ended with 598 yearlings, brood mares, stallions and foals bringing $950,450 for an average of $1,592.

Last year 746 yearlings passed under the hammer and were knocked down for $615,190, averaging $825. The final night's sale saw the dispersal of 24 horses consigned to the sale by Morton L. Schwartz and 27 from W. W. Vaughan's New Jersey stable. The Schwartz consignment brought $90,200, an average of $3,758, while the Vaughan horses went for $14,500, for an average of $537.

Mrs. Ethel V. Mars, owner of the Milky Way Farm, of Chicago, took out two of the sale's top-priced thoroughbreds, paying $7,500 for the Man o' War mare, Time, foaled in 1931, and a like price for a yearling sired by Royal Minstrel.

Robert Kleburg, of Kingsville, Tex., was carried to $8,600, however, before he got the brood mare-foal combination of Sunset Gun, an 8-year-old mare sired by Man o' War, with a chestnut son of Peter Hastings by her side. Another Texas-owned stable, Woodward & Smith, paid $6,500 for the stallion, Sortie, winner of 11 races and $65,509 for Schwartz.

.240 Batting Mark Is Attained by Pitts

'Alabama' Raises Average 25 Points; Fields Well.

By the Associated Press.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 22.—Edwin C. "Alabama" Pitts, former Sing Sing athlete and center fielder with the Albany Senators of the International League, is slowly regaining the batting eye that made him the hero of many a prison yard ball game, batting average records indicated today.

A slight injury has kept Alabama out of the Senators' line-up most of this week, but he is expected to be back in uniform tomorrow night. Alabama, or plain "Ed" as he is better known, spiked himself in the left ankle in a game with Baltimore here early in the week and a slight infection developed.

Pitts was batting a mere .217 a few weeks ago when rumors were circulated that he would be farmed out to the Harrisburg team in the New York-Pennsylvania League. Lately Pitts' batting average has jumped to .240 for an even 100 appearances at the plate. His fielding has bowled along at an .875 clip.

Plans Are Laid For Series in Alexandria

Post, Robin Juniors Clash at Baggett's Stadium Next Monday.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Aug. 22.—Managers Berry Gorham and Willie Robinson, of The Post and Red Robin junior baseball teams respectively, made plans today for next week's championship game. The two clubs will meet at Baggett's Stadium at 10:30 a. m., Monday.

The managers announced after their conference that eligibility lists would be completed by Saturday noon.

The Old Dominion Boat Club worked out today on the Potomac in preparation for the regatta in Richmond early next month.

Qualifying rounds for Belle Haven's annual men's golf championship will begin August 30 and end September 7.

The local bureau of The Washington Post carrier baseball team, with a record of 10 victories in a row, will play District 11 of Takoma in a three-game series beginning next Tuesday.

Pitcher Larry Benton Becomes Braves Scout

Boston, Aug. 22 (AP).—The Boston Braves announced today that Larry Benton, veteran right hand pitcher, had been unconditionally released and had been signed as a scout. The Braves' management said Benton would begin a scouting tour of the Southern States, including the Southern League.

A Cincinnati product, Benton broke into the big league with Boston in 1923.

Plans Boat Outing.

"Smiling" Jack O'Connell, chairman of the Columbia Lodge No. 174's Bowling League, whose 32 teams make it the largest league in the District, is planning a moonlight trip down the Potomac on Tuesday, August 27, the proceeds to defray the expenses of the league during the winter.

"Out Fishin'"

By Jack Hawley.

LATE Wednesday afternoon several boats from St. Jeromes Creek arrived on the Middle Grounds with the hope that the blues were hungry, after a fast of several days due to rain and rough weather; the weather was a little too rough for good fishing; however, none of the boatmen were disappointed in the action received between 5 and 6:30.

All caught a few, the largest catch being 11 in an hour and a half. Capt. Taft Tippett phoned this writer at 10 p. m. and reported the blues were all very large, with none of the fish under four pounds and none over seven pounds. He said they hit the drones with a terrific smash, indicating they had returned to their fighting form shown up to, and including, last Friday. The captain states that a few very good boats are available for the week-end if calls are made immediately for reservations.

Weather Breaks.

As predicted by this writer, the weather broke in favor of the angler late Wednesday. Our prediction was based on the information received from the older captains on the Chesapeake. They usually hit their predictions within a few hours. Other fishing grounds on the bay reported good catches of trout and croakers late Wednesday night. Indications are: Good weather for this week-end. It is only a matter of choice where one should go, as most resorts will be crowded with anglers and their families in an attempt to offset their disappointment of poor fishing last Saturday and Sunday.

For spot use blood worms which should be purchased here, for trout use either cut spot which is preferable to peeler crab or blood worms, for croakers use either shrimp or fresh squid, the latter is preferable in that it will remain on the hook longer, being tough enough to be used for the catching of several fish, for blues use either a white Japanese feather with "June Bug" spinner or drones for trolling, for chumming use cut menhaden run through an ordinary meat grinder. For the benefit of anglers who desire to contact boatmen by phone and do not have their phone numbers or who require a list of boatmen both in the Potomac and Chesapeake Bay this writer will gladly furnish a complete list by return mail to those addressing their requests to this column.

Identify Boats.

There is no question in the mind of this writer that too much can not be said or too much action taken, immediately, by anglers, cruising parties, boatmen who depend upon their livelihood from the anglers who annually use their service, in fact all who use the waters of the bay and the Potomac River and other outlets, to observe the number, name, color, length, anything that will help identify a boat that is using any type of net, either gill, purse, power trawls or any other procedure used to encircle schools of fish for the market, thus destroying entire schools of fish in one sweep. Anglers who see such practices pulled within a few yards of where they are trolling or chumming are becoming furious and well they might, considering they have the choice of one of two things: force which will make the matter worse or attempt to wake up the indifferent law and its "Jekyl and Hyde" enforcement machinery which is so noticeable on the Virginia side of the bay.

Maryland alone can not cure the present "butchery," but that State does try to enforce its fishing laws and upon notice of violations will send its officers out in the attempt to stamp out the commercial fishermen who laugh at the law. Virginians, especially those who reside in this city and enjoy sport fishing over the week-end, can do much to elliminate the destruction of all game fish in the bay by writing the Representative, Senator and, if necessary, the Governor of their State, protesting the lack of law enforcement and attempt to find out who is behind the "blind-eyed machinery."

Note—Don't let a bag, purposely hung over the license number of a fishing boat, fool you when you see a boat engaging in circling a school of fish. The writer investigated conditions in the lower bay a few days ago and found only three using gill nets. However, these nets were not in use at the time and a close watch is being kept on these fishermen in order to see how these nets are used in the future.

Hagerty Back, Is Confident Over 1935

G. U. Coach Is Optimistic in Spite of Green Men; Will Take to Air.

passers in Tommy Keating, whose hands are the size of a coal miner's, and Bob Nolan, whose greatest trouble is too much smoke. With this pair on the dispatching end Hagerty expects to build the greatest aerial attack ever witnessed in Washington. Laterals, before and behind the line, on punts and kick-offs, in addition to the normal quota of short passes over the line and long, down-field throws will be the team's principal method of advancing the ball.

"I'm not trying to get fancy," Hagerty thoughtfully concluded, "but with a green line and plenty of tough opposition the passing game looks to be my only out this season."

Two to Do Kicking.

Joe Meglen and Reds Hashee, the latter a sophomore, will attend to the kicking this season. The burden rested wholly on Meglen last year and the terrific pressure he was subjected to didn't help any. This season should find him at his best.

Wally Herron will be back, along with Don Gibeau and Bob Ferrara, all experienced men. That gives their coach five backs to work with, but Hagerty isn't complaining.

"You can't tell, we may have an All-American hidden in those sophomores," he said.

Yeah, and he may not.

Fishing Boats Available At St. Jeromes Creek

Anglers, disregard information from a certain quarter in St. Jeromes Creek, Ridge, Md., reporting no boats are available for the remainder of the week. The report is untrue. Call Atlantic 1926 for further information.

Capt. Bob Drury made the record catch of the season yesterday, 85 bluefish landed chumming. All weighed from 7 to 9 pounds each. Boats are available at this writing.

Note—The predictions given here represent the time of high and low water at shore at the various places specified, not necessarily the time of current changes. In Chesapeake Bay, midchannel, between Chesapeake Beach and Annapolis, slack water occurs about 2½ hours to 4½ hours after high and low water at shore. At other points (except Wachapreague Inlet) the change of current occurs from ½ hour to 1½ hours after high and low water.

Raskob Gives Prescription For Prosperity

Slice Taxes, Building Costs, He Says, and Revival Is Here.

By Frank McMillen,
Associated Press Financial Writer.

New York, Aug. 22.—Slice the surplus fat off building costs and taxes, and prosperity will take care of itself, declares John J. Raskob. That was the substance of the economic prescription offered today in his first interview on business matters in many months.

The bright-eyed, slender, quiet little man who resigned the chairmanship of the finance committee of General Motors Corporation to head the Democratic national committee during the 1928 presidential campaign, sees no reason why the wheels of heavy industry could not be made to spin as rapidly as have, recently, the lighter lines of business. He is now a director of General Motors and of E. I. duPont de Nemours & Co.

Refusing to play oracle as to immediate business trends or, the nearby course of securities, Raskob thinks, nevertheless, that he sees clearly enough the key logs in the economic jam which impede the return of the country to the economic form that to him means "not like 1929, but a job for everybody that's employable."

Capital Holds Off.

In his quiet way he rejected flatly the idea that it is a "strike of capital" which is impeding recovery in capital goods lines. It is not a "strike," he says, but a combination of common sense and economics which prevents the possessors of capital from placing it at work in heavy industry.

"You couldn't even get a washwoman with $500 to risk it in a business that only paid 4 per cent," Raskob said, then pointed out that if taxes take as much as two-thirds of the profit from an undertaking which involves the risk of loss anyway, even though it made 12 per cent, the net return would be only 4 per cent.

Combine lower taxes with a 20 per cent cut in building costs, says Raskob, and you have the touchstone which transforms stagnation into prosperity.

"The building trades unions ought to cut wages 20 per cent for the sake of a fuller pay envelope and a full week's work," Raskob suggested.

Idle in Building Trades.

"Some 2,500,000 of the unemployed, he calculated, are building trades workers. Behind each of these jobless workers stands a man who should be in the steel plant, or the quarry or the cement mill. Employ the building artisan and his invisible helper also goes back on the pay roll, cutting 5,000,000 from the total of jobless employables.

The stimulation to the railroads resulting from a rise in the building industry might easily absorb another half-million men, he thinks, and the service occupations, revived by the additional flow of wages, could soak up the balance of the jobless.

When it was suggested to Raskob that his plan might not work so smoothly in practice, he shook his head in disagreement, vigorously, showing the bald spot at the crown.

Lower costs can make things hum, he insisted. "Ford did it in 1921," he contjnued, recalling the time when the rival motor magnate cut car prices to cost and made $100,000,000 in a year as costs went down on increased volume. "Automobiles let the way out in the 1921 depression."

The Mellon-Coolidge tax program of 1924, scrapping the very high war-time surtaxes on large incomes, he believes was at the base of the later industrial prosperity. It should be tried again, he asserted.

Highlights and Background Of Financial News and Trends

By Carlton A. Shively.

New York, Aug. 22.—Further advances in stocks, with a turnover of around one and three-quarter million shares, was accompanied by a firm tone in bonds, outside the Treasury section, and mixed changes in commodities. September wheat lost ¾ of a cent at 88⅞ cents a bushel.

Seldom have the markets been so denuded of fresh developments that, by any stretch of the imagination, could influence prices. News from Washington was as confusing as ever on the bills that might come up for consideration and their chances of passage before adjournment of Congress, as well as the date of ending the session. War news also was confusing and indefinite. On the home grounds little of consequence took place.

Stock market bulls are pleased with the way the market has stood up under profit-taking selling, with the pleasant outlook for business this autumn and, perhaps, even with the course of politics. From the near term standpoint even a fast spending administration has its use, as hastening the day of inflation. On longer view the possibility of a bad war abroad, the taxation outlook and the suspicion that stocks have caught up with business is making for caution.

Dollars Stand Firm.

Dollars again were firm against sterling and the gold currencies. The quotation on lire was down, but not much, and anyhow the market is too closely held to an official peg for the daily changes to mean anything. No one doubts that actual hostilities, or much prolongation of the period of preparation for fighting, will put Italian finances, none too strong as it is, to a severe strain, with considerable inflation a virtual certainty.

Much of the cost of the world war, falling to Italian account, has been avoided by the cessation of payments on American loan account; but no such way out is likely in the Ethiopian affair. With credits in England, France or Germany, it is likely that Italy would have to give considerable guaranty, and pay something on account. Italy still has a good deal of gold that will go a long way in a war, but when it is gone the credit base will be shaky.

Steels Again the Leaders.

This week's bank statements show a small increase in gold holdings at the Bank of England and a sizable gain for the Bank of France, which reports a large drop in circulation. Changes at both banks were small, after the liveliness of a week or so ago when agitated capital was shifting about in response to the alarms in Holland and France.

In stocks the play again was in the steel shares, with only a sideshow interest in the coppers. Farm implement stocks had a period of activity and strength, a companion movement to that of the steels and invigorated by the speculative rise in grains. Harvester made a new high price for the year. Motor shares weakened a little, but were never greatly depressed. Public utilities were warm and cool by turns, with net advances on the day for the majority, and especially Telephone.

Steel, Can, Jersey and scattered industrial stocks climbed one and two points, holding their gains fairly well. The excitement in Auburn died out a little, but the drive in Otis Steel continued. Bulls in Case, which hopes to do little more this year than break even on its business operations, managed with the help of the small capitalization and the speculation in wheat to send the stock up three points. Coca-Cola was another stock that proved easy to move, jumping about three points to a new high level. Eastman and Owens Glass were buoyant. Philip Morris was the strongest tobacco.

Chrysler Corp. Buys Wills-Ste. Clair Plant

Detroit, Aug. 22 (AP).—Purchase of the Wills-Ste. Clair automobile plant at Marysville, Mich., by the Chrysler Corporation was announced today.

R. P. Fohey, secretary of the Chrysler Corporation, said that the company had no immediate plans to utilize the factory, but that "we now are using every inch of space in our plants."

The plant was built in 1918 by C. Harold Wills and used for the production of Wills-Ste. Clair automobiles until 1922.

The purchase was made from Kidder, Peabody & Co. for an unannounced sum.

Anaconda Considers $50,000,000 Funding

New York, Aug. 22.—The New York Herald Tribune says informal discussions over long-anticipated funding loans are under way between officials of the Anaconda Copper Mining Co. and investment bankers, with an issuance of $50,000,000 convertible debentures expected.

The bank loans at the end of 1934 were $59,549,000, down $10,384,000 from the end of 1933, and the company also had extensive cash balances.

Market Moves Of the Day Seen In Brief Review

What the Stock Market Did.

	Thurs.	Wed.
Advances	352	451
Declines	267	173
Unchanged	190	171
Total Issues	809	795

Stocks—Renewed profit-taking drives recurring throughout the session were absorbed with small losses in the majority of issues. Steels, farm shares and non-ferrous metals again were leaders among those pressing forward. Rails were a bit soft. Transfers for the day were 1,666,360 shares.

Bonds—Minor climbing tendencies among high-priced corporates were discouraged by renewed weakness in Federals. Turnover in these issues alone was $4,000,000. Word that the Patman bonus bill would be the first thing before next session of Congress aroused inflation fears. Sales up to $12,336,000.

Curb—Utilities were steady, but some industrials reacted. Closings were irregular. Trading pace quickened to 395,000 shares.

Grains—The market was without feature despite the war fears, price trends continuing downward. September wheat closed at 88⅞, off ⅝; September corn, last at 74⅛, off ⅜, and September oats, final at 26¾, off ⅝.

Cotton—With traders still awaiting an official announcement of forthcoming crop loans the market was narrow with last prices 1 point lower to 3 points higher. October was 11.28.

Sugar—Raw sugar firm at 3.50. Refined unchanged at 5.10 for fine granulated.

Coffee—Spot coffee was steady. Santos No. 4, last at 8 to 8¼, and Rio No. 7 final at 6½.

Bar gold—Off ½d in London to 140s ($34.98).

St. Joseph Lead Co. also marked up its price $1 a ton to a basis of 4.40 cents a pound New York and 4.20 cents St. Louis.

Profits and Dividends Reflect Industry Recapturing Stride

Net of 413 Corporations Was $1,108,000,000 in 1934, Best Since 1930, and Income Reports Show Upswing Continued This Year.

New York, Aug. 22.—Net profits of 413 leading industrial corporations in 1934 totaled $1,108,000,000, more than any year since 1930, according to the annual composite income accounts and balance sheets made public today by the Standard Statistics Co. These 413 companies had total invested capital on January 1, 1935, of nearly $25,000,000,000 and so represent an important cross section of business. They constitute the leading corporations for which comparable reports are available back to 1927.

The peak of net profits was reached by these corporations in 1929, when $3,178,000,000 was reported. Profits dropped the next year to just under $2,000,000,000, and by 1932 had receded to $254,000,000. The next year saw a gain of more than $500,000,000; still further progress was made in 1934, and indications so far this year are for a continuation of the upward trend.

The favorable trend is also apparent from another angle. These same corporations paid security holders $991,000,000 in 1934, or $158,000,000 more than the $833,000,000 distributed in 1933, and nearly as much as in 1932, when managements were still reluctant to take drastic action on dividends.

From still another standpoint, progress was shown by the composite income account. Net profit earned on invested capital was 11.2 per cent at the peak of 1929. By 1932 it had fallen to 1 per cent. The next year the figure was 3.1 per cent, and in 1934, 4.5 per cent.

Utilities Less Affected.

Because of the nature of the industry, neither the ups or the downs of the utilities have been as severe as in the case of the industrials. Net profit of 22 representative utilities in 1934 was reported at $445,000,000, or only 26 per cent under the peak of 1930, and almost exactly equal to the figures for 1927. Because of the less severe changes in utility sales and extremely comfortable surplus positions, utility managements did not find it necessary to cut payments to security holders so drastically, as was the case of industrial managements.

The peak of payments to security holders by these 22 utilities was reached in 1931, when $524,000,000 was distributed in interest and dividends. By 1934 this had been reduced 19 per cent to $424,000,000. This latter figure was lower than the 1933 total by only $39,000,000 and nearly half of this is accounted for by savings in fixed charges by retirement and refunding.

Operating revenue of the 25 rails in the composite reports has increased slowly since 1932 with the general revival of business, the 1934 figure standing at $132,000,000 over the 1932 low. When traffic was falling off, maintenance was reduced by the laying up of out-of-order equipment not needed for immediate use but with increased traffic, it became necessary to increase maintenance. This condition, together with increased costs caused by the NRA, prevented the translation of the $114,000,000 higher operating revenue of 1934 into an expansion of net profit, which as a matter of fact was down $10,000,000 from 1933.

Naturally no picture of the record of 413 industrial corporations gives an accurate picture of the many diverse industries which go to make up what we call "industry." In addition to the composite income accounts and balance sheets for the three main groups—industrials, utilities and rails—the Standard Statistico Co. breaks down the industrials into 50 important industries. Some of these industries have suffered much more severely than the composite, others have been relatively slightly touched by the depression, and a small group has even gone ahead against the general trend and increased their net incomes. The latter includes alcoholic beverages and soft drinks, metal and glass containers, meat packing, paper, and rayon.

Although the 413 industrial corporations dug into surplus to keep going in 1934 to the extent of $126,000,000, many individual companies and several industrial subgroups went against the general trend and made substantial additions to surplus last year. These include automobile parts and accessories, $14,000,000; industrial chemicals, $25,000,000; miscellaneous foods, $13,000,000; meat packing, $30,000,000; general chain stores, $15,000,000; mail order houses, $10,000,000.

Drawing From Surplus.

The darker side of the picture shows that many groups were still drawing large sums from surplus last year—in some cases however, to keep giving common stockholders the benefits of the rainy day savings of earlier prosperous years. Subgroups which would have added to surplus except for common dividends include automobiles, building equipment, electrical equipment, baking products and flour, dairy products, floor coverings, machinery, grocery chains, sugar and tobacco.

The composite balance sheet for 413 industrial corporations shows a steady decrease in property accounts since 1930. The 1934 figure for these companies was $13,900,000,000, against $16,018,000,000 in 1930. Investments were down to $2,547,000,000 from the peak 1929 total of $2,803,000,000. Cash and equivalent at the end of 1934 totaled $3,143,000,000, against $3,711,000,000 in 1928. Receivables, in reflection of sharply lower business volumes, were only $1,683,000,000, against $2,947,000,000 in 1929.

Bank Clearings In August Peak For Four Years

Week's Increase for 22 Leading Cities Is 21.4 Per Cent.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 22.—Bank clearings for last week showed a considerable increase, and the total for the first three weeks of August is the highest for that period in any year back to 1931, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

The total for the 22 leading cities in the United States for the week ended August 21 was $5,086,988,000, against $4,191,207,000 a year ago, an increase of 21.4 per cent. For the preceding week the advance was 7.2 per cent. At New York City clearings were $3,313,675,000, an increase of 23.7 per cent over the amount reported last year, while the aggregate for centers outside of New York City of $1,773,313,000 was 17.3 per cent higher.

Clearings for the past week exceeded those of the preceding week by $541,799,000, whereas between the same two weeks a year ago a reduction was shown amounting to $48,595,000.

In addition to New York City, gains were heavy at Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Baltimore, Richmond, Atlanta, Chicago, Cincinnati, Louisville, St. Louis, Kansas City, Omaha, San Francisco, Portland and Seattle.

Chicago clearings were $242,800,000, compared with $210,800,000 last year, a gain of 15.2 per cent.

Washington Clearings Gain 29.2 Per Cent.

Washington clearings again ran ahead of the national average, scoring a gain of 29.2 per cent during the week as compared with the same week a year ago.

A total of $16,811,838 passed through the Washington Clearing House in the seven-day period ended Wednesday, while last year only $13,000,839 moved through.

Grains Are Lower In Dull Market

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 22.—Major grain markets today gave a somewhat dismal performance despite warlike implications in European political developments, gossip concerning which was part of the trade background.

On the Air Today

An old-fashioned spelling bee with a dozen or so new wrinkles will be served up to the unsuspecting radio audience tonight, WMAL, at 9. It is the first of a series of weekly bees under the direction of Schoolmasters Graydon Walker and Bill McCormick, of The Post staff.

The teams for the first half-hour spell will come from the stenographic ranks of various business and governmental offices. And if the plan of Messrs. Walker and McCormick materializes, the men who dictate the letters to stenographers will be combed for a team for a subsequent bee—to meet tonight's winning team of secretaries.

* * * *

Each Friday night teams of six or eight men or women will compete. It may be firemen vs. policemen, waiters vs. waitresses, bus drivers vs. street car conductors or boxers vs. wrestlers.

The bees will be conducted seriously toward the end of one speller winning, but the rules will be somewhat unorthodox, according to Schoolmasters Walker and McCormick. In other words, anything may happen. WMAL, tonight, at 9.

Today's volunteer for the proposed Board of Review and Criticism is Mrs. Manly B. Root, 2940 Mills avenue northeast. Only two or three additional candidates are needed to complete the nucleus for an outlining of the program of the board, inasmuch as the broadcasting stations will be asked to nominate one person to sit in with the group.

* * * *

"Curbstone Queries" has produced some interesting and humorous answers to questions relating to the Ethiopian situation. Most persons questioned in the sidewalk broadcasts in front of The Post Building at noontime (WMAL) admit they have no definite ideas on the location of Ethiopia. Most believe, however, that Abyssinia and Ethiopia are headed for a war with each other! Several listeners have requested that questions be asked pertaining to the conditions of travel on the Defense highway. If you have a question you would like asked in The Post's "Curbstone Queries" program each noon, address your card or letter to Radio Editor, The Washington Post.

* * * *

After being absent from the air for several weeks, Frank Parker, who sang and stooged in Jack Benny's winter program, is to be presented in the Beauty Box Theater tonight, WMAL, at 8. He will be opposite Francis White in the radio version of "Countess Maritza." Odette Myrtil, now heard in the new "Evening in Paris" show, was lead in the original Maritza cast in 1926.

* * * *

An unusually generous array of film stars appears in Dick Powell's "Hollywood Hotel" tonight, WJSV, at 8—George Raft, Joan Bennett, Billie Burke and Walter Connolly. They will combine their talents in a "potted version" of "Rich Man's Daughter." Powell will parody celebrities. Frances Langford sings "Every Now and Then."

* * * *

All the facilities of the NBC are going into broadcasting of the Army and National Guard maneuvers from Pine Camp, N. Y. The first broadcast will be heard from WRC at 10:30 a. m. today. Tomorrow morning listeners will be taken to "the front" to hear the sounds of the "struggle" between the competing armies.

* * * *

Dr. Milton E. Loomis, dean of the Washington Square College of New York University, and the Right Rev. John A. Ryan, of Catholic University, will discuss "The Supreme Court—Aid or Obstacle to Social Progress?" WJSV, at 5, one of a series of discussions of "Preserving American Ideals" . . . Admiral Luke McNamee, retired, will help the college prom celebrate Navy night, WMAL, at 7:30. J. H. H.

Church Fire Damages Picture Worth $85,000

Denver, Aug. 22 (AP).—A painting, valued at $85,000, was damaged today by persons who set fire to the interior of the Catholic Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception.

Fire Chief John Healy said they ignited heavy velvet drapes hung around the painting, the work of F. A. Lundahl, Swedish artist. When firemen arrived two wicker collection boxes were in flames and burned matches were found strewn about the floor near shrines at the altar.

The Rev. Hubert M. Newell was burned on the hands attempting to extinguish the flames before firemen arrived.

Famed Church Saved.

Stoke Poges, Buckinghamshire, England, Aug. 22 (U.P.).—A gorse fire today threatened the ancient parish church immortalized in Gray's "Elegy in a Country Churchyard."

Wanderbirds Plan Swims on Patuxent Hike

By Robert Shosteck.

Sunday's trip along the Patuxent River trail will introduce members of the Wanderbirds Hiking Club to several fine swimming pools which are situated at scattered points between the Hawlings River Bridge and the Spencerville road. The 21½-mile bus ride along the Colesville pike to the starting point of the hike will traverse very fertile and picturesque farm country which was settled early in the eighteenth century by Quaker farmers from England. Many of these old though well-kept farms are still owned by the descendants of the original settlers.

Readers of The Washington Post and club members planning to go on this 6-mile hike will meet at 9:45 in front of The Post Building. The round trip fare will be 60 cents, and reservations must be made in advance at National 4200. Tickets will be on sale at The Post counter for the convenience of those who wish to buy them in advance and thus help avoid delay in starting. Hikers should bring along swim suits, lunch and drinking water, since only one spring will be encountered along the route. The trail is open and good, and follows the Patuxent River the entire distance, except for 1.5 miles along the Old Scaggsville road.

Starting our hike from the Hawlings River Bridge, we follow the river trail through a long meadow and through a fine hemlock grove, such as that along Scott Run, Va. Just beyond another bridge over the Patuxent is a fine swimming place, but not the one selected for the Wanderbird swimming party. About 1½ miles farther along we pass the new concrete Snell Bridge, beneath which is a suitable swimming pool. A short distance beyond this bridge we turn left and uphill along the old Scaggsville road, passing the old Schooley Mill, still standing, but not in operation. The old road to Scaggsville has been abandoned, but is free of obstructions and affords a shady and pleasant walk. We meet a gravel road which we follow to Browns Bridge, another good swimming place.

The last portion of the hike is partly through rocky country and for a short way through laurel bushes, a total distance of 1 mile. We pass a spring as shown on the map and end up at a bridge on the Spencerville road, where the buses await us. We go in for an hour's swim (or longer) about 100 yards above the span. Our bus ride back to Washington (in time for the concert) will be via Spencerville, Burtonsville and Burnt Mills. Total hiking distance is about 6.5 miles.

The hike schedule for September and October is now in preparation and suggestions for new trips or hikes over previously covered territory will be welcomed. Send in details with a map, if possible.

Yakel's Widow Is Exonerated In Gun Death

Pretty Young Prospective Mother Released by Fairfax Court.

Mrs. Nancy Lee Yakel, 24, a prospective mother, yesterday was exonerated of blame for the killing of her husband, George A. Yakel, 58, near their home at Belle Haven, Va., on the morning of August 6.

Mrs. Yakel, an attractive brunette, was given her liberty following a hearing before Judge Paul E. Brown in the Fairfax Police Court. She had been in the custody of her attorneys, J. Randall Caton and A. W. Clark.

The story of the shooting, together with a background of events that led up to it, was sketched by Capt. J. H. Durrer and Officer Louis Finks.

Yakel, they said, had gone to Reno to get a divorce. While there he wrote his wife threatening letters, ordering her to leave their home at Belle Haven. He also wrote a letter to the authorities asking them to remove her from the house.

Mrs. Yakel, alarmed by the threats, swore out a warrant charging her husband with plotting to kill her.

About 2 a. m., August 6, the officers testified, Mrs. Yakel and her mother, Mrs. Hortense Elliott, heard loud knocking and kicking on the door. Mrs. Yakel, they said, armed herself with a pistol and ran out of the house, hiding in a neighbor's yard.

Yakel, they said, finally found her with the aid of a flashlight. She warned him that she was armed, they said, and told him to stay away. When he advanced, she shot twice, one bullet going through his heart.

"I didn't mean to kill him," the officers quoted Mrs. Yakel as saying.

After the officers had testified yesterday, Mrs. Yakel took the stand to corroborate their statements. Then she was given her freedom. No charge had been placed against her.

President Gets Letters Borne By Scout Riders

PonyExpressRouteTraced; Filipino Group Arrives 'for Jamboree.'

The mild invasion of Washington by Boy Scouts, carrying out functions which had been planned for their canceled jamboree, continued yesterday with President Roosevelt's reception of Pony Express riders and the arrival of a contingent of Filipino Scouts.

Commemorating the seventy-fifth anniversary of the introduction of the Pony Express, Boy Scouts on horseback rode to the White House and delivered to the President letters from Governors of the seven States on the old express route between St. Joseph, Mo., and Sacramento, Calif.

Scouts, riding in relays, made the run from Sacramento to St. Joseph. In the latter city, Eastern terminus of the old Pony Express run, the messages were transferred to an airplane and flown to the Capital.

"This is something fine to add to my stamp collection," said President Roosevelt, an enthusiastic philatelist, upon receiving the letters. He also was presented with a gold medal commemorating the diamond anniversary of the Pony Express.

A delegation of 33 Filipino Scouts, accompanied by Commissioner F. A. Delgado, of the Philippine Islands, will be received by the President this morning.

The boys will visit the House and Senate this afternoon and will be guests of Commissioner and Mrs. Delgado at dinner tonight.

Courtney Ryley Cooper's '10,000 Public Enemies'

Chapter XXXV—Woman of Blood (Part 1.)

There are several outstanding features about various criminal careers. One is the steadily recurrent manner in which prohibition played its part in the aggrandizement of crime. Frank Nash peddled liquor. Verne Miller was a bootlegger. Harvey Bailey, Machine Gun Kelly, Wilbur Underhill, Old Creepy, Shotgun George, Herb Farmer, Baby Face Nelson and John Paul Chase all sold it—endlessly the list goes on. From this they stepped, some slowly, some swiftly, into heavier crimes, until they ran the gamut of law infractions, even to kidnaping and murder.

Another point is that many of these men went to prison for minor offenses and came out ready for the worst of outrages. Therefore, the prison system, as demanded by society, stands indicted of having created crime instead of reducing it.

Mainly that is caused by the lack of segregation. Certainly there is no excuse for a system which sends a man like Frank Nash to mingle with young fellows who have been sent up for the thoughtless theft of a motor car. Nor which allows hardened criminals like Harvey Bailey, William Donald Mayer and other life-termers to become professors of applied criminology. Perhaps the time will come when States will band together to create prisons where only long-termers will be incarcerated, entirely separate from other institutions.

Moreover, this system does something more. It teaches the young offender that the law is highly fallible.

Women Bound to Know Of Consorts' Crimes.

The job of imprisonment should be one of dual purposes; either really to make an attempt to reform, or, in the cases which merit it, to produce adequate and unrelenting punishment. Neither of these is now being accomplished.

In not a single case did Frank Nash and his comrades serve their maximum sentences; the citizen forgets time off for good behavior and all the other benefits by which a prison term is cut. In many instances, there was clemency of some sort, either by parole or from the bench. In the careers of the women, suspended and probationary sentences were the rule, rather than the exception.

Sometimes, perhaps, it will penetrate the average citizen's mind that women can be greater criminals than men, that they are the lifeblood of the men, the means of contact, the electric current by which the males receive the power with which to commit their crimes. There is no greater idiocy than the present attitude of sympathy which allows criminal women to be freed so that they can either warn remaining members of gangs or tie up with other crooks and thus pursue their careers.

In all my study of the records of criminals, I have yet to find the honest, upright woman who became the paramour of a confirmed lawbreaker. She knows as much as he, and her plea of innocence, so often successful, is merely a subterfuge. Why she should be protected simply because she wears skirts or because she bears illegitimate children, all too often the spawn of murderers, throat-cutters, kidnapers, bank robbers, confidence men and other forms of wretchedness, is beyond my understanding.

Criminality in America is being fostered because the females of the species are looked upon as less dangerous than the males. It is thriving because nonanalytical persons can not or will not see that it is being nursed at the straggly breasts of its women members. The examples are endless. Evelyn Frechette said a weeping good-by to Welton Sparks, whom she married in the Cook County Jail, Chicago, before he went to Leavenworth Penitentiary for post-office robbery, only that she might pick up with John Dillinger and become one of his great aids in eluding the law. Had Verne Miller's woman been able to profit by a lesson, it would have been when her first husband committed a murder eight months after their marriage, and while in prison demanded that she have an abortion performed to rid herself of their unborn child. Paula Harmon finished her life with a bank robber only to become the woman of a kidnaper.

Tommy Carroll's woman, Mrs. Edward A. Crompton, was given clemency immediately after the affair at Manitowish, Wis., in which Special Agent W. Carter Baum was killed by Baby Face Nelson. She had put on the old, old innocent act and made it convincing.

Less than two weeks later law-enforcement officers killed Tommy Carroll at Waterloo, Iowa, and the woman who screamed and fought and struggled to reach his bloody body was Mrs. Edward A. Crompton. Once out of court, she had made a bee line for her crook consort.

Man, 40, Killed In 5-Story Fall From Window

A man identified as Edward Pilkerton, about 40, either leaped or fell five floors to his death from a window in the Government Printing Office yesterday afternoon.

Police were told that Pilkerton, whose address is believed to have been the 700 block of G street southeast, was not employed at the office, and they were at a loss to understand how he gained admittance.

Identification was made at the morgue by Mrs. Rose McDermott, who told officers she had seen Pilkerton lingering around the building where, according to police, his estranged wife was employed. She had left the plant earlier in the day, however, officials said.
